Watergate Reaction

Senators Feel Nixon Too Soft

WASHINGTON (AP) Many members of Congress say President Nixon should have suggested his promise to clear up the Watergate scandal by moving the investigation out of the executive branch.

In his speech Monday night, the president placed Elliot Richardson, his nominee for attorney-general, in charge of the case but gave him authority to appoint a special prosecutor if he believes one is needed.

"I have a great deal of regard for Richardson," said Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem. Maine). "But he is a member of the official family and in the unenviable position of having to decide what other members of the family should be indicted."

A Senate resolution calling on the president to appoint a prosecutor outside that official family—subject to Senate confirmation—is being introduced by Senator Charles Percy (Rep. Ill.).

Percy said such a prosecutor should have full subpoena powers, including the power to examine the federal income-tax returns of any persons who might be involved.

Senator Jacob Javits (Rep. N.Y.) said Congress will insist on taking the investigation away from the White House and giving it to a prosecutor "who will go through with Watergate wherever it leads and whoever is involved."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said earlier Monday that he would not back a drive for an independent prosecutor. The normal judicial process was adequate to handle the case.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott earlier had commended Nixon for accepting the resignations of White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman and domestic adviser John Ehrlichman and said the Watergate bugging stemmed from "a few overzealous political amateurs with low morals and too little sense who just ran wild."

"The president is in firm control," said Senator Robert Dole of Kansas, Republican national chairman during the 1972 campaign.

There were those who doubted Nixon had done enough.

"I don't know any more about Watergate than I did before," said Senator Charles Percy (Rep. Ohio). "I don't know why the people resigned or were asked to resign."

Representative Shirley Chisholm (Dem., N.Y.) called the president's speech a demonstration that "he knows how to play a cute political game."

"As one who was allegedly spied on by the Watergate crew," she said, "I still believe that the line of guilt has to move up to the level of Oval Office."

Representative Bella Abzug (Dem. N.Y.) said: "There is a concerted effort to portray Mr. Nixon as above this whole mess. It won't wash. We in the House should immediately transform investigation to determine whether there are grounds for impeaching the president and ordering him to stand trial before the Senate."

He Was Victim, But---

Final Responsibility Mine, President Declares on TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, trying to turn his shaken administration to "the vital work before us," has assumed final responsibility for the Watergate scandal while saying those criminally guilty must pay the penalty.

Addressing a country-wide television-radio audience on the 100th day of his second term, Nixon said Monday night:

"In our organization, the man at the top must bear the responsibility. That responsibility, therefore, belongs here, in this office. I accept it."

But he pictured himself as the victim, for nine months, of lies by trusted associates who, he said, convinced him no one in his administration was involved in last June's campaign burglary of Democratic national committee headquarters in the Watergate building here.

Speaking from his Oval Office in the White House, Nixon said:

"I pledge to you tonight, from this office, that I will do everything in my power to ensure that the guilty are brought to justice, and that such abuses are purged from our political processes. . . ."

Barely nine hours earlier, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler had announced, on Nixon's behalf, the resignations of four key administration figures: Attorney-General Richard Kleindienst, White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, presidential assistant John Ehrlichman and White House counsel John Dean III.

Dean was fired; the others resigned.

The only new element disclosed by Nixon in his address was authority granted Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson, his nominee for attorney-general, "to name a special supervising prosecutor for matters arising out of the case" should Richardson deem that appropriate.

A number of Congress members of both parties have demanded that Nixon himself appoint a special prosecutor from outside administration ranks.

The criticism was not stilled by Nixon's address, although he won general praise for his attempts to clean up the White House staff.

Richardson, a former U.S. attorney and elected attorney-general of Massachusetts, was put in immediate charge of all federal inquiries concerning Watergate. Nixon described him as "a man of unimpeachable integrity and rigorously high principle."

Declaring that public faith in the presidency must "take priority over all personal considerations," Nixon said:

"Whatever may appear to have been the case before—whatever improper activities may yet be discovered in connection with this whole sordid affair—I want the American people, I want you to know beyond the shadow of a doubt that during my terms as president, justice will be pursued fairly, fully and impartially, no matter who is involved. This office is a sacred trust and I am determined to be worthy of that trust."

Two Dozen Diplomats Are Killed

ADEN (Reuter) — The foreign minister of South Yemen and 24 of his country's diplomats died in an air crash here Monday.

An official announcement issued here said that also killed in the crash with Foreign Minister Mohammed Saleh al-Aulaqi were the South Yemeni ambassadors to Britain, the Soviet Union, Iraq, Somali and Lebanon.

Information Minister Abdullah al-Khameri said the plane crashed while flying between two mountain gorges 300 miles north of Aden.

The permanent representative of the Democratic Republic of (South) Yemen to the Arab League was also among the diplomats killed.

Nixon's Powers On Prices Are Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has authority to control wages and prices for another year, voted by a bitterly-divided Congress and signed at the White House under deadline pressure.

The House of Representatives took the final legislative action less than six hours before the authority would have expired at midnight Monday night. It passed, 267 to 115, a compromise measure praised by few members.

Response To Strike Is 'Spotty'

LONDON (CP) — While up to three million striking workers stayed home today, thousands of others slogged their way to work through a resultant transportation mire.

The strike, called by the Trades Union Congress (TUC) to protest government wage controls, affected morning commuters as British railtracks were barren, many bus routes unserved and London subway system operated at three-quarters its normal level.

Other evidence of the strike was seen in the absence of national newspapers under the arms of subway travellers as they jostled their way into the packed cars. The participation in the protest by some craft unions deprived more than 14 million persons of their daily newspapers.

Factories, coal mines and ports were mostly silent as many employees remained and docker unions accepted the TUC "invitation" to protest the compulsory wage ceilings imposed as part of Prime Minister Edward Heath's Phase Two anti-inflation policy.

The spotty support shown the TUC by less than one-third of its 10 million members indicates to some observers a growing reluctance among union members to resort to direct confrontation tactics in their dealings with the government. The decision week or stay home was made by local shops of the individual unions belonging to the TUC.

Nixon Makes Appeal To American People

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, his "four more years" clouded by scandal, has turned again to the American people in an effort to rebuild confidence and trust in an administration shaken by the Watergate affair.

His Monday night address was, in effect, a campaign speech, an appeal to the same electorate that had re-elected him in a landslide.

Just 100 days into his second term, Nixon was asking for prayers, not votes. And, above all, he was asking for trust.

The president said his own trust had been misplaced, that he had believed too little more than a month ago the denials of any administration involvement in Watergate.

At that point, Nixon said in his nationally televised address, broadcast speech, new information persuaded him that this might not be the case, and that there had been an effort to conceal the facts "from the public, from you, and from me."

Newfoundland Mining Town Shaken by Strike Violence

BUCHANS, Nfld. (CP) — Union leaders were preparing today to meet in St. John's Wednesday with Premier Frank Moores to discuss ways of settling a miners' strike that has resulted in several violent incidents.

Reports circulating in this town of about 2,200 said representatives of American Smelting and Refining Ltd. also had agreed to meet with the premier.

But James Hart, the company's operations manager, said in an interview he had not been advised of any meeting.

In St. John's, Mr. Moores declined comment on the proposed meeting.

A union spokesman said the provincial government has overstepped its authority following incidents Monday.

In Monday's incidents two cars and a railway caboose were burned and six company cars were overturned.

A confrontation appeared likely as one group of miners rushed to company premises after learning that two policemen had crossed the picket line. But when they got there no policemen were in sight.

Mr. Hart said in an interview late Monday it was time the provincial government intervened in the dispute.

He said that if action is not taken soon, the company will consider pulling out.

Mr. Hart said he does not know the condition of the mine because he hasn't been allowed beyond the picket line for more than a week.

The mine was equipped with automatic pumps but if anything had happened to them and the mines flooded, there would be no way to salvage underground equipment.

St. John Crest Past----Unless It Rains

FREDERICTON 4 (CP) — Weather officials had good news for flood-ravaged areas of New Brunswick today, predicting mostly sunny skies for Wednesday.

Late Monday it stood at 27.8 feet, a level which it held for most of the afternoon.

However, because of a curious slope in the river as it flows towards the Bay of Fundy, the worst hit areas of Maugerville and Sheffield below Fredericton reported rising water levels.

"There is some optimism if the rain holds off that flood situation may stabilize, but if it rains we're back to square one," Henry Irwin, director of the New Brunswick Emergency Measures Organization (EMO) said Monday.

Evacuation of people and livestock continued for the second day Monday and the number of homeless in the entire flood-stricken area stretching for 100 miles along the St. John River, could reach 3,000, one EMO official said.

Agriculture losses are expected to be extensive although thousands of head of livestock have been rescued from the Maugerville and Sheffield areas. Dozens of greenhouses with plants awaiting spring planting and some fields already seeded were destroyed by the flood waters.

EMO officials remained concerned about some rural residents who insisted on remaining in their homes. Civilian and armed forces personnel were to make another sweep of the agricultural regions today to try to convince 15 to 20 families holding out in second-floor sections and attics to leave.

The low farm country floods annually during the freshet, but it now is six to eight feet above levels it has reached in the last 40 to 50 years.

Damage to public highways, bridges and buildings is expected to reach at least $5 million. Premier Hatfield said after an emergency cabinet meeting where he was briefed by EMO and military officials.

Batawa Man Asks Shoe Industry Aid

BATAWA — Despite extreme competition from imports, the shoe industry still is an employment source for many Canadians.

Canadians too often downgrade the importance of secondary industry to natural resources, says Anthony Dalcar, general sales manager of Batawa Footwear here.

The cautions were issued by Mr. Dalcar as a delegate to the recent Ontario Liberal Party convention in Ottawa, when he appealed for federal government help in solving the import issue troubling the home shoe industry.

What sparked his warning, he says, was a suggestion to the convention that footwear imports be increased and the Canadian industry be sacrificed if necessary.

Despite the fact every second pair of shoes seen on the street is now imported, the shoe industry employs thousands of workers, mainly in Quebec and Ontario, he said.

"Canadians sometimes pay too much attention to our natural resources — which really don t bring employment on such a large scale," said Mr. Dalcar. "Meantime we forget secondary industry which sells the finished goods and therefore has greater influence on employment."

The shoe industry was not against imports, said Mr. Dalcar.

"We need imports — but there must be some way to settle this matter to the benefit of all."

Mr. Dalcar said his stand drew promising replies from both Prime Minister Trudeau and Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie.

Mr. Gillespie stated the government is working on the import problem and improvements will be made shortly, said Mr. Dalcar.

Cliff Graham, general service manager for Liftow, told last night's meeting of the Belleville - Trenton section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association the program would use slides and could be adapted to any particular operation depending on the type of materials handled. Industry, he said, could also include their own slides in the program.

Liftow will also make available a training manual for instructors, similar to the one driver or supervisor. "Lift truck accidents are very serious when they occur and the machines themselves can cause a great deal of damage," said local IAPA secretary Helen Nerska.

Also announced was an industrial lift truck drivers competition co-ordinated by Jim Dunlop of the Belleville-Trenton IAPA. Scheduled for 9.30 a.m. June 9 at Northern Electric Co. ## Heavier Paving Recommended

Belleville developers will be required to provide thicker asphalt paving for new housing subdivisions if a recommendation from City Engineer Wilbur Purcell is approved by city council.

The recommendation calling for laying 3¼ inches of asphalt in new subdivisions instead of the present two inches was approved Monday by the traffic committee and sent along to city council.

The new requirement would call for two inches of binder course but not asphalt followed by a 1¼ inch surface course. Mr. Purcell estimated the additional asphalt thickness would result in an increased cost of about $50 for a 50 foot building lot.

Reason for the recommended increase in asphalt thickness is that "rebound" tests have shown that the present two-inch asphalt requirement is inadequate. The present subdivision requirement has been in effect since 1963.

BGH Home Care Plan Is Big and Growing

The home care program operating in Hastings and Prince Edward counties under the administration of Belleville General Hospital has only begun to scratch the surface of the potential need, according to the program's nurse administrator, Mrs. Alison Kuglin.

Mrs. Kuglin nevertheless painted a picture of a service that, has grown from small beginnings in 1971 to one of comprehensive proportions when she addressed Belleville Rotarians Monday.

Further expansion of the service is in the offing. In particular, she said, it could grow as the services of the Victorian Order of Nurses grows still further and she paid tribute to that organization for the part it plays in home care.

Expansion plans call for the service to be extended in the fall to include Murray and Brighton townships, involving an additional 15,000 population.

Locally, Mrs. Kuglin said Belleville's was its first hospital department to expand or project itself outside its walls "into a vast community covering 2,500 square miles and serving a population of some 112,000."

The service has sub offices in Picton and Bancroft and development in the north, as Mrs. Kuglin said, has a very "interesting." The only facility of care there previously had been the Red Cross Outpost Hospital but at the present time, she went on, we are able to provide all the professional and ancillary services required by patients discharged into the north from the Peterborough hospitals that he can provide in the Belleville - Trenton areas."

Mrs. Kuglin said home care had established a need for physiotherapy rehabilitation in the north and today a clinic is functioning three - and a - half days a week from the Bancroft and Barry's Bay hospitals. The service had also assisted in identifying the need for a senior citizens' housing complex in Bancroft and at present is acting in a similar capacity in respect of a nursing home facility in that area.

Transportation, meals on wheels and the provision of equipment are among the other services provided by the home care program, some of it on a fee - for - service basis as performed in the sphere of active nursing by the VON on a 24-hour, seven days a week schedule.

That there are problems in the administration of such a program in an area of this size goes without saying. The health, welfare and education al needs of the patients are met, said Mrs. Kuglin, but the services are fragmented, much time is lost in communication and at times the needs are cumbersome to co ordinate. However, she said there is extremely good rapport with the various agencies.

For the future, Mrs. Kuglin suggested that change — the need for much social change — must be recognized. Expertise is required at the level of the appointed boards and the policies and decisions to be made for the next three— to 10 years "if we'll be astounding."

The status quo in many circumstances, she said, cannot be maintained.

Blossom Festival To Begin May 20

PICTON — Apple blossom time in Prince Edward County this month will be celebrated by the annual Quinte Apple Blossom Festival highlighted by a beauty pageant and orchard tours.

The festival will open for its eighth year with an interdenominational church service on Sunday, May 20 at Albury United Church on Redmerville Road. At noon farm wagons will draw visitors through Bonter's Bayview Orchards stressing blossom time. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided.

On Wednesday, May 22, a variety show will be presented in conjunction with the festival at Pinecrest Memorial school, Bloomfield. Contestants for the title of Quinte Blossom Queen will compete in preliminary appearances.

The Apple Blossom Ball, one of the festival's most colorful events, will be held at Kente school, Ameliasburgh, on Friday, May 25. Here the festival queen will receive her crown from last year's pageant winner, Janet Wetherall, of Ameliasburgh.

The apple pie baking contest, held during the festival in previous years has been postponed until fall when it is expected a harvest dance will be presented.

NDP Wins PECI Vote

PICTON — The New Democratic Party has won a student election at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute by a narrow margin. Four sessions of model parliament will be held this week climaxed on Wednesday with an evening dinner at Achievement Night at the school.

The N D P was victorious with a total of 297 votes, earning 20 of the 50 open seats. Party leader is Stephen Goodmurphy, a grade 12 pupil at PECI.

The Progressive Conservatives, led by Paul Samuel of grade 12, captured 14 parliamentary seats with a total of 215 votes. An excellent student voter turnout was reported at the polls.

Among the planks in the NDP's winning platform was a proposal to raise the minimum wage to $2.25 an hour and to nationalize Canadian energy reserves.

Farm Union President Asks Understanding

PICTON — Gordon H111, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture in a weekend told Picton Rotarians the consumer should realize the farmer's need to be on a par with other segments of society. The Varna farmer was addressing the service club's held at Steimack's Cove, Cherry Valley.

Mr. Hill said the farmer must see a fair price for his produce and meet his obligations to his family just as his non neighbor does.

THIRTY YEARS AGO . . . each of three friends had $10,000, so spare. "Since I don't need this money for 30 years," said one, "I think I'll save it for a rainy day." "Good idea," the second man agreed, but the third had a better plan.

THE FIRST MAN . . . locked his money in a steel box and buried it. Luckily neither small boys nor Belleville strangers have found it yet, and the man still has the $10,000. If he digs it up today, he will be able to buy about as much food, clothing and other things as he could have bought for $5,000, thirty years ago.

THE SECOND MAN . . . put his money into a savings account, and through the years he found it handy to use a little for emergency expenditures. With interest added, he has some $10,000 in his account today . . . and purchasing power of perhaps $9,000, in thirty-years-ago dollars.

THE THIRD MAN . . . put his money to work in a conservative real estate investment. With his $10,000 cash and a mortgage loan he bought a small apartment building. He lived rent free in one apartment, and the income from the other more than paid his mortgage instalments and maintenance costs. He could sell his property for at least $50,000 on the present market, or perhaps trade it on a larger and better property worth several times as much.

Income Tax Office Sets Record for Inquiries

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Was it the new tax forms? Not only the style was changed in Ontario, but a new procedure added for provincial property rebates.

For one thing, Department of National Revenue information services this year included free long-distance telephone calls — even after working hours. It drew a hefty response — more than half the total inquiries.

New filing methods also added to the annual natural increases in eligible taxpayers.

Whatever the cause, as the department's Belleville district office Monday neared closing time — and the year's tax-filing deadline — close to 42,000 people had asked answers from the information officers.

In 1972, inquiries totalled 14,720.

What sent the statistics soaring, believes information officer John Lensen, was the free long-distance telephone calls — almost 17,800 of them.

Many people, he says, phone in just to confirm what they have already sorted out themselves.

"Last year, if people made a long - distance phone call they had to pay for it. So if they were just confirming something they'd be more inclined to let the inquiry go," he says.

The Belleville office administers a tax territory from Napanee to Bowmanville and north through Haliburton. This year its total of taxpayers was projected at 165,000 — anticipating an increase of 15,000.

The actual increase could be above or below projections. Complicating predictions are at least two factors: (1) Students, and many senior citizens, are filing for the first time to qualify for provincial tax rebates; (2) Members of the armed services, who hitherto sent returns through their own administration, filed through regular channels this year.

Such a increased numbers were a major contribution to the soaring number of inquiries to Belleville office personnel, estimates Mr. Lensen.

In the main, he doesn't believe it was the newly-initiated income tax forms — effect of which was mainly psychological.

More people than ever used the accompanying tax guide this year. They also found the filing easier once they realized various schedules on the new forms didn't apply to the most common income area — the average working - wage bracket.

But the department also took no chances on getting its easier than - you - think message across early.

For instance, Mr. Lensen, aside from ironing out people's problems as a regular information officer, also does double-duty in public relations.

This year, he spent 24 hours on openline radio shows, nearly three hours on television and kept 11 speaking engagements to make mass personal contact with the public.

The response was excellent and the contact also "strengthened" indicated "people didn't find filing as difficult this year as they thought they would".

There were complaints— he admits — and also people, including senior citizens, who said they had few problems completing their returns.

"I think the toll-free telephone calls — and the after-work-hours service in the evenings — have proved an excellent means of helping people," says Mr. Lensen.

Fewer people than usual came calling personally for help to the offices in the Station St. federal building. In fact, at 9,700 the totals were considerably lower than last year.

The majority of calls—more than one third — involved income, the least — two per cent — concerned capital gains.

Inquiries peaked at the end of February — when most employees received their T-4 income slips enabling completion of returns. Pressure tapered off during March, only to build again in the last few days as the deadline neared.

Although it s not immediately possible to calculate how many latecomers or defaulters the 1972 tax returns produce, "most people had filed their returns," by last night, Mr. Lensen said.

On Deadline

Deadline for income tax returns yesterday brought final spurt of taxpayers seeking advice at National Revenue's Belleville district office. While office personnel like Lee McConnell answered thousands of over-the-counter questions, largest single source of inquiries was long-distance telephone service.

Nixon's Troubles

Possibly no president in United States history has accomplished so much in so short a time as Richard Nixon.

Notable in this record of achievement have been the visits to Peking and Moscow and the improvement in relations with the Communist world. Then came the official ending of United States involvement in the war in Vietnam, as well as a ceasefire of sorts.

Unofficially of course the war continues and American bombers still range over targets in Indo China. The hostilities in Vietnam are not a complete end, while in addition both sides have been indulging in a massive build-up of men and military equipment. In neighboring Cambodia Communist forces menace the capital city.

This while President Nixon and advisor Dr. Henry Kissinger succeeded, up to a point, in achieving a ceasefire, the future of Indo-China is still obscure. So too is U.S. policy there. How long will the politics of confrontation there continue? The answer would seem to be indefinitely.

But now there is more trouble on the home front for Nixon, in the shape of the Watergate affair. The bungling of the Democratic party's election headquarters has blossomed into a major scandal which is having repercussions abroad. With Nixon's staff in disarray because of recent revelations, and the prospect of mass dismissals, the effect on the Government political machine can only be imagined.

Nixon's own prestige and influence at home and abroad could be seriously compromised, if not harmed irreparably, in the coming weeks. If such is to be the case, the effects on the U.S. and on its relations abroad will be immeasurable. The way Nixon handles this situation, and to the extent that he may be seen to be blameless himself in the Watergate affair, will be the arbiters of whether or not the president and his administration continues to enjoy the confidence not only of Americans but of governments and peoples abroad. As it is, this confidence has been seriously jolted.

Cheshire Home

Belleville is showing itself once again to be in the forefront of community service with the inspiring start that has attended the Cheshire Home project for the handicapped.

Spearheaded by a $15,000 cheque from the Kinsmen Club and augmented by other contributions, including funds from downtown businessmen, a wing of the Air Force Association, and individual citizens, the financing of the project is off to a good beginning. Government funds are also available and further generous contributions may be expected. It is anticipated the home will be in operation by the end of June.

For Northern Electric engineer Alex Cunningham and his wife the Cheshire Home dream came true. A year ago the Cunningham's son Sandy was paralysed from the neck down in a car accident and their goal became the establishment of a Cheshire Home similar to one in Toronto and others around the world. Here, Sandy and a number of other handicapped people for whom no other adequate facility exists will be able to live under comfortable home conditions, in an atmosphere where the emphasis is on self-help while at the same time pursuing personal goals and work schedules. Volunteers, including in all likelihood high school students, will also be available to help.

For Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and the steering committee and the many others who have helped, this has surely been a labor of love. For the Belleville (and province) service (for counselling those with personal problems) in its initial stages, the Cheshire Home here will be only the second one in operation in Canada. We wish it well.

On the Wane

Hijacking of aircraft seems to be on the wane — thanks no doubt to the stringent new systems of checking passengers at airports. Even though it came too late to prevent a host of earlier incidents, involving criminal interference with aircraft movements and passenger safety, the laws now in force have had the effect of reducing such incidents virtually to nil. It is inconvenient for passengers, but better this than the grossly offensive actions of malcontents and mental incompetents who in the past have seriously compromised airline and passenger safety.

Defence Stus Under Review

Canada Committed to NORAD for Two More Years at Least

By HENRY F. HALLED
OTTAWA — Defence Minister James Richardson's decision to renew the agreement with the United States for North American Air Defence for another two years came as no surprise.

If one accepts the premise that a nation must be prepared to defend itself, then the agreement with the United States through NORAD to do a combined job on the expanses of northern territory which is the buffer zone for both of us between North America and the Soviet Union, makes very good sense.

As Tory defence critic Michael Forrestall said: "The importance of maintenance by Canadians of the sovereignty of our northern air space requires this maintenance."

The two-year factor in the renewal of the pact is not related to an early desire to get out, but merely to the speed with which military technology is changing.

To hear Maj.-Gen. Reginald Love, deputy commander in chief of NORAD, talk about the kind of advance warning system that the U.S. forces are perfecting is something like reading a science fiction magazine. NORAD is more likely to die as a result of American abilities in the near future to watch the whole world from within their own borders, than from any pressure within Canada to avoid the cultural contamination of the U.S. presence.

The New Democrats, who would like to see the agreement not renewed so that NORAD could die a natural death, base their argument on two factors. First that the threat of manned bomber attack, which NORAD was designed to detect, is now non-existent. Second that the real defence lies in the assurance of retaliatory attack; the knowledge that either of the great nuclear powers, even if attacked by surprise, would still have the means of launching a counter-attack.

Gerard Laprise, Social Credit spokesman on defence and external affairs, introduced another aspect of the problem. The free world no longer relies exclusively on Soviet Russia as a potential attacker, but in Communist China as well. Both Russia and China are rapidly expanding their military expenditures and their nuclear strike capacity in particular.

Canadians are not pacifists; and most accept that a military force is necessary. But, realistically, a country of 22 million people can not maintain a standing army adequate to police a piece of land the size of Canada. So the next best thing is a combined defence agreement with the United States — doing what we can at the same time to minimize the culture shocks.

Despite the NDP view that the world is safe as long as the Yanks and the Russians both have an extra set of missiles in their hip pockets, recent world history does not bear out much hope that peace is just around the corner. Military force is still a very acceptable means of dealing with problems in many parts of the world.

The more realistic view is that presented by Mr. Forrestall: that the two-year renewal period of NORAD should be used for a full study of all aspects of bilateral North American defence. He suggests there are probably three or four dozen memos, protocols, notes and agreements covering various aspects of Canada-U.S. co-operation.

Mr. Forrestall wants them all examined with the hope of "coming up with an integrated role for Canada in the defence of North America which will achieve the purpose of serving our own national interests as well as the fulfilment of our collective responsibilities."

Canada's participation in NORAD has come purely non-military advantages to Canada which also need to be considered. When NDP critic Andrew Brewin says: "Canada should control and recovery its own air space," he is committing Canada to a substantial increase in both its military and civilian operations in the north.

Canada is to maintain its sovereignty over the Arctic, it must provide the kind of navigational aids, search and rescue capability and actual physical presence necessary to convince commercial airlines and shipping companies that we mean business. Added to this is the need to know they can't go wandering around our skies without being called to account.

NORAD bases and manned radar cities across the North that did double duty for civilian navigation and military surveillance. In due course they will no longer be necessary for military purposes and when that happens, Canada will have to either man them herself or replace them with some new system. In the meantime they are a bargain not to be sneezed at.

"Faster, Rocky, they're gaining on us!"

Ministerial Travel Junkets Remain Veiled

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

The situation with the Nixon administration in the U.S., of course, has reached a stage of near-crisis.

With the federal government in Ottawa it has been a matter of growing concern for years. A concern that was added to a few years ago when a list of documents that were regarded as not in the public domain was tabled in the house.

Now there are indications that this problem may be creeping in here.

One surface showing of it was the refusal of the government to table the log books of its aircraft.

The opposition has been asking for these logs for more than a year.

There was the feeling that ministers, and perhaps deputy ministers, could be using the 40 aircraft in the government fleet for frivolous purposes.

Then it finally said it wasn't going to release them.

Most pertinently it didn't give any reason for not making them public.

It sounded very much like President Nixon's position when he wouldn't let White House aides testify in the Watergate affair.

There were grounds for suspicion that the premier felt his government was above the judicial — that he was perhaps assuming the prerogatives of royalty.

Whatever his real feeling may have been, this has to be regarded as a dangerous precedent.

For once any government documents are successfully held back under the reason we can be sure that others will follow.

It also, of course, could be politically dangerous to the premier. For can the public now believe anything else than that there was some hanky-panky?

Spying on Doctors?

Guelph Mercury

Ontario health minister Dr. Richard Potter has decided it would be nice to have 18,000 patients blab on their doctors.

Dr. Potter and his bureaucrats have concocted a ridiculously simple plan.

You see, the department will mail out forms to 18,000 patients, all selected at random. Even so this may be misleading because a department official is quoted as saying that some of the forms may be sent to patients whose doctors the government feels may be trying to pull a few fast ones at the expense of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan.

These patients will be requested to confirm that a visit to the doctor's office did indeed take place. Other information will also be requested.

Once the form as been completed by the dutiful citizen, he returns it so that OHIP can verify the payment claim submitted by the doctor.

We aren't complaining about the need to occasionally double-check doctors' claims. Obvious abuses have been reported and must be stopped.

But surely the department's plan asks Ontarians to spy on their doctor? A dangerous insidious precedent could be set here.

Pension from City Queried

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In several issues of your paper, the latest of Mar. 23, there appeared a notice over the signature of the City Solicitor seeking submissions from the Ontario Municipal Board for Belleville to pass special legislation that will enable the city to provide for an annual retirement allowance to the city clerk and to the surviving spouse during her life.

I notice the word pension is replaced by the term "retirement allowance". Now regardless of what terminology is used, the fact remains that this "Employee and his wife will receive a pension for life regardless of the fact that a person in order to qualify for a pension must have had at least 20 years' service according to the Ontario Municipal Act, Chapter 278 Sec. 240(1) which states:

"A council may grant an annual retirement allowance payable weekly, monthly or otherwise to an employee during his life who has had continuous service for at least 20 years with the municipality or with any other municipality or local board as defined in the Dept. of Municipal Affairs Act or any two or more of them.

A — Is retired because of age;

B — While in the service of any municipality or local board has become incapable through illness or infirmities of efficiently discharging his duties provided that no retirement allowance together with the amount of any pension payments payable to the employee in any year under a pension plan of any municipality or local board will exceed two-thirds of his average annual salary for the preceding three years of service."

I notice the word pension is the immediately mentioned in the latter part of the act as quoted.

Therefore the above mentioned employee does not qualify for a pension according to the Pension Act as laid down by the Municipal Board of Ontario and the taxpayers of this city should not be burdened with this financial obligation which could involve thousands of dollars over the years.

Another fact that should be considered is that there are people in this locality areas, former CNR employees with as many as 15 to 18 years service retired without a pension because they could not qualify for a pension, and having served the required 20 years, many of them are prepared to serve in this city, discharged as it were regardless of their meritous service; now these citizens are forced through city taxes to support another individual who has no more right to a pension that they had.

Personally, I believe if this employee is granted a pension then every city employee is also entitled to consideration and where would it all end?

Why not relieve the taxpayer. It could be very easily accomplished. I suggest the Mayor and elected officials of the city dig down and make a donation. I'm sure a pool from all city officials, together with the $200 a month old age pension which he and his wife are entitled to, should give the above mentioned employee a much better retirement start than many of our citizens who were born and raised here.

Accident Wastage

Cambridge Reporter

Every year in North America more than 100,000 persons are killed, 12 million are temporarily disabled and more than 300 billion wasted through so-called "accidents."

Hugh A. Douglas, senior coordinator of accident prevention for Imperial Oil Ltd., Toronto, says all these deaths are regrettable of whether they occur at the job, on the highways or in homes, result from errors of knowledge, skill or judgment.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Toronto, Mr. Douglas said, "It appears our social values are somewhat distorted when we are concerned about such things as the Apollo moon programs and the loss of workers' time through strikes, than we do about the colossal waste of money and people through accidents."

He said that man-days lost through injury or illness in Ontario in 1971 amounted to more and a half million days, or more than twice the one and a half million days lost through strikes.

Regional Government

Peterborough Examiner

The contradiction between the provincial government's claims of giving the local governments more authority and its attempt to policy of regionalization became very apparent last Friday when two members of the Ontario legislature spoke in Peterborough.

At a meeting called by the Peterborough County Board of Education, Bill Davis said regional effects regional government would have on the present system of education. Donald Deacon, parliamentary assistant to the provincial treasurer, suggested a form of voluntary regionalization that's tainted it with a hint of threat.

In his speech he not only expanded on how a regional government including a larger area — which is another name for regional government — can be more responsive to local needs but said if the local authorities did not solve their own problems the provincial government would come in with its own proposals.

This may only be interpreted as a threat because it is not our own regional government under the threat of having Queen's Park do it for us if we don't solve the simple reason that it has many advantages.

Most people would agree with Queen's Park that regional government has many advantages.

What is difficult to believe is that it can be reconciled with the idea of more local power.

St. George Unnoticed

Ottawa Journal

Perhaps if Canadians of English heritage were to drink red, white and blue beer and sing the praises of the Lass of Richmond Hill today, the rest of the country would give more attention to St. George, slayer of dragons and patron saint of England.

The English celebrate their one their saint's day justice. Maybe they lack the sentimentality of the Irish, the fervor of French Canadians and the haggis of the Scots — all of which find distinction in their saints days. St. George, it seems, has been generally ignored as the founder of an exportable brand of good cheer. This is unfair. By comparison, he was a much more exciting man than any of the other saints in whose memory a day of merry-making is an annual event. In hard, after all, to top an act like slaying dragons to save maidens in distress.

CP News Roundup

Health No Regional Operation

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's proposed district health councils should be responsible to the ministry of health, not regional governments, Dr. F. T. H. Porter, incoming general secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, said Monday.

Speaking to a regional meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association, Dr. Porter said he can recall "horror stories" from the days when municipal politicians were responsible for civic hospitals.

"We have no reason to believe that regional governments would be any less involved (in district health councils)," he said.

Charles Boyd, president of the Ontario Hospital Association, said medical health centres should be located in hospitals rather than in new facilities.

He said the idea that hospitals can only take care of sick people when they are lying in bed is "old fashioned."

Dr. Porter and Mr. Boyd will present their ideas Tuesday in a brief to Health Minister Richard Porter.

Dr. Peter Ruderman, an economics professor at the University of Toronto, said the creation of medical health centres is being "pushed federally for political, not logical reasons."

He said the premise behind this is that health centres are cheaper than traditional methods of health care. This has not been proven, he said.

Tests Urged

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — "It's too damn easy" for Ontario drivers to get licences, an official of the United Auto Workers (UAW) said Monday.

Larry Sheffe, international representative of the UAW, said drivers should be subjected to retesting.

"You would be surprised how many people fail a driving test who have been driving for 30 years," he told delegates to a Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) health and safety conference.

Won't Be Bored

TORONTO (CP) — A continuing survey among 608 students in high schools, community colleges and universities and among the same number of under-35 union members over a four-year period shows a marked drop in the number willing to accept dull, boring and repetitive jobs.

The study by Harrish Jain, chairman of the personnel and industrial relations department of the faculty of business at McMaster University in Hamilton found that in 1968 of those questioned 69 per cent believed in hard work and were willing to take any job. By 1971, the percentage willing to accept any job dropped to 38 per cent.

Stephen Lewis Silent On Report He'll Quit

TORONTO (CP) — New Democratic party leader Stephen Lewis has refused to confirm or deny published reports that he is about to step down as leader of the Ontario party.

"I cannot comment one way or another; if there is a time to comment I will, but I have said what I have to say," said Mr. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis said it was his policy not to comment on speculative articles.

"I know of no imminent challenge to the leadership and I have no pressures on me to quit . . . that is all I have to say," said Mr. Lewis.

He described the published story as fanciful, speculative, and "in some ways highly exaggerated."

Bank Is Committed To Economic Growth

TORONTO (CP) — Despite its recent actions in reducing the expansion of the money supply, the Bank of Canada remains committed to strong economic growth, the bank's governor said Monday.

In a speech prepared for the Toronto Canadian Club, Governor Gerald K. Bouey explained the thinking behind the bank's move April 6 in raising the rate of interest it charges chartered banks.

Mr. Bouey said the bank permitted expansion of the money supply-cash and bank deposits—by 18 per cent last year and 19 per cent in 1971 in order to finance economic expansion and more jobs.

But monetary expansion in the first three months of this year reached an annual rate of 25 per cent—clearly too rapid, said Mr. Bouey.

Acupuncture Clinic Is Closed at London

Dr. W. E. Spoerel, chairman of the department of anesthesia in the faculty of medicine at the University of Western Ontario, has operated the clinic twice weekly with a research physicist, Dr. C. Y. Leung.

But Dr. Spoerel, who is also head of anesthesia and chairman of the medical advisory board at University Hospital, said the additional work at the acupuncture clinic was becoming too much for him.

He has to be present at each treatment given by Dr. Leung, who learned acupuncture from his father in Hong Kong, because Dr. Leung is not a medical doctor.

Talks are continuing with Victoria Hospital on the future of the clinic, which was treating about 40 patients.

Two Flee

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Two more prisoners escaped from Cowansville medium-security prison early today.

A prison spokesman said Jacques Varie, 25, and Robert Lavallee, 31, broke a cell window and climbed over the fence surrounding the prison.

Indian Spent 19 Days in Jail Awaiting 39-cent Theft Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Four months after the Bill Reform Act came into effect, a Northern Ontario Indian spent 19 days in jail awaiting trial on a charge of stealing a 39-cent piece of bologna.

Seven months after an order to a landlord from the fire chief in Kenora, Ont., to eliminate fire hazards in a home rented by an Indian woman and her children, nothing had been done.

These and other incidents are related in a report released Monday by the Canadian Civil Liberties Education Trust, an affiliate of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association.

The report says injustices toward Indians under criminal law are on a scale that makes the Canadian Bill of Rights "little more than a legal illusion."

"We pass all sorts of laws but fail to go back and see if they work," said Alan Borovoy, general counsel of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association.

The report—Indian Life and Canadian Law—was written by Mr. Borovoy from results of a 12-month investigation in Northern Ontario, the bulk of it carried out by Harvey Savage, a Toronto lawyer. The investigation included the gathering of more than 200 sworn affidavits.

Copies of the report have been sent to all government departments and cabinet ministers dealing with Indians.

The report documents the disparity between legislation and the experiences of Indians in areas of health service, employment claims, administration of criminal law, landlord-tenant relations, legal aid, land encroachment and compensation and the protective role of the federal Indian affairs department.

It says that in the case of the Indian charged in Kenora with stealing bologna, the charge was dismissed at the request of the Crown attorney when he learned for the first time at the trial that the Indian had been sitting in jail 19 days awaiting trial.

Other cases it cites are:

—Twenty-two Indian children all under the age of 15 were found to be suffering from untreated impetigo (skin disease) symptoms in a health survey of 30 children chosen at random by a nurse on Whitedog Indian Reserve. This was despite the fact that Indians are provided with subsidized medical treatment.

—In spite of municipal fire hazard bylaws, provincial laws to enforce landlords to keep dwellings habitable, and provincial money for subsidized housing, an investigator found Indians in the Kenora-Keewatin area living in houses with fire hazards, rotting structures, absence of stoves and plumbing, and frequently in the presence of vermin.

—A fieldworker for the Kenora Metis and Non-Status Indian Association, earning $4,000 a year with a wife and two children, complained he was living in a substandard house while his landlord, a local merchant, was living in subsidized housing.

—A Shoal Lake Indian paid $28 in taxi fares to answer a summonses from police in Kenora for stealing a case of beer. The high cost of transportation in Northern Ontario inflicts hardship on Indians, says the report.

Hydro Probe Planned By Legislature Committee

TORONTO (CP) — An angered Premier William Davis announced Monday that a legislative committee would investigate Ontario Hydro's deal with a developer to build a 14-million headquarters.

But he denied that political patronage played any part in the awarding of the contract.

And he said that articles in The Globe and Mail Saturday and Monday alluding to the contract were "misleading" and "incomplete."

Mr. Davis said inside the house he believed "public servants and private citizens" who were mentioned in the stories should have an opportunity to explain the matter fully.

Court Action Urged Against Dryden Firm

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Stokes (NDP-Thunder Bay) urged the provincial government Monday to take action against Dryden Chemicals for polluting the English, Wabigoon and Winnipeg river systems.

Speaking in the legislature, Mr. Stokes said the company was the polluter and should be held responsible.

"What action do you propose to take against the offenders who are responsible for this contamination and the inherent dangers to the health of native people living in that area?" asked Mr. Stokes.

Pat Reid (L—Lab-Rainy River) said the government has apparently rejected practically all the major recommendations of an investigating group that looked into mercury pollution in northwestern Ontario.

Sales Tax Increase In Effect

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario residents begin paying more sales tax today although the legislation making it law is still bogged down in the legislature.

Legislation to boost the sales tax to seven per cent from five per cent failed to get second reading in the legislature Monday night.

However, the legislation, when approved, will be retroactive to May 1. Treasurer John White says shopkeepers are duty bound to start collecting the tax today.

Earlier Monday, during a wide-ranging debate on the new tax, the treasurer repeatedly was called upon by opposition members to withdraw the tax increase and many Liberal and New Democratic party speakers labelled the increase unfair.

Mr. White described the tax as a "bold move so that property taxes won't rise by something like 12 per cent."

Although the government obviously had aimed at having the legislation in the law book by May 1, Mr. White said he was in no hurry to curtail debate and wouldn't predict when it would become law.

In an interview outside the legislature, Mr. White said the consumer must pay the tax and if he or she balked they would "be liable when the statute is concluded."

He said this method of operation was fair and not out of the normal.

Mr. White noted that the federal government recently passed income tax legislation that was retroactive to 1972.

You Can Go to Work Happy

When Your Day Care Home Is A Good One

Sarah

Sarah, who is an active 13 months old, gets out at a private day care home where she is loved and looked after. Her 27-year-old mother, Fenella, gets out at Queen Alexandra School where she teaches grade seven. Father Chuck goes on to Centennial Secondary School where he teaches history.

Sarah is the daughter of one of Ontario's estimated 300,000 working mothers; women who join or rejoin the labor force after the birth of a child.

In Ontario 28 per cent of the female labor force are women with children; 25 per cent of mothers with children under 14 years of age are working. More women with school age children work than women with children under 6.

All of which means little unless you're a working parent in search of day care for your child.

In Belleville, your choices are severely limited.

You can get on the waiting list at Belleville's only municipal day care centre or you can attempt to enrol your child in the Quinte Day Care Centre, originally an LIP-funded operation soon to be a private day care centre. It has an even longer waiting list.

Or, like most parents, you can seek a private day care home because of the waiting list or because your child is too young to be accepted by a day care centre .. or just because you prefer private and individual day care.

Often, choosing the latter is a harrowing process.

"I'd be very miserable with any sitter I wasn't absolutely sure of ... but Sarah gets oodles of love, attention - even firmness when it's needed, "Fenella MacWhirter says.

She is one of the lucky ones: completely confident about her daughter's health and welfare in the hands of what is essentially a surrogate mother.

For those who can't find a good day care home or don't know how to choose one, the department of social and family services of the provincial government publishes a pamphlet to help working parents. Called "Choosing a good day care home for your child", the publication gives advice on everything from the health of the family you choose to sleeping facilities for the baby.

(The government, in fact, offers individual help with day care questions; write the Day Nurseries Branch, Department of Social and Family Services Hepburn Block, Queen's Park.)

Like a good day care home, Belleville's municipal day care centre looks after all the needs of its charges.

"We're more than babysitters ... we look after their emotional and physical needs."

Mrs. Annie Pearson, supervisor of the LIP funded Quinte Day Care Centre believes institutionalized day care is superior to private home day care in many situations.

Obviously parents must choose a private day care home with care.

And, then, as Mrs. Pearson points out, "If a child is getting good day care she can go to work relaxed .. you feel secure if your child is happy."

and her mother Fenella MacWhirter spend their days in separate but equally stimulating tasks. Sarah is learning and playing in a private day care home. Mrs. MacWhirter teaches grade seven at Queen Alexandra public school.

Some of the Reasons Women Work

At the turn of the century a working mother was, if not unthinkable, at least unusual.

Today an ever-increasing number of women with children are in the labor force — for money, sometimes, but as often because, as one woman puts it, it's a right and a responsibility.

But day care facilities in Belleville are limited. And while the federal government has made it a little easier for the family with two working members by implementing deductions for child care expense, its still not easy to meet the requirements: receipts from the babysitter.

Why, in the face of these difficulties, not to mention social pressure for a mother to remain in the home, do many women choose to work?

"I can't see how a mother staring as one child and vice-versa can be healthy. Possibly some of the ailments of our way of life can be attributed to this 'unnatural' situation."

Fenella MacWhirter, working mother of 13-month-old Sarah, is firm about her reasons for choosing to teach rather than stay at home. She says she defines a "natural" situation as the extended family with nearby and accessible — to both parent and child — grandparents, maiden aunts and uncles.

"There's more scope for growth in the child where there are other children — as in Sarah's day care home — and more scope for growth in the mother in an environment where she can communicate with other adults."

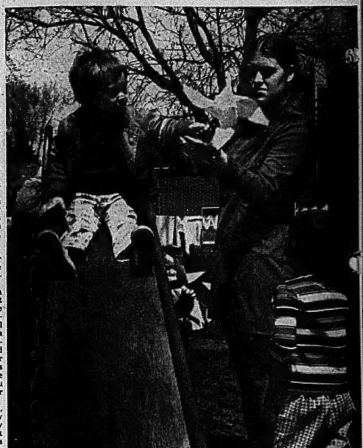
Given a desire to work, however, and luck in finding suitable day care, there's often still one nagging doubt in the minds of women who work: With whom will the child identify? Who will be, after all, the mother?

There's good news for any one worrying about it in a recent study conducted in Syracuse, New York. There, two-and-a-half year old children were interviewed. Half had been cared for by day care workers, the other half by their own mothers. It was found that there was no difference in their attitudes toward their parents - or their picture of who were their parents.

Belleville Nursery supervisor Mrs. M. J. Matergio agrees.

"There's no reason family relationships should change. The mother still retains the primary role in a child's life ..."

Or, as Fenella MacWhirter puts it, "With plenty of love and affection both at the babysitter's and from both parents for a couple of hours every night and on week-ends, I don't think Sarah is missing out on anything that she would gain if I were at home. Perhaps, if anything, both she and I are gaining."



Sliding Down

the slide at Quinte Day Care Centre Blair McGrath, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McGrath, with Annie Pearson, supervisor of the centre and Sean Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd. Day care centres looking after the children of working mothers have long waiting lists.

Broadcaster to Speak At UCW Luncheon

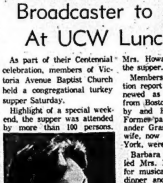
Highlight of a special week-end, the supper was attended by more than 100 persons.



NANCY EDWARDS

Mrs. Howard Hall convened the supper.

Members of the congregation report old friendships renewed as former members from Boston, Almont, Grimsby and Hamilton attended. Former pastor the Rev. Alexander Grant Sinclair and his wife, now of Palmyra, New York, were special guests.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Peoples of Belleville, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Donna Carol, to Warren Bruce Calbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Calbury of Belleville. The marriage will take place June 2 at St. Columba Presbyterian Church.

'Tearing Down the Skies' Teaches on Reserve

CAUGHNAWAGA, Que. (CP) — Her name is Kwaron-to-ia-kwen, or Tearing Down the Skies.

"But you may call me Esther," she says.

Esther Phillips is a Mohawk Indian who has lived on this reserve just south of Montreal since the day she was born 32 years ago and has considered living anywhere else. She teaches Indian children the Mohawk language.

Caughnawaga is a community where strictly defined traditions and roles lend comfort and security to a life that isn't always easy.

Friday nights, says Mrs. Phillips, the women stay home waiting for their men. About 75 per cent of the men are away all week, working on high steel construction in the United States, and they don't get home until late in the evening.

Saturday nights everyone gathers at the Legion Hall and the women catch up on the week's news. That's when they find out who fell off what steel construction and how.

Then on Sunday nights, the men leave again and the women settle down for another week on the reserve with the children.

From the outside, Caughnawaga can look like any small town, with its population of 4,500 living in ordinary houses.

Esther is amused by the Sunday afternoon curiosity seekers who visit the reserve.

"Sometimes I'm sitting on my porch when these people stop and ask me: 'Could you please tell us where the Indian reserve is?' And I say: 'You're on it. We're all Indians. And they have surprised looks on their faces and drive off."

But the reserve is not like any other community, she says. Her advice to young Indians is: "Stay—definitely stay. I'd never leave and the young Indians would never be happy living anyplace else, because we have a different way of life.

"We like to be in groups, together with our families. Even though a lot of my girlfriends are married to white men, they always come back to the reserve for the summer.

"It's one big party and there's such a close kinship among ourselves."

She shops in the downtown department stores but never uses credit and prefers to buy essentials on the reserve because they are cheaper.

Keeping the family home in good repair is important to the Phillips. When there is a job to be done they hire Indian workers because it is good for the community's economy.

It gets cold in Caughnawaga in winter. A biting wind cuts in low and hard from the St. Lawrence River and drives the snow high against the homes. Yet the main source of heat is an imposing ornate wood stove.

"I can't get rid of it," she says. "We like to retain a little of our old ways."

Until eight years ago she drew water from a garden pump, or fetched it with two pails and a yoke from the river.

She looks at the river now and says: "Just think, I used to swim there and all the women would get down and sit on its banks with their sandwiches and coffee. Now the white man has polluted that river. You can't even eat the fish. Those good times have gone—forever."

Successful Living
Self Expression Healthy

By DORIS CLARK

"It's like this, Doris. Either you steel yourself and go to the party with your mind made up and something cheerful and happy, or you weep. And nobody wants anyone around who is weeping all the time."

Completely devastated from the loss of her beloved companion, she gradually got the best of her grief. She decided that God would not have left her on this plane without a man with whom she had shared most thoughts for nearly 50 years, unless somebody needed her.

Now, nearly three years later, she exclaims over the terrific need people feel for someone to talk to. She lends herself to every need coming her way, and because she is a natural-born social worker she is able to work miracles in the lives of those who "just dropped in to talk."

Dear Doris: Although I am engaged to a very nice man I worry sometimes whether I have homosexual tendencies. This is because I admire a beautiful girl, and pictures of nude women; and then I am embarassed if anyone catches me at it.

Yet, women are beautiful, so what is wrong with admiring them? I was lucky to have a mother who taught me all about sex so that kids would not warp my view of it.

I have had friends and relatives who kissed you hello and held your hand, without making a big deal of it. — Puzzled About Myself.

Dear Puzzled: Oh, forget it! You are as normal as they come. We need more affectionate demonstrations between the sexes and between members of the same sex. Your mother kisses you, does n't she ?

Humans need the skin-to-skin contact - and we Canadians are a pretty constrictive lot. Look at the way the Italian Canadians enjoy hugging and kissing and laughing and crying together, at moments of high emotion. Self-expression is healthy.

Now don't go misquoting me!

Dear Doris: I married a man three years ago and lived with him until six weeks after my baby was born. I left him because he didn't support me and because he was so hard to get along with.

He threw me across the room shortly before I went into hospital. When he drove us home it was 25 below zero; he deliberately opened his window of the car. The baby developed pneumonia.

My lawyer tells me I do not have grounds for divorce, although he has been seen in public with other women. I am paying all his expenses. I will have to wait patiently for three years for a divorce and at the same time pay legal fees of $350 to the lawyer for nothing. — In A Jam.

Dear In A: A woman who walks out on her husband for reasons of mental or physical cruelty, or infidelity, can sue him for support for herself and any children. This might be worth paying a lawyer to obtain, since your husband would also have to pay costs of the action if you were successful.

This means separation, not divorce. Unless you can prove infidelity, the three-year waiting period still holds, after which divorce would be possible if your husband agreed. If he still contested divorce, though I can't imagine why he would, there would be another two years' wait.

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light. Send your letters care of this newspaper.)

Policemen Stabbed By Driver

VICTORIA (CP) — Three policemen were stabbed and a driver shot in the leg late Monday night after a car was stopped for a driving infraction in the suburb of Central Saanich, 10 miles north of here, police said early today.

None was in serious condition, hospital spokesmen said. The unidentified man who was shot was reported in "stable" condition.

A spokesman for the tiny Central Saanich police force said Chief Gelling and Sgt. Yuill had stopped a car that was moving erratically.

The two officers were stabbed, while driving him to headquarters.

In the scuffle, one of the police fired a shot which hit the man in the leg. A call for help went out on their radio and Constable Henderson, an auxiliary from the neighboring Saanich force, was first on the scene. He was also stabbed but helped to arrest the man nearby.

U.S. Subsidy Threat To Canadian Shipping

MONTREAL (CP) — The president of Canada Steamship Lines said Monday recent U.S. legislation providing financial incentives to shipowners, presents a "serious threat" to the Canadian Great Lakes shipping industry.

Louis R. Desmarais said the legislation, which provides for operational subsidies to U.S. shipowners carrying cargo between the U.S. and Canada, is "specifically designed to overcome the competitive advantage of the modern and more efficient Canadian fleets."

Mr. Desmarais told the annual meeting of Canada Steamship Lines a report by the Canadian transport commission, recommending immediate action, is being studied by the government.

Classes Sought

TORONTO (CP) — More than 4,000 parents would enroll their children in Italian-language classes were they available in elementary schools here, a survey of Toronto board of education reveals.

Another 3,050 asked for German-language classes, 2,350 for Spanish, 1,500 for Greek, 1,140 for Chinese and 900 for Portuguese.

Library Grants Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McNie, minister of colleges and universities, announced Monday that Ontario's 372 local, county and regional libraries will receive $13.8 million in provincial grants this year.

This represents an increase of 38.5 per cent, he said.

Basic grants to library boards are based on population, and Mr. McNie said they have been raised to $1.35 from 65 cents per capita.

Malaria Plagues Truce Team

SAIGON (Reuter) — A six-man team of international truce observers prepared today to pull out of an observation post in a Communist area, forged to leave because of an outbreak of malaria.

The pull-out means that there will be only one manned observer post in Viet Cong territory. That is at Ben Het, near the border with Laos and Cambodia.

Canadian sources on the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) said the team was expected to leave Duc Co, on the Cambodian border in the central highlands, some time during the day.

Since the post was established more than two months ago to oversee Communist arms resupply, seven ICCS members have been hit by malaria.

South Vietnamese command sources reported that the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government freed 322 South Vietnamese prisoners Monday at Quang Tri and in the central coastal province of Binh Dinh.

There had been doubts as to whether the prisoners—almost all civilians—would be set free.

Couple Jailed

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A Kitchener man and woman, raising five children, were sentenced Monday to 30 days in jail each for defrauding the city's welfare department of $2,300 over a two-year period.

The couple has five children, ranging in age from four to 11.

The committee was told that the flasher sequence at the seven two intersections could be automatically programmed through the city's traffic light control system.

Four Seasons Proposes Sharing of Parkette

tion of parkland east of the new Bay ridge Road — CPR overpass and directly north of the Four Seasons Hotel, could serve a dual purpose in the future if a current proposal is carried out.

The Four Seasons Hotel is proposing that it be allowed to use a portion of the now unused park property for night overflow parking in return for its contributing to the cost of an entrance road and parking lot.

The entrance road and parking lot would conform with an approved parks board design.

Also, the hotel owners are offering to contribute toward the purchase of trees to be planted on city-owned land immediately south of the hotel.

The hotel proposal was made to Major Robin Jeffrey who passed the request on to the parks board and city traffic committee for consideration.

At Monday's traffic meeting Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of parks said his board was already planning development of the small pie-shaped parks property.

Parks last week recommended that the city works department design the proposed roadway and parking lot, the design to include the cost of asphalt paving and lighting.

At Monday's traffic committee meeting, however, it was suggested that in the design of the park roadway, consideration should also be given to a new roadway leading to Morch Manufacturing.

The city and the CPR want to close the present Main Street crossing, but before this can be done, a new roadway leading from the old Bay Bridge Road to Morch's would be necessary.

Scab Threat Increased

PICTON — A mild winter has led to an increased threat of scab spore in Prince Edward County orchards this year.

Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist for the Ontario department of agriculture and food here, says scab spore development is now "two to three weeks ahead of time."

The scab spores are released by rainfall and usually a scab spore maturity of five per cent is expected. This year, because of a mild winter followed by frequent rainfalls, a 50 per cent level of maturity is predicted.

Mr. Cobbledick said once apple scab infection reaches an orchard, the farmer can spray to halt its progress. Some chemical treatment have a "kickback" meaning that they only destroy the existing infestations. Others must be applied before rainfalls to act as deterrents to table specialist.

"A kickback brings the infection back to point zero," explained the fruit and vegetable specialist.

He added that the moisture level in the county has not been injurious to crops to date.

Attempt Foiled

Council vs. PUC Battle Continues in Trenton

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Councillor John Boon last night lashed out at the Public Utilities Commission for trying to wiggle out of its agreement to turn over surplus revenue realized from sale of water to the Fraser Brothers industrial plant.

His reponse was to a letter from the commission, dated April 25.

This letter really says nothing," Councillor Boon said. "I'm disappointed in it and it's about time we held the PUC to their word," he said.

The letter, quoting the Public Utilities Act, stated it was the councils' prerogative to "request that all surplus funds, remaining after provisions have been made for the maintenance and operation of the utility, be turned over to the treasurer of the town. These funds then can be applied against any debenture debt incurred by the town in respect to capital expenditures required to improve and extend our water system.

Councillor Boon turned to a letter dated Jan. 15 from the PUC in which he said commissioners promised the same thing — to turn over surplus revenue. "It's just a way for them to get off the book," he said.

Heated controversy has arisen from the issue of supplying water and sewer services to the $1.5-million FBI plant now under way on Carrying Place Road. The PUC felt the town should pay for water services. The town doesn't see it that way.

No settlement has yet been reached.

Councillor Boon later reloaded his guns for another attack, this time based on PUC arguments that water rates shouldn't be raised to assist in supplying services to the new industry.

His comments were directly aimed at commissioner Charles Hilton, who several weeks ago took a firm stand that rates wouldn't be raised to aid industry. He later issued a statement forecasting increases as high as 50 per cent by next year.

A study of PUC accounts was ordered by council.

Town treasurer Brian Fagan presented his report that shows a projected PUC deficit this year amount to $70,000, totalling $346,000 by 1977 without including debentured expenses to provide $100,000 in water services to the plant. Mr. Fagan said "in my view, and my view alone, this would require at least a 20 per cent increase in water rates in 1974 to finance present water works commitments."

Capital projects for the PUC Councillor Boon at this point stated "since I've been on council I've heard the PUC is dedicated not to raise water services."

Commenting on Mr. Fagan's opinion that a 20 per cent hike would be necessary even without FBI services, the Trenton physician said "the public should be notified of the situation. It's good to see an objective report coming from this department," further charging "more adequate planning" could have been done in recent years.

Councillor Boon in recent weeks has repeated claims that if the PUC had increased rates gradually, ratepayers wouldn't have felt the burden that is expected to hit next year. As well, he says, increases would have helped pay off capital debt, thereby relieving annual interest rates.

Mayor Duncan McDonald, a member of the utilities commission for several years, took exception to Councillor Boon's stand.

"I don't think that was fair criticism," he retorted.

The mayor said the PUC had a five-year plan, but that unexpected servicing costs have made it necessary to raise rates despite attempts to hold the line.

The PUC letter states because of fluctuating peak daily water demands, the commission has been unable to establish a firm basis for metering the flow to the new fruit juice processing plant. Earlier the commission indicated this could be done much in the same manner as that for supplies of water to CFB Trenton.

Wooler Rd. Residents Want Trenton Water

TRENTON — William Lurcombe of 105 Wooler Road has a drinking problem — but it is related to water.

He doesn't have any and has had to resort to dipping into a nearby creek for his high water in most areas, Mr. Lurcombe's well has gone dry and although he's in the town of Trenton, he doesn't have water services.

Appearing before town council last night, he charged the lack of water services for him and other residents in the west end neighborhood have been the result of a "hassle between Murray Township and the town of Trenton."

"The people way live on the Wooler Road are just fed up," he said.

Mr. Larcombe claims taxes in the area have been raised to four times the annual $38 level before the area was annexed 10 years ago by the town from Murray Township.

"And for this we don't enjoy the amenities of the town," he added.

He did admit, however, that since annexation, street lighting and repairs municipally controlled garbage collection has been installed.

At one point in his address to council, Mr. Larcombe asked if it "wasn't reasonable for the residents of Wooler Road to have water services . . . for drinking as well as absent fire connections . . . at connecting costs?"

But Mayor Duncan McDonald advised him that town policy dictates if residents desire water service they can apply for it under local improvements at so much per foot partial payment. Alfing Hoornweg said after the meeting a survey 2 years ago listed the cost at an average $10 per foot.

To this Mr. Larcombe replied: "Local improvement is out of the question . . . this is a very high cost."

He claims residents were invited to a meeting in the town hall to discuss joining Trenton, but says there present "had no invitation to express an opinion".

"The implication was that we would get amenities from the town."

Mr. Larcombe's only other alternative, he says, is to spend between $500 and $600 to redrill his well. And even then, "because of the septic system there . . . the water from the well is not good. We never drank it, it was boiled," he said.

Council forwarded the matter to the public works department for consideration.

Firemen Kept Busy

TRENTON — Firemen here were kept hopping yesterday, but not to anything serious.

At 6:10 p.m. they extinguished a minor blaze in a deep fryer at Quinte Fish and Chips, 39 Dundas Street East.

At 6:32 p.m., while still at the take-out shop, they were called to the 3 Kerr Crescent residence of a Mr. Tuckaberry. Fire was contained in an oil space heater, with no damage to the house.

An hour later, at 7:45 p.m. fire in a car parked across from the fire hall at Scott's Chicken Villa was spotted. Floor matting was ablaze.

Fire in a truck saw them on the road again, this time at 8:21 p.m. to Carying Place Industries. Engine damage was slight from flames fire officials believe started after a backfire passed through the carburetor.

But small fires weren't all that kept the department busy.

At 7:10 p.m., someone reported youngsters on a raft on the Trent River were in trouble.

Firemen prepared to launch their rescue boat but spotted the boys safe on their rubber raft before they could get under way.

Town Land Sale Becoming Auction

TRENTON The town's proposal to sell 9.57 acres of industrial land north of Highway 401 seems to be taking on the proportions of an auction sale.

First, a group of local businessmen requested and received an option to purchase the land at $2,500 per acre. The town didn't want to make an outright sale until further considering the matter, and it agreed to an option. With $500 as down payment.

It has since been learned the businessmen are attempting to attract industry to the site for construction of combined hotel — motel dining lounge and respectable entertainment spot.

Now, Robert Armstrong, of 11 Marmora Street, has submitted a letter indicating interest in the site — at $1,000 an acre more than the group previously involved. And he covered his request with cash, a cheque for $1,000.

A consulting engineer, Mr. Armstrong didn't indicate his interest in the land, however at the Monday council meeting, he said he and three other businessmen are prepared "to develop the land as soon as possible."

He wouldn't elaborate further.

Following reading of the letter, council began considering the value of the site on a higher scale than that considered when the first offer was made.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said the land, "as commercial, is far more valuable than as industrial."

Councillor Peter DeGroot said he has been told the 9.57 acres is of exceptional quality." Councillor Ronald Price suggested before council makes a decision to service the land, it should first consider whether or not to sell, to whom, and on what basis: the going industrial price, or a higher commercial one.

The matter will be reviewed by the recently formed finance committee of council.

Authority To Meet

TRENTON — A full authority meeting of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority has been called for Thursday, May 3.

It will be held in the board room of the Trenton Community Gardens, starting at 8 p.m.

Hasty Pees Ready For Big Weekend

Pride for the Regiment will be the emphasis this weekend at the Quinte Armouries and Prince Edward Regiment hold its open house and Mess Dinner.

The Saturday night dinner marks the annual general meeting of the Regimental Officers' Association at which Maj. R. F. Wodehouse, curator of the regiment's Canadian War Museum, National Museum of Man in Ottawa, will be guest speaker.

Maj. Wodehouse is bringing with him a collection of paintings that especially relate to the battle honors won by the regiment in Italy during World War II. It will complement a variety of military artifacts dating back to the militia days of last century and the newly completed Regimental Museum.

Both displays will be on view to the public until May 22 and at A Company's open day on Sunday, May 6. From 1:30 p.m. the armory will be open to visitors for displays of training and tours of the museum and art collections.

A recruiting booth for students who want to enroll in the local summer employment program will be in operation, and young men will be encouraged to enlist in the regiment. The regiment's latest role has been to support the Airborne Regiment. It is the only militia unit to be so tasked.

They're at It Again

Barring some of the unforseen difficulties that set road completion further and further into the future last fall, a spokesman for the City Engineer's office said today Bridge Street should be ready for Wednesday evening traffic. The road would have been completed today had there not been a breakdown at the asphalt plant. Cost of placing the permanent asphalt layer on the roadway is included in the contract that was to have been completed last November.

Petes Take Lead

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes erupted for three goals in the final period, snapping a tie and defeating Toronto Marlboros 6-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff action before a crowd of 4,729 Monday night.

The win gave the Petes a 5-3 lead in the eight-point series. The fifth game is Wednesday in Toronto and the sixth game here Friday.

Rick Chinnick, Jr.mJohnston, Bill Eve, Jim Jones, Doug Jarvis and Colin Campbell scored for the Petes who led 3-2 after 40 minutes.

Ouchar tied the score at 3-3, 38:36 of the third period and Jones, standing in front of the Toronto net, banged in his own rebound less than a minute later.

Jarvis scored with less than three minutes to play, then Campbell scored into an empty net.

Peterborough outshot Tor-onto 49-39.

Kharlamov, Bobrov Will Attend Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran forward Valery Kharlamov and coach Vsevolod Bobrov of the Soviet Union's national hockey team will be attending the Memorial Cup junior hockey playoffs here next week, it was announced Monday.

Bobrov and Kharlamov will also attend a special Memorial Cup luncheon next Tuesday as guests of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA).

Kharlamov was one of Russian's forwards in last fall's historic eight-game series against Team Canada. He also played a key role in the Russian's drive to the world championship this year.

The Memorial Cup playoffs for the national major junior A hockey championship begin next Monday with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League meeting the winner of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finalseries.

Peterborough Petes and Toronto Marlboros are currently engaged in the OHA final with Peterborough leading the eight-point series, 5-3.

Medicine Hat Tigers, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, are the other club in the round-robin tournament.

Allen Came Close To Being Suspended

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Keith Allen, general manager of Philadelphia Flyers, came close to being suspended this season because the club had incurred so many penalties, The Inquirer says.

"I didn't tell him he would be suspended," Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, told The Inquirer in Montreal Monday. "But I reminded him that action would be taken. And I have the authority to suspend him."

A confrontation between Allen, club owner Ed Snider and Campbell was during a game in which the Flyers set a league record of 1,754 minutes for penalties assessed during a season and in which the Flyers set a league record of 1,754 minutes for penalties assessed during a season to referees' decisions.

The previous record of 1,371 was set in 1970-71 by Vancouver Canucks.

"When you continually attack the officials, you are attacking the structure of the league," Campbell was quoted as saying. He explained his complaint was not the number of penalties the Flyers received, but their conduct after each infraction was called.

Campbell, noting the Flyers' "lack of misconduct penalties," said he had been receiving numerous complaints from league referees on abuse handed them by members of the Flyers.

Twins Top Terriers

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Thunder Bay Twins skated to a 3-1 victory over Orillia Terriers Monday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five Eastern Allan Cup final.

The Twins took a first-period lead when Barry Hogan's rebound was accidentally banged into Terrier net but Orillia tied it up early in the second when Mike Draper converted a pass from Gary Milroy on a two-on-one break.

However, before the period ended, Dave Donato scored what proved to be the winner, tipping in a goalmouth pass from teammate Dave Natiak. Dwight Sitrerit's counter late in the final frame put the game out of reach. A crowd of 4,948 watched the game.

Thunder Bay outshot the visitors 45-23 and took three of 12 minors in the game. Each team took two majors.

Fourth game in the series will be played here Wednesday night, with the fifth game here Thursday, if necessary.

Hawks Not Being Sold Short

The 8-3 Canadiens win in the first of the Stanley Cup final here Sunday wasn't indicative of the play.

Canadiens' defenceman Serge Savard said Monday the Montreal skored while we were shorthanded.

"As soon as we got that two-goal lead you could see they didn't hold much hope. But it didn't last as easily has been 4-4. Then it might have been a different game.

Savard admitted, however, he wasn't all that surprised that Montreal had taken early command of the series despite two less-than-artistic series against Buffalo Sabres and Philadelphia Flyers.

"After all, we know that Chicago is a good team. And that, if nothing, is a good reason for being ready."

The Canadiens are prepared mentally for the showdown, but they were hard-hit physically in the early moments of Sunday's game when veteran defenceman Jacques Laperriere emerged from a collision with the Chicago net with a broken nose.

"The left, ranger blocker and the broken nose operated on Sunday night and coach Scotty Bowman said he probably will be next Sunday before he could return.

In the meantime, Bowman has an experienced rookie, Phil Roberto, ready to go. Murdoch filled in for Laperriere for most of the Philadelphia semi-final series and was one of the Canadiens' steadiest performers in an otherwise dismal series.

And hockey watchers can look for a matchup again between Montreal goalie Ken Dryden and heavy-shooting Dennis Hull of Chicago.

Hull, left winger on the Hawks' high-scoring line with Pit Martin and Jim Pappin, almost single-handedly disposed of New York Rangers in the semi-finals.

The 30-year-old bullet-shooter connected for five of his six playoff goals going into the finals against New York. He was also instrumental in setting up the play Sunday in which Dryden scored 32 seconds into the game.

Then Bowman began his famous line-juggling acts, assigning Claude Larose to shadow Hull along with four lines. The veteran right winger did such a thorough job that the usually-placid Hull gesturing threats of retaliation.

"He probably doesn't like my checking," Larose said. "But I stay on him. And he's a good player who doesn't take cheap shots.

Larose was one Canadien who felt the Hawks were still a threat when Montreal held a 5-3 lead but "they opened up and we scored a few goals."

"But that line with Hull is really a super-good one," he added. "They can really pass the puck . . . and they're pretty quick guys, too, you know.

trealers are looking for a much different game tonight when the best-of-seven series resumes at 8:05 p.m. EDT.

"Most of the guys don't think we won the game that easily," the angular defenceman said. "Chicago just had a bad night.

"They did pretty well for 50 minutes. You can bet they'll be more aggressive tomorrow night."

He noted that of the 10 games Montreal lost all year—a National Hockey League record—Chicago scattered three of those setbacks in five meetings between the two clubs.

"We just got the breaks at the right time," Savard said. "We scored on our chances and got to go ahead. Then Pete (Mahovlich) scored with the shorthanded goal and Frank (Pancho) Martin, trainer of Kentucky Derby contender Shecky Greene, and assistant trainer Lucien Laurin, one with respect and the other with anger.

Martin, upset by a published remark of Laurin's, feels Secretariat is the horse to beat in next Saturday's Derby despite his impressive 2½ length Wood Memorial. And he is confident that Sham can beat Secretariat and any other three-year-old in the Derby.

"I know him 15, 16 years," Martin said Monday of Laurin. "But after that remark in the paper I don't want to be a friend of his. I never made a remark about him. He called me a thief. I didn't call him a thief."

In a story published before the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct April 21, Laurin was quoted as saying Secretariat wouldn't lose "unless they steal the race."

Martin felt Laurin was saying Sham couldn't win without help and he became so upset that he

Forum Monday while the Hawks continued to take a low-key approach to the series by holding an optional skating session as coach Billy Reay rested many of his veterans.

One who would have preferred practicing was Stan Mikita, the middle finger of his right hand doubled in size by bandages and swelling.

The finger was slashed to the tendon when Mikita was crashed to the boards by Montreal's Jim Roberts late in the game. Reay described the injury as possibly serious enough to keep Mikita out of tonight's lineup.

Looks Like Toronto Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Pat Paterson, general manager of Montreal Royals of Major League Softball Inc., a new professional fastball league, said Toronto will not compete in the seven-team league this season.

Paterson said that while "it's not official yet," it was likely that a franchise from Chatsworth, Tenn., would take Toronto's place.

He said the Toronto club had trouble getting players out to its camp because of a ruling that any player who plays pro must sit out a year before regaining amateur status.

"Not only that," he said. "There are some good leagues around Toronto, in Oshawa and Burlington. We don't have that problem here."

Toronto was supposed to open its season in St. Louis Friday and play their home opener May 18 against Montreal.

Defence Key For the Jets

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets' defence has been shoring up and tighten up defensively for the rest of their best-of-seven World Hockey Association finals with New England Whalers.

With the second contest set Wednesday and Thursday, playing coach Bobby Hull of Winnipeg will be putting the emphasis on fundamental, defensive hockey with a watchful eye to "the breaks."

Commenting on the Whalers' 7-2 win Sunday in the series opener in Boston, Hull said:

"It was like Chicago trying to skate with Montreal. They just didn't do it and win. They (Chicago) have to adjust and so do we.

"We can't skate with the Whalers, so we have to play tight defensive hockey and look for the breaks," he added. "We gambled too much and got caught in the first period.

The Jets will be starting Ernie Wakely of Winnipeg in goal in the nets the only time Winnipeg downed the Whalers in six previous meetings this season.

Wakely refused to knock Joe Daley who had a rough night Sunday in the Winnipeg nets.

"He'll have to stop playing this Horatius-at-the-bridge kind of hockey, thinking the goaltenders will always bail us out."

Veteran forward Tommy Williams of New England was provoked by the Jets' dismal performance in Boston.

Sham's Trainer Is Confident

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Frank (Pancho) Martin, trainer of Kentucky Derby contender Sham, and Lucien Laurin, assistant trainer and trainer, respectively, of Secretariat, one with respect and the other with anger.

Martin, upset by a published remark of Laurin's, feels Secretariat is the horse to beat in next Saturday's Derby despite his impressive 2½ length Wood Memorial. And he is confident that Sham can beat Secretariat and any other three-year-old in the Derby.

"I know him 15, 16 years," Martin said Monday of Laurin. "But after that remark in the paper I don't want to be a friend of his. I never made a remark about him. He called me a thief. I didn't call him a thief."

John Starr Picks Secretariat to Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Secretariat, Sham and Our Native, three top Kentucky Derby contenders, will battle for the same barn. And so is La Prevoyante, a Montreal-owned filly who might have given the colts a real run for their money in the Derby, but won't.

"There are so many filly races that there's no sense in trying the colts," trainer John Starr said at Churchill Downs Monday.

He was never tempted to run her in the Derby! The other man (owner Jean-Louis Lepercq) might have been, but I wasn't."

So La Prevoyante, the 1972 two-year-old champion and runner-up to Secretariat for Horse of the Year, will run in the Kentucky Oaks Friday, a day before the Derby. La Prevoyante was Canada's Horse of the Year.

The last filly to run in the Derby was Silver Spoon, who finished fifth in 1959.? The only one ever to win it was Regret in 1915.

La Prevoyante, unbeaten in four races this year, had a "bad" debut and then won an allowance race at Keeneland but was injured. She returned in the races on opening day at the Fair Grounds Saturday and won the La Troienne Stakes.

"She ran the race practically the way of unbeaten filly," Starr said. "She only had one work."

After the Oaks, La Prevoyante will be pointed for the Queen's Plate, Canada s premier three-year-old race, June 20 at Woodbine in Toronto. In it she will face colts.

Starr, however, who has won three Queen's Plates, one with a filly, is not worried about Prevoyante's ability to race against male opposition. It's just that he feels the Derby is not the time.

Carlton Not Koufax

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Not the next Sandy Koufax," Steve Carlton." The wo case closed.

But the comparisons coming, as Carlton, already well ahead of his remarkable pi of last year when he won games, bids to become the latest League's first 20-game winner in 40 years. Dizzy Di was 30-7 for St. Louis Cardi in 1934.

Coaches Are Critical Of OMHA's Timing

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

The majority of the coaches and managers of Belleville's Ontario Minor Hockey Association all-star teams were dissatisfied with the governing body's decree shifting the city from a double A to a triple A system.

Though the change meant little during regular season play, come OMHA playoff time, Belleville was forced to play in the triple A division, thereby lessening their chances at making a winning showing.

Most coaches felt that the changeover should have been forestalled until the beginning of the 1973-74 hockey season, instead of coming at it did in the middle of the current season.

"The OMHA should tell you right in the fall, instead of just before playoff time," said Robb Burrowes, coach of the Blake Kerr Imperial midgets. "That way, you can gear your practices up that much sooner in the year. If you know you're going to be in quicker company, you prepare for that quicker company."

Though the announcement of a category change generally comes after the OMHA classification meeting held before Christmas, Kinsmen Club bantam major manager Ron Hutchinson felt that midseason "doesn't seem the proper time to do this. It's pretty rough on the teams.".

Jack McBride, manager of the McInroy-Haines bantam minors, agreed that the announcement of a classification change before the 1973-74 season "would have been the intelligent approach. That way, we would have scheduled more games against triple A teams such as Kingston, Peterborough and Oshawa.

"I don't think the OMHA should have dropped this into our laps midway through the season," said Ted Soule, coach of the Towers Food City novice majors. "I don't think that we're completely ready for the shift.

"Oshawa and Peterborough have been triple A for years. They've got a great system. Now our own method of teaching hockey has to be better.

"In that sense, it's good for hockey in Belleville. We've got to improve our system to produce players of higher calibre if we want to be competitive with the bigger cities."

The centres of Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston "have to come up with better hockey than we can," said Gord McInroy, coach of the Rollins Construction peewee majors. "Oshawa teams draw their players from 30,000 more people than we have, that definitely makes a difference.

"Not that we could have won more games if the OMHA hadn't put us into triple A, but we would have had a better chance if we had known at the beginning of the season."

Taking into account the population and the ice facilities that the other cities have, Imperials coach Robb Burrowes felt that Belleville should not be triple A.

"I don't see why there can't be another category — double X or something. It's not fair for Trenton to play us, just as it's not fair for us to come up against Oshawa.

"It's like playing in the American Hockey League for years and then being switched into the NHL. There is a difference."

Top Athletes In Road Race

Gerard Farell provides the leadership in both performance and training for the Quinte Secondary cross country team according to coach Mike Hall, but the 15-year-old hopes to provide a different sort of leadership tomorrow in the Ken Colling Road Race.

Farrell won the 4.2 mile run last year and hopes to repeat the performance in the 25th annual race starting at 3:30 p.m. at BCI.

"I would say that Gerard has an excellent chance of winning," said Hall. "but that's without knowing what the condition of the other runners is. John Sheppard (from Quinte)

Pitchers Take Note

Pitching rules as laid down by the Ontario Amateur Softball Association will be followed to the letter in the Belleville Commercial Softball League this season.

Team representatives agreed on this matter at a Monday night meeting. Umpires will be instructed to "call it by the book" when it comes to dealing with pitchers who deliver the ball illegally.

Al Tebworth has been appointed league statistician and the teams have been allotted practice times at the Glenlee Park.

Efforts are being made to have the Richmond Hill Dynes in Belleville this summer for an exhibition game with a Commercial League all-star squad.

SPITZ TAKES PLUNGE

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (Reuter) — Mark Spitz, who won seven gold medals for his performance in the Olympic pool prepared for another plunge Monday—this time into the sea of matrimony. Spitz, 23, who has become a teen-age idol and television actor since his Olympic feats, obtained a marriage licence with Susan Ellen Weyner, a 21-year-old University of Southern California co-ed and model. They will wed Sunday.

is looking for the win. Tom DeSilva of Napanee can't be counted out either.

Wayne Bulak, cross country coach at Napanee and District Secondary, feels that DeSilva is going to give the five or six good runners from the 60-odd entered a solid run for the money.

Bulak mentioned 16-year-old Sheppard as a strong contender as well as Quinte's Ray brothers. "Trenton's Bruce Lowry and Picton's Larry Fenton are also good long distance runners."

DeSilva missed the Ken Colling race are also good as a result of an ankle injury suffered at the beginning of the cross country season. He was unable to train properly according to the Napanee coach and decided not to enter the gruelling race.

DeSilva will have his work cut out for him however. He will be up against "the key point on our cross country team" as Hall called Farrell.

"Gerard is one of the main reasons why our cross country team has done so well in COSSA. He placed eighth in the all-Ontarios as well as placing in the top 15 in the Canada Cross Country."

Tournament Win For Wilson Tykes

Chris Coates and Tim Mulroney had the Applewood goalposts all set in their eye and it paid off for the Wilson Concrete tykes at the Mississauga Paperweight Tournament this weekend.

Both Coates and Mulroney scored two goals to lead Wilson to a 5-0 victory over the Toronto area club in their third game of the tourney. Bryan Beer provided Belleville with the other goal.

The Applewood club didn't have more than one or two shots on the Belleville net according to team manager Peter Anderson. However, Applewood was no pushover. The Toronto club defeated St. Benedict's in the single elimination tourney to earn the berth against Belleville. St. Benedict's had delivered a 4-1 defeat to the Downview Boys' Club, the team Wilson defeated 6-4 in the two game total goal first round competition last weekend.

Wilson will meet Oshawa in further action on the A side of the 64 tourney next Saturday.

Third baseman Dale Akey comes up with a backhand grab of sharply hit groundball during Ellis Juniors' weekend practice. Players and coach Don Wood found the cool weather annoying but got in a good workout in preparation for Commercial Softball League season which opens May 21.

Cool Weather Hurts City Softball Teams

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Cold, damp weather is making things miserable for teams preparing for the coming softball season in Belleville. A survey of Commercial League teams revealed all clubs are encountering the same problem. Team spokesmen are complaining because it has been almost impossible to hold any type of workouts to date.

While practice sessions have been few and far between, some clubs have already begun player signings and those teams that haven't expect to see more of last season's players back for another go.

Speaking for the Rollins Construction team, Ralph Plane advises that four returnees have signed for the 1973 campaign. They are pitcher Ken DeMille, catcher-outfielder Carl Boomhower, third baseman Wayne McTaggart and shortstop Paul Goodfellow.

Bardon Supplies' Perry Reddick has six players signed and promises the club will "give it a good try again this year". Reddick's team was known as Globe Hotel in 1972.

Back with the club for another season are pitchers Earl Foster and Bill Harrison, catcher Lionel Gorsline, first baseman Gary Johnson, third slicker Teddy Wallwork and utility man Bill Dewey.

Trenton Augee Men's Wear, a new entry in the league this season, is the only other club to announce signing. Club spokesman Wayne Drake while noting that "it's been too cool to get down to serious practices as yet", reports Larry Moran has been appointed manager of the team.

Trenton players signed include Al Ferguson who has been having problems with his throwing arm and may be moved from an outfield position to the infield. Catcher Dennis Orr, pitcher Chris Long, utility infielder Dave Henry and outfielder Steve Barker are all back with the team.

Ellis Junior Signings

Ellis Juniors of the Commercial Softball League have a new manager in Rob Preston. Ellis coach Don Wood announced late Monday that Preston has signed with the club.

Wood also revealed that third baseman Dale Akey and catcher-outfielder Glen Corbon are the first two players to sign with toe club this season.

Devolin Motors and Howard and Robert Printing have not started signing players as yet. Neither has Don Wood, coach of the Ellis Juniors although he had his squad out for a chilly workout Sunday and expects to begin signing this week.

Bill Shaw looks for most of last season's players back again with Devolin Motors and it's the same story with Howard and Robert Printing, according to Bob Cummings.

"I expect Don Dolan and Doug Murray will be handling the team this year," said Cummings who does not plan to get involved to the extent he did last season.

Big news from Devolin's is Shaw's announcement that Phil Loft has agreed to coach the club.

"Phil's been away from the game at the senior level for seven or eight years now and we're certainly happy to have him with us," said Shaw.

"Loft was a very successful coach with Point Anne Cementmen teams a few years back.

Two Wins Each For Newman and Hie

Hie reined Dorada Dale and Dorada Dale Hanover to the wire in the seventh and 10th respectively.

In his third race, Carmen's Image paid the highest win price for a $2 wager with a $30 return. John Donald Cleo made the wire for the win in the first race while Moorreland's Dusty captured second. Meadow Chrisan crossed the wire in the fourth, Demon Frost beat out the field in the fifth while Kildeer Valley won the eighth race.

At Frontenac Downs Sunday, Hugh Wemp was the only driver to score a pair of wins on the program card. Wemp drove Richard Scott to victory in the second and came back in the final to win with Zorro Hanover.

Presto Heel won his first race of the season for Fenelon Falls owner Vincent Gemmetti in the third race. In the seventh, Ed Wood drove Tyne to his second straight win at the Kingston raceway.

The lavishly-paid eighth race saw Andy Johnnie, driven by Ken Newton, beat Prima Bjasson and Canadian Killean to the wire.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your judgment of financial probabilities is tested, and may be found fallacious. Something that has worked before may not now.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Finding misplaced objects is one of the stronger possibilities. Be willing to fit impulse into a reasonable context, and succeed today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Heavy chores will be yours for a time, including some that your friend should be doing. Conserve resources for a more propitious moment.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be of good cheer, take friendly initiative for both business cooperation and social adventures.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Stretch your tolerance and diplomacy to the limits: you have much to gain. Get current progress noted in some sort of record.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In the course of events, money is paid or pledged in significant quantities. Exercise due care in negotiations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Decisions are difficult on many issues today. Make sure your resources are readily available for application.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stick with what you know and think you can use, rather than casual experiment or trusting luck.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Business and domestic affairs tend to high costs, unnecessary moves, false starts. Younger people upset your plans with last minute crisis.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Consider what you are expecting of friends and family, realize they can't quite match your patterns. Enjoy what progress has been achieved.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Consider the needs of all concerned when you plan special events, find a happy medium. Be sociable, extend invitation.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): If you concentrate on details, complete your regular work promptly, then all else falls nicely into place. Emotional expression is quite satisfying.

Tweed Personals

Phoebe B. Kendall of RR 1, Cloyne, had four pieces of ceramics accepted for display at the Artist 73 held in Belleville earlier this month (April) at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium. Only six items were allowed to be submitted in the show for visual arts by any one person. Mrs. Kendall received honorable mention for her ceramic screen.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Goyette of Carlsbad Springs, Ontario, recently spent a few days with her parents, and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Webster and Lowell, of Tweed.

Mrs. Danny Brinson of Tweed attended the annual District Convention of the National Farmers' Union at Belleany, Ontario, earlier this month (April).

Mrs. Jane Genereaux and Miss Marion Kenny both of Toronto, spent the Easter weekend with Miss Mabel Kenny and Wallace Kenny in Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Neill and family of BelAire, Maryland, are spending some time with her mother, Mrs. John Gehan, Arthur Street, Tweed, and with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. O'Neill, of Geddes Street, Belleville.

Let's say you're West, defending against South's game contract. You trump, and lead the jack of spades, won by South with the ace.

Declarer plays the three of clubs, on which you follow low, and dummy wins with the queen. South then cashes all his hearts and clubs, scoring nine tricks, and it becomes evident that you could have stopped declarer by rising with the ace of clubs at trick two and switching to the king and another diamond.

If you are not inclined to be self-critical, you might dismiss the hand pronto and go on to the next deal. You could say that this type of defense is easy enough when you see all four hands, but not so easy when you see only two.

However, if you study the matter objectively, you find that going up with the ace and shifting to the K-5 of diamonds is not as crazy as it seems. As a matter of fact, it is the only method of defense that holds water at all.

It is clear from the bidding and South's play at trick two that he can ruff three heart tricks at will. He can't be missing the ace or queen or he would be tackling hearts instead of clubs. He is furthermore known to have three spade winners.

South therefore has eight ready tricks and is busy looking for a ninth. Your only chance to stop him is to grab the ace of clubs and shift to a diamond, hoping to hit partner with four or five diamonds headed by the A-Q-10.

The odds are nearly against finding East with this precise holding, but that is the only real chance you have to stop the contract.

Tomorrow: It's ice cold.

Air Pollution Down

MONTREAL (CP) — A reduction in the amount of atmospheric sulphur dioxide has been achieved in downtown Montreal since 1969, Jean Marier, director of the air purification service, said one of the objectives in 1969 was to achieve a 40 percent reduction in sulphur dioxide by the winter of 1972-73. "We've actually exceeded this goal by a small margin," he said.

Erosion of Cervix Like Skin Scrape

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am three months pregnant and have an erosion of the cervix. My doctor says he cannot do anything about the erosion because I am pregnant.

I also have a fungus infection for which I am using suppositories. He said the fungus infection may occur several times throughout my pregnancy because of the erosion.

If the erosion is going to cause repeated infections, should the erosion be corrected? Why can't it be treated during pregnancy? Will having the erosion be dangerous for the baby? —Mrs. A.B.

It is not dangerous for the baby—but trying to cauterize or remove the erosion while you are pregnant could be irritating to the uterus, so your doctor is quite right in not wanting to do anything about it now. It can be treated readily enough after the baby is born.

As to whether the erosion is causing the outbreaks of fungus infection—well, I have my doubts. Fungus infections are common during pregnancy (and also in women who are taking birth control pills).

So just accept your doctor's advice. The important thing is to see that the baby is healthy and safely born.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a severe case of colitis, and the third year of living with it almost drives me out of my mind. The doctor tells me to try to adjust to it and live with it. I have taken every pill on the market, it seems. Last year was in the hospital three weeks and ten on a blood diet.

The diet seems of greater importance than the medication, but I still can't decide who agrees with me and what does not. I am 5 feet, 4 inches and 15 times a day.—R.R.

When your doctor urged you to adjust to it, I'd say what he was trying to say was that your emotional attitude has a lot to do with the trouble going on and on.

I grant that colitis isn't precisely "all in your head," but you make use of diet and medication, and many are patient, be can manage to turn his thoughts to other things and not constantly dwell on how sore he's going to need the bathroom again, usually finds that the troubles dwindle.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son-in-law, 28, is bothered almost daily with heartburn and indigestion. He will vomit at times on getting up in the morning and sometimes at other times of the day or night. He does not indulge in alcohol or overindulge in food.

He refuses to go to the hospital for tests or even to a doctor. He knows I am writing to you for help, and a half years ago when he was applying for a job, on company refused to hire him because of a rupture. I wonder if that could cause the above trouble.—Mrs. E.D.

I can't see how the rupture would have anything to do with it—but I just plain don't understand why he doesn't go to the doctor and find out what is wrong. At 28, he could very well have an ulcer.

Theatre Guild Ending Year of Innovation

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Theatre Guild brings to a finale its finest of many seasons May 30 with Toshouse of the August Moon.

When cast and crew bring Toshouse to maturity and present it to the local, sometimes temperamental audience, they'll know they have come through one of the most daring, arduous and successful seasons the rattling, old Pinnacle Playhouse has ever enjoyed.

With success still reverberating in the rafters from last year's final piece, She Stoops to Conquer, the guild took the risk of betting on a long shot — amateur directors.

The Price, a somewhat melancholy commentary of family intermingling, was the opening curtain to the current season and was played to 80 per cent houses.

The Price was a play that kept prop personnel hunting for more than a month for a full-size harp and demanded actors to win the audience by temperament and emotion rather than by well-used jokes.

After the heating bills were paid and a few light bulbs were replaced the guild had made about $3.

Still playing the hunch that Belleville was ready for the novel and the unique, the guild plunged into Comedy Bizarre.

A bright change of pace from The Price and a lot cheaper to produce, the guild played to 82 per cent houses and after paying the bills, made $200.

With two strong productions in the scrapbook, the guild was ready for the most artistically strenuous piece of the season, the epic, Mother Courage.

Never had the guild attempted a production like this of such mammoth proportions. Actors labored through excruciatingly long passages and songs, musicians battled to follow sheet music in a tailor-made cubby hole high above the stage and special effects crews plowed through lighting cues, film strips and recordings, to make Mother Courage go.

There were rough spots but the audience didn't mind, because the audiences kept coming to fill the Pinnacle Playhouse every single production night.

The most expensive play of the season, it brought $300 clear profit to the guild. More important perhaps than profit was the array of new faces flikering through the ranks of the guild's old guard.

Ted Bairstow, president of the guild, says this is where the payoff is, in the new talent that has fortified the ranks.

"This year we've explored all kinds of plays. Directors have directed the way they wanted to. We've given the audience variety and artistry and kept them happy. That is the success.

"We're not as popular as hockey," said Mr. Bairstow reflecting on the nearly complete season. "We not only exist, but do damn good stuff."

No one knows what Toshouse of the August Moon will turn out like but it will be the end of the season.

In some ways the play will be a double goodbye, marking the end of the run for both the guild and Director Bairstow.

Mr. Bairstow, the guild's professional director of a year ago and president for this year, is stepping back.

Next year it will be all amateur direction, he says. There is no looking back.

"Each of the plays this year was a triumph in its own right," he said. "They were all successful in their own ways."

Toshouse, now in preliminary rehearsal, comes to the theatre under the direction of Mr. Bairstow May 30. Reservations and further information can be obtained by calling The Pinnacle Playhouse.

The case drew widespread attention when the comedian angrily reported the car missing and had his son Andrew arrested on the misdemeanor charge.

NEW YORK (AP) — How does debonair Fred Astaire of movies of the 1930s and 1940s compare with the real Fred Astaire?

"Right on the nose," said the real Fred Astaire at a news conference Monday afternoon.

Astaire came from California to be honored by the film society of Lincoln Centre Monday evening.

About top hat and tails, his traditional movie dancing costume, he says: "I haven't worn them for years. I don't like them."

Viet Cong Blamed

Truce Copters Survive Shots

R. G. KLEINDIENST H. R. HALDEMAN

JOHN DEAN J. D. EHRLICHMAN

QUANG TRI (CP) — Two peace keeping helicopters flew into a blaze of small arms and anti aircraft fire today as they began a carefully pre-arranged flight over Viet Cong territory in South Vietnam below the demilitarized zone.

The aircraft, carrying full crews and four members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), managed to return to their base here about five minutes after takeoff without damage.

"This settles it," said a distraught Indonesian member of the ICCS. "It's just a matter of time until there's a major disaster."

Maj. Frank Bulmer of Toronto, one of the ICCS personnel aboard, said as he stepped from one of the helicopters: "It shakes you a bit. At first we thought it was mechanical failure, but it didn't take long to figure out what was happening."

Carl Fox of Kansas City, an American civilian co-pilot on one of the helicopters, said: "These guys must be lousy shots; but we were lucky, damn lucky."

The aircraft were en route to pick up the remains of one of two helicopters shot down April 7, along with survivors of that crash who had returned to inspect the wreckage.

Geoff Charlebois of Montreal, senior Canadian external affairs officer at the ICCS's Hue headquarters, said after observing the incident: "The fire is not likely to have come from the RVN (South Vietnamese) side of the (Thach Han) river. It seemed to come from the north (Viet Cong) side."

Watching the whole incident from the South Vietnamese side of the river, it seemed certain that the fire came from the other side.

Observers on the scene said the firing came mainly from AK 47 automatic rifles and 50-calibre anti-aircraft weapons.

Charlebois said the flight was one of the most carefully organized that the ICCS has carried out in its three-month existence.

Quang Tri is situated on the east side of the Thach Han River, a dividing line between Viet Cong and South Vietnamese-held territory in this area in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

The original plan called for the two helicopters to fly west across the river and continue about 14 miles to Go Linh for the recovery operation.

After ferrying Canadian Press and CBC reporters to Quang Tri from Hue earlier today, the pilots were briefed on their mission and took off.

They circled to a pre-arranged altitude of 3,000 feet before heading north and appeared to have almost crossed Thach Han before the shooting began, with roughly a two-minute burst of automatic fire, followed by another minute or two of steady firing culminating in several heavy blasts which experts believed to have come from anti-aircraft guns.

Fox and one of the pilots, D. B. Riley, said they were definitely on the North Vietnamese side of the Thach Han when the firing began.

Canadian Forces personnel here were in radio contact with both the aircraft and their colleagues at Gio Linh, and ordered the helicopters, flying within an approved path about 2½ miles wide, to return to base when the firing showed no signs of stopping.

The firing stopped as soon as the helicopters began re-crossing the river to Quang Tri.

High School Teachers' Head Says Mass Walkout Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial meetings on educational spending might lead to a mass walkout by the province's 33,000 high school teachers, the incoming president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation (OSSTF) said Tuesday.

Speaking to about 1,000 North York members of OSSTF at a private meeting, Douglas Dinsmore said he was powerless to mobilize teachers in province-wide protests until he assumes office June 1.

"How would it look if 33,000 teachers across the province go out? That's what it is coming to."

Almost 33,000 high school teachers employed by the province's public school boards are represented by the OSSTF. Altogether Ontario has about 103,000 working teachers.

Following Mr. Dinsmore's comments, the teachers voted to launch a mass protest march on Queen's Park. The demonstration is to be held outside school hours and is to consist of teachers, trustees, parents and students.

North York OSSTF members will distribute a questionnaire on Friday seeking the opinions of all members concerning possible protests ranging from letter-writing to mass resignations.

Lebanese Battle Guerrillas

BEIRUT (CP) — Lebanese troops supported by tanks fought a pitched street battle today near a big Palestinian refugee camp on the outskirts of Beirut.

Witnesses reported a heavy exchange of fire between soldiers around the camp and armed men believed to be Palestinian guerrillas.

The clash started after army units took up positions around the sprawling refugee camp this morning and began checking the papers of everybody going in and out. A number of people were reported detained.

Sources said the move was ordered after an army sergeant and a corporal were kidnapped by armed men at different points in the city.

Nixon Changes Advisors

Spiro Agnew Is Slated To Take Aides' Place

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is said to be considering an expanded role for Vice-President Spiro Agnew now that two top aides have left because of the Watergate scandal.

The president met in the Oval Office with Agnew Tuesday discussing the vice-president's new responsibilities. What they will be is expected to be announced shortly.

A restructuring of the White House staff, made necessary by the resignations Monday of chief of staff H. R. Haldeman and top domestic adviser John Ehrlichman, also was discussed with Agnew and at a 33-minute meeting with the cabinet.

A White House source said: "We can assume that the subject dealt with the future more than such things as Watergate."

A participant in the cabinet meeting said Kenneth Cole, executive director of the domestic council, will take over some of the duties handled by Ehrlichman and eventually may replace him. It was considered likely that Haldeman's duties would be taken over in part by the office of management and budget.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were seen leaving the White House Tuesday carrying stacks of documents, even as the FBI mounted a round-the-clock guard in offices containing Watergate-related files.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said FBI agents checked everything removed by the two resigned aides.

White House sources said that before Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned they inspected government files, seeking documentation for their claims of innocence. The search apparently resulted from news accounts that fired presidential counsel John Dean was prepared to give investigators documents relating to an alleged White House cover-up of Watergate.

Meanwhile, The New York Times today quoted sources as saying six former high-level figures are expected to be indicted in connection with the alleged coverup.

The Times identified the six as Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean, former attorney-general John Mitchell, deputy Nixon campaign director Jeb Magruder, and Frederick LaRue, a special assistant to Mitchell when the latter was Nixon's campaign chief.

Ehrlichman Accused Of Bid to Bribe Judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defence lawyers in the Pentagon papers trial, accusing former presidential adviser John Ehrlichman of trying to bribe the trial judge, have demanded that any Watergate or White House links to the trial be made public.

Federal Judge Matt Byrne rejected Tuesday a government request to keep from the press further developments in a continuing court-ordered investigation. He said he will make public any documents relevant to the trial.

Lawyers for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo asked for dismissal of the indictments after the government revealed that Ehrlichman knew two Watergate conspirators had burglarized the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971.

The defence also cited an Ehrlichman contact with Byrne April 25 at the Western White House at which Byrne says he was told he was in line for a high "future assignment in government," possibly the directorship of the FBI.

Although Byrne said he had refused to consider any offer until after the trial, the defence motion called it "possibly an attempt to offer a bribe to the court, an attempt made in the virtual presence of the president of the United States which was frustrated only because the judge refused to listen to the offer."

Revise Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will move soon to reinstate the lethal chemical DDT for use by mouse exterminators, a senior agriculture department official said Tuesday.

E. R. Houghton, head of the department's control products section, said changes in severe restrictions on the use of the pesticide announced late in 1969 will be announced in two or three weeks.

Nixon May Tighten Wage-price Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials say some tightening of Phase Three wage-price controls appears likely following President Nixon's meeting today with top economic advisers.

Some officials hinted at stronger enforcement moves to halt inflation, but Nixon advisers in recent days have ruled out any new wage-price freeze and rigid, mandatory controls.

The presidents called in key advisers after being granted another year of wage-price-control authority.

Scheduled to attend the meeting were Treasury Secretary George Shultz, Budget Director Roy Ash; Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic advisers; and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns.

Industry Interested In Belleville Sites

Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis is working on many "hot leads" according to Industrial Commission chairman, Bruce Nickson.

Speaking to yesterday's Belleville Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting, he said he was confident the goals set by the Industrial commission, 100 jobs and the addition of 2.5 million in city assessments, would be exceeded.

"One of the problems is that a company comes to four or five or more communities looking for a site," he said, "Ultimately there are four or five unhappy places and one that's ecstatic."

Mr. Nickson added that next year, too, looked very promising, but that after next year there was no way of telling how industrial development would go.

He said he felt a responsibility to the taxpayers to keep them informed of what the Industrial Commission was doing. "We have a $13,000 budget — it's a small budget but I believe that every man jack of you is contributing and you're entitled to know what's happening," said Mr. Nickson. "That's why we've involved the press much more in our activities this year."

School Boycott Ends Public Meeting Tonight

All is quiet today at North Addington Educational Centre following the disturbing two days of classroom boycotts by secondary school students.

The 400 high school students are kindergarten to grade 13 school walked out of ers Monday to protest cutbacks in the teaching staff in fall.

A public meeting will be held at the school tonight at 8 p.m. at which trustees and Lennox and Addington board administrators will discuss the staff cuts with students, parents and ratepayers.

A "picket line" of placard carrying students paraded in front of the school Monday. They were joined by a number of interested citizens including Kaladar Deputy-reeve Mrs. Mary Anne Tryon and Kaladar Councillor Roy Holthauser. Some teachers also carried signs and were reported to have assisted in the organization. The picket lasted for 15 minutes Tuesday before students returned to classes. Gade 7 and 8 students joined their 200 secondary school fellow students in the demonstration because both senior elementary and secondary teachers are included among the staff cuts.

Principal William Rowsome said today the school now has 363½ teachers in both the elementary and secondary sections. The staff will be cut back to 31 in September, making 31½ teachers available for transfer to other county schools if vacancies become available.

Programs to be cancelled because of staff cuts will include some remedial work in the occupational section, Rowsome said. Spanish and French in the elementary section of the school. Mr. Rowsome said a survey he conducted had revealed graduates were taking typing, shorthand and other business subjects but took at the school, so these will be cut.

Lennox and Addington county Jr. and Sr. kindergarten schools, all serving wide-spread geographic areas, because of the relatively few students and large number of programs that must be offered, the staff-student ratio in one of the lowest in the province. The overall average is 18 to 1 and the average at Centre, now 16 to 1 will be in line with the county average next year. Hastings county's ratio will be 18 to 1 next year.

Parents believe that the school, with its modern laboratory students, needs special consideration to retain technical and shop program of options.

Mr. Rowsome said this morning that the "core subjects" will not be affected by staff cuts. Only specialty subjects will be cut from the curriculum.

It is understood parents tonight will ask that a special meeting of trustees be called.

We watched him suffer, day by day,
We saw his strength fail away,
And loved him more and more.
And would have prayed, if prayer could save,
His troubled nights are passed,
His days of pain and suffering o'er,
He has found sweet rest at last.
"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."
Sadly missed by wife Ethel and family.

RANDLE — In loving memory of a dear father, Arthur Randle, who passed away three years ago today, May 2nd, 1970.
Sometimes I think of him today,
As those who loved him best.
For three long years we have gone the grave,
May whither and secret,
And miss the clasp of him who lies beneath.
Will never fade away.

RANDLE — In fond and loving memory of a dear husband, Arthur E. Randle who passed away three years ago today, May 2nd, 1970.
God took him home, it was His will,

As in the hour he passed away,
And memory keeps him dear,
When we are all asleep.

Writing A Lifelong Craft for Octogenarian

By HARRY MULHALL
- Staff Reporter

For birthdays, most people write greetings.

To her family it was the surprise she intended. But no startling novelty.

The modest volume was the fourth work she has penned, privately published and circulated in the past two years.

Some of the quotations are original. Others are borrowed from the memory bank Mrs. Townsend has compiled during a life as a United Church minister's wife in Ontario, a Conservatory music teacher, and elocutionist.

Friends and family had been pressing her to write for some time. It didn't surprise them when she began producing.

Twelve Meditations was a series of reflective essays themed to the month of the year. Mrs. Townsend had about 100 copies printed by a Belleville printer.

Enthusiastic friends wanted to buy them up. A second run was printed. That was in 1971. Before the year was out, Mrs. Townsend was back at the typewriter in her Hillside Ave. home writing again —with the same popular results.

"The first time, I was surprised, greatly surprised at the reception my writing got," says Mrs. Townsend.

It was also a welcome surprise. Although sales were small and exclusive, she found them economically necessary if she were to continue writing.

Mrs. Townsend, who prices her booklets at $1.75-$2, estimates it cost about $300 to bring out Meditations.

"I have to sell them or I won't be able to keep it up. It's really an expensive hobby unless you make some sales," she says.

The initial impetus to get in print came when she compiled and wrote a family history in 1970.

Mrs. Townsend admits to being an energetic writer all her life. A daily diarist, aside from compiling readings for various entertainments in past years, she's also been a prolific correspondent. In fact, when her husband, Thomas was overseas in World War I she wrote him every day for four years.

Born near Kingston, she arrived in Belleville 18 years ago when her husband was appointed to Holloway Street United Church. By that time the Townsends already were well known in the district. Rev. Townsend first accepted a pastorate with his church's Bay of Quinte charge in 1945, and served in Stirling, Deseronto and Belleville. Rev. Townsend died some years ago.

If writing always came naturally, the talent can be something of a problem when composing for readership.

She finds "writing runs away with me sometimes. I keep going back and polishing it, since you often say more in fewer words."

What she wants to say in her works represents "perhaps my philosophy on life," which "I want to share".

She may have surely summed up her style in the title of the work brought out for her 81st birthday: Homily Homilies and Pithy Points.

Some samplings: "There are two kinds of people who say very little — the quiet ones and the gabby ones."

Keen and alert in the midst of her ninth decade, Mrs. Townsend conjures a quotation to interpret how she now views life in general.

"Every generation seems to suffer the "good-old-days" syndrome, as if hard times were only in the present.

Her newest publication didn't arrive from the printers in time for her birthday as planned. However, Mrs. Townsend can dismiss the disappointment with a quote that enhances birthdays as more than a passing point in time:

Mrs. Townsend: Four Works to Date

Volunteer Training Needed To Work with Retarded

PICTON — A volunteer training course for persons interested in working with the mentally retarded ended at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute last night with an address by Toronto physiotherapist, Mrs. Jean Hall.

Mrs. Hall, who is developmental care chairman for the board of directors for the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, has worked as a volunteer for 15 years. She is now semi-retired in her profession as a physiotherapist.

New volunteers were told that continued search for information often additionsexes the availability of such constructive material. The course offered at PECI recently could be written up by the organizers as an example of volunteer training as used by associations for the mentally retarded.

Mrs. Hall said these volunteer programs and many others succeed because they include parents, interested and involved professional persons and youth. Other groups composed of professional men or parents exclusively are not generally as effective.

The volunteer must be considered as unpaid staff and continual recruiting is necessary in associations for the retarded.

Eventually Mrs. Hall hopes to see volunteer training courses introduced at community colleges, possibly by correspondence. Many young persons are eager to help associations for the mentally retarded and seek more information through such programs.

The speaker also discussed normalization and integration of the retarded, stressing the need to provide them with daily programs approximating everyday life.

She said that development handicapped persons should live "as close to a normal life as possible," whether this is done at home or in an institution. They should have opportunities to associate with their peers and weekend recreation should be provided for them just as for others. Community recreation programs, co-operating with this concept, should include programs for the retarded.

Mrs. Hall noted that some normalization programs with adaptations eventually lead to integration in some cases.

"We want the retarded back in the community but they cannot come without training," she said.

"With all volunteers we want them to see a child first and a handicap second. We don't give enough time for the thought process to go through. We try to direct rather than allow," she added.

She told volunteers parents can be helped through their children. A young mother is helped when the volunteer accepts her child as a child who can be assisted.

Preschool Program For Retarded Planned

PICTON — A preschool program for mentally retarded youngsters is being planned in Prince Edward and a survey to determine possible attendance figures is under way.

Phyllis Silsbury, a member of the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded, said at least six youngsters would be enrolled and she explained that she is licensed to operate the proposed nursery school. Several buildings have been considered as possible locations for the preschool program activities.

Jean Hall, a Toronto volunteer, who addressed members of PEAMR here last night, emphasized the important role of such programs, noting children can be prepared at a very early age to reach their achievement levels. She said the normal child learns most from ages three to five years when he is extremely curious. The retarded youngster does not experiment to the same degree and must be "pushed" into situations.

Licensed nursery schools for the retarded now in operation receive 80 per cent financial assistance from the government, and the cost of equipment, transportation and furnishings is covered.

Mrs. Hall spoke of recent advances in working with retarded youngsters and predicted even greater progress.

"We cannot do by what has happened in the past. We are in a time of change and we have new knowledge. We must have an open mind," she said.

She observed that new techniques and new materials must be sought out.

"Integration now seems more possible than it ever was in the past," she concluded.

No Room At Inns

Delegates may be travelling as much as 50 miles from their hotels to the conference table next week because of packed hotels in Belleville.

Hotel sources said today all rooms in the city were booked with delegates to the motor vehicle and equipment display sponsored by the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities.

All but a handful of rooms are available in Trenton with local hotels recommending Kingston for the nearest suitable accommodation.

More than 1,500 delegates from across the province are expected for the display to be held in Belleville's fairgrounds from Tuesday to Thursday next week.

Take It Easy

Signs being scrutinized by Belleville parks supervisor Ed Burleigh caution motorists entering waterfront Victoria Park. Access road Tuesday was flooded as Bay of Quinte water level continues to rise.

Meetings Cancelled

BLOOMFIELD—The Prince Edward County board of education will hold only one regular meeting this month and again in June.

Customarily trustees attend two public sessions monthly but during May and June they have cancelled the last of the meetings scheduled.

A meeting will be held in Bloomfield on Wednesday, May 9 at 8 p.m. and another on Monday, June 11. Sessions planned for May 14 and June 25 have been cancelled.

Slim Pickings At Ice Plant

Police said an office window was broken with a rock to gain entry.

Home Care

Behind the somewhat impersonal "units of care" terminology heard in medical and social service circles lies a story of human concern and self-sacrificial effort on the part of professional people on behalf of the sick and needy.

The saga of the home care service of Hastings and Prince Edward counties falls into this category. Administrator Mrs. Alison Kuglin says they have only begun to scratch the surface of people's needs in this sphere, yet that she told Rotarians the other day of accomplishments thus far was impressive.

If Mrs. Kuglin's own schedule is typical — and undoubtedly is — the home care program people, not to mention the many others associated in its administration, from hospital board of governors to nursing and medical staff and volunteer helpers, are busy people indeed.

Assessing the suitability of home environments, so that a patient may take advantage of the service, is vital to the program — not to say time-consuming and wearisome. Mrs. Kuglin is on her second car and sixth set of tires. And speaking of those "units of care," she told Rotarians the other day that the Victorian Order of Nurses, who cooperate with the service on a fee-for-service basis, provided some 9,000 of these in the past fiscal year. Similarly, the program embraces many other aspects of care, including physiotherapy, occupational and speech therapy, provision of medical equipment (she said it was amazing what had been found in this category, gathering dust), drugs, transportation, diagnostic lab services and homemakers. The homemakers she described as "fantastically wonderful people." Mrs. Kuglin spoke of a "grey area" in the service. "It seems if you are very wealthy or if you are poor you can have your needs met . . . but there is a group of people who are just making enough who do not qualify."

There is real urgency too in Mrs. Kuglin's concern about transportation needs. "We have a dreadful time with transportation," she said, citing the case of a hemophilic boy recently who requires orthopedic treatment here. The boy's doctor says he could go back to school if he has treatment which in turn requires someone to get him to hospital and "only mom can care" in the process — that is, in fixing braces and helping him back and forth...It would mean picking him up from school five days a week for three weeks and getting him home after treatment. The boy's mother is working and a taxi firm which had been approached was unwilling to accept the responsibility. Mrs. Kuglin made it clear she was not casting any blame but said, "we must find transportation," she said.

* * *

It is rewarding work in home care, as the administrator points out — work very demanding also and the people of the two counties are indebted to Mrs. Kuglin and her staff, including Mrs. Denise Porter, coordinator in the Belleville-Picton areas; Mrs. Bonnie Tetlock, part-time co-ordinator in the Trenton-Frankford areas; a VON nurse-co-ordinator in the Bancroft area, and relief nurse-co-ordinator Mrs. Corriveau Hamilton. A second relief nurse co-ordinator will be available shortly. Medical advisor is Dr. Robert Vaughan.

Gideon's Meeting

The Gideon organization, which chose Belleville for a zone meeting at the week-end, is in the front rank of practical Christianity, often a support also for those who are of other faiths, or even no particular denomination at all yet may be in personal need of one kind or another.

A Bible in a lonely hotel room or in school, hospital or prison can be a friend in the right place at the right time. The fact that Canadian Gideons — there are some 2,600 of them — placed 720,000 Bibles last year is a measure of their concern for their fellow man.

Worldwide, the Gideons have distributed more than 112 million Bibles and Testaments in 94 countries since 1908. They see their work in large part as "placing Bibles in the lifestreams of society." It is a fine record of service to humanity.

Press' Role in Uncovering 'Spy' Activities

Watergate Casts Doubt on Integrity of U.S. Government

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Can we believe what our governments tell us? As the Watergate mess continues to unfold, escalating judgments about the people and issues involved, our judgment is not going to change. The credibility of government in our free society is at stake.

The spotlight clearly is and at last irrevocably on Washington and on the widening web of associations and direct contacts of former senior White House aides to the President in the attempted bugging operations of last June.

So serious has it become that a potential best-selling book in the United States, The Politics of Lying, now can be documented and written about with convincing detail at the highest level. The author is David Wise, a cool and probing observer of government and politics in the U.S. who takes us back to the late President Eisenhower's untruth that U-2 spy planes were not being used this way over the U.S.S.R.

President Eisenhower's lie, because that's what it had become, was revealed in the Soviet shooting down of U-2 pilot Gary Powers in 1960 and his temporary imprisonment in Russia.

Wise freely admits that political parties in America have attempted so-called "spying" activities on each other for years —and that it was acknowledged as part of the political process in America.

But now, he adds, a most sombre note to the breaking and entering of the Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate Hotel last June 17th by saying on television that it was mounted as a standard operation in intelligence and espionage by men under former CIA espionage planner Howard Hunt. This could only mean, says Wise, that the Democratic Party was murdered in the "foreign power" whose activities would have to be probed like those of enemies of the United States.

Last week, White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler was asked firmly and politely by one of his former colleagues, now back in the Washington press corps, to rescind press conference remarks he had made last summer that the Watergate findings were unimportant and had no White House implications.

Not only did Ziegler refuse to do so, after being asked more than once, but issued his own statement to the effect what he said last year, compared to what he is now compelled to admit about Watergate is, "inoperative."

In the growing deceit of the language used to hide deceit, Mr. Ziegler is said to have "misspoke."

Here in Canada, we always use consciously look around to see if a major trend in American public life, for bad ones as well as the good, is taking shape here. Thankfully to date, we can lay no claim to a Watergate. But here in Ontario, the conservative government of William Davis is in trouble over sins of omission rather than of commission on his government's activities.

And again, is that Canadian tradition of doing it quietly, if at all, the various Queen's Park crises affecting the resignation of Darcy McKeough, the alleged contributions of a building developer to Conservative party funds, the present hassle over architectural consultants in Ontario Hydro, indicate that the government in a free society should be left alone by a free press for very long.

It was, after all, the press which kept alive Watergate until the dam gates of secrecy had to be broken. It is a humbling pill, perhaps, for our legislators to swallow that their credibility in almost anything they do, will have to be challenged after Watergate. But in America and here, it's a necessity many of them have forced on us.

Tax Debacle Another Reverse for Davis

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

TORONTO — A question more than one person is asking, and which the man himself is undoubtedly asking himself, is what affect the energy tax debacle may have on his future as Premier William Davis.

There are those who see the premier, as a result of it, headed for disaster.

This could prove true...But it is not by any means automatic.

There are at least some people, and probably a good many of them, who like to see someone make a mistake and then admit it. It is human.

There are others who will go for the official line that the incident was a fine example of democracy at work.

And then there will be still others who will be just plain sympathetic towards the premier.

So that out of actual incident he could make marks perhaps even to the extent of reversing the down trend as which he has been skidding.

But on the record of the premier and his government in the last year there is inevitably further question which has to be asked.

There were the cases of alleged ministerial conflict of interest, Pidgeon, decisions of election funds, the current controversy over government aircraft loans and various other matters which have had the government in almost constant embarrassment.

Just a few more of the extraordinary events of the past 12 months and he could become astonished and probably wide open for defeat.

Given a bit of good luck and some lessons learned out of his troubles he might not able to win back the golden old image.

But certainly he will have to have learned the lessons and to demonstrate this.

For he hasn't been coming across well at all.

U.S. Coffins for Canada!

OTTAWA (CP) — Some things you learn in Parliament.

Air Canada employs 18 vice-presidents.

There were 1,618 Canadian-made tractors sold in the United States last year, while 35,158 U.S.-made tractors were sold in Canada. Nearly half a year small garden and lawn vehicles.

The United States is the only foreign country selling coffins to Canada—last year $300,000 worth of them were brought in.

There are an estimated 81,000 veterans of the First World War living in Canada, an estimated 170,000 veterans of the Second World War and 25,000 veterans of the Korean War.

At last count there were 273,265 federal public servants, 63,000 of them based in the Ottawa-Hull area.

Under the Local Initiatives Program the federal government has committed $2,056,496 toward improving facilities for snowmobiles.

The lowest-cost three-bedroom bungalows financed by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. last year were $13,000 in Vancouver, $17,470 in Edmonton, $19,000 in Winnipeg and $12,000 in Montreal. No such bungalows were financed by CMHC in Toronto.

After a five-year program costing $363,834 the fisheries department has established that Atlantic lobsters can survive and reproduce at Fatty Basin at the head of Useless Inlet, B.C.

An error in the post office calendar, giving February 30 days, didn't cost the taxpayers anything. The department paid the printer extra money to have the 28 day version it delivered later.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Cabot, Italian-born merchant living in England, sailed from Bristol, England, 498 years ago today—in 1497—to follow Columbus' route to what he thought was Asia. The expedition reached land June 24, probably at Cape Breton Island, and cruised the southern Newfoundland shore which Cabot thought was part of the Asian coast. It was Cathay (China), Cabot made a second voyage the following year, exploring from Greenland to the Delaware River, but thereafter he disappears from the pages of history, probably because his preconditions found no gold or spices.

1961—Canada signed an agreement to sell Red China $362 million worth of wheat within three years.

Student Raps Teacher Cuts

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a grade 12 student at Centennial Secondary School I have every strong feelings against what is happening in education today.

My principal reason for concern involves the recent dismissal of some of the teachers. This concern is shared and adversely affects fellow students. We are supposed to be learning something but how do you learn without a sufficient number of teachers to teach you?

This year four teachers were dismissed at Centennial. One of these, whom I know, is my physical education teacher and is the greatest teacher at Centennial, Just because she is least experienced she led to go. Obviously they are not taking her leaving lightly on the way she gets along with her students into consideration.

There should be student representation in Board of Education activities! This would assure a more balanced approach and students would have the sense to know that teachers and students make up education. One without the other is absolutely useless.

Obviously this has not been understood because the Minister of Education, through its ceiling spending restrictions is subtracting from instead of adding them. The minister should go back to school to learn a few things!

The only thing they are interested in is money! They figure as long as they have students they have revenue and with fewer teachers they will ensure less expense.

A recent education article in The Intelligencer said the reason they are cutting back teachers is because the students are quitting. Did it ever occur to them that students have reason to quit? Most students quit because they can't "hack" high school longer. They were failing and the teachers were too busy trying to help other students and didn't have time for them. There are some students who are "reached" but the majority of us were not blessed this way and we need help!! Without enough teachers how are we supposed to get it?

I am seriously considering quitting at the end of this year, myself. I was really looking forward to coming back and getting my Grade 13 diploma because I thought the next year would be just as great as this year has been.

With the current staffing approach, however, I have lost all commitment. In fact, I would predict that if the current trend of trying to cut expenses by reducing numbers of teachers is continued, most students will not want to attend school beyond the 16 year age limit!

And what does that do to Education?

Letter Foxes Reader

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It has always been my belief that the use of superfluous words of many-syllables to soften contributes nothing but obscurity to what could otherwise be an interesting and informative observation or statement. The letter to the Editor in Friday's edition is an example of this premise and to me, at least, results in complete confusion.

Referring to ivory tower scholastics, I have just read I once read and write and until I encountered this profound epistle, I felt my comprehension was a minimal average. I'm no longer sure of my ability to comprehend, for if the letter referred to has a message, I've been unable to grasp its full meaning. At first I thought I referred to Mr. Hall's letter and Loyalist College Resource Centre, but Mrs. Williamson's article referred to utilizing volunteers in public and secondary school libraries, and I fail to see the case, the criticism cannot apply since many staff members of these libraries are not lucky enough to have been through post-graduate courses nor have they all had several years of applying theory to practice with the classification and subject analysis of material.

I agree that for supervisory positions a thorough knowledge of one's subject or work is of crucial importance. But not every person working in any branch of science, medicine, education, or even libraries, must hold a degree to be adequately competent at coping with the necessary but mundane tasks involved in any field. Mrs. Williamson did not imply that the volunteers should expect to work without direction or supervision, and in the world some of me they represent no threat to the experienced, university-trained persons who will direct their working supervisors. As a parent who perhaps will volunteer should the need arise in my school area, I would be content to remain a cog and not reconsider the domain of the Big Wheel!

Davis Backtracks on Tax

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

This change of heart did not come spontaneously — nor because of opposition to the tax within the Conservative caucus or for that matter the Liberal or NDP opposition parties. The cancellation of the tax came about because residents of Ontario individually and collectively felt that the tax was an unjust one and said so.

In every situation there are heroes and in my opinion the heroes in this instance are people like Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Denis of Nanapee who were not afraid to stand up and say "we won't change anything", but who, instead by organizing the circulation of petitions against the tax, stood up to be counted. These ladies and all those who signed their petition or otherwise protested the imposition of the tax, demonstrated that the individual can change things and we should be thankful for their attitude and their efforts.

Nixon and Lewis Assail Sales Tax

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer John White was assailed from all sides Tuesday as opposition members heaped abuse on the government's proposed sales tax increase.

Mr. Nixon challenged the Progressive Conservative government to take the sales tax question to the electorate and Mr. Lewis, in a lengthy attack, provoked scattered bursts of fury from the treasurer.

The day and night debate was heated at times with a number of insults and taunts hurled across the legislature.

Mr. White called Mr. Lewis a megalomaniac at one point and referred to the New Democrats as "five-foot fascists".

The sales tax increase, to seven per cent from five, is being collected across the province although the legislation is bogged down on second reading.

Mr. White said earlier that this was not unreasonable because the government had indicated its intention of boosting the tax as of May 1, when the budget was brought down last month.

Both Liberal and New Democratic parties are shooting the works during debate on second reading and it is expected that all 41 opposition members will have spoken in opposition to it before debate closes.

Mr. Lewis read into the record the names of the Conservative members who voted for the sales tax on first reading—which included the since withdrawn tax on fuel—and then read selected comments they made to the press outside the legislature.

Switching to the budget itself, Mr. Lewis accused the treasurer of mutilating the tax credit concept and instituting taxation that was regressive.

He said the treasurer had under-estimated revenue from the sales tax by at least $45-million.

Judging on past performances, Mr. Lewis said the government would collect between $364 and $535-million more than was stated in the budget.

He said the government could have reduced the sales tax by one per cent to stimulate the economy.

Mr. Lewis produced statistics to show that the sales tax worked greater hardship on those with low income and said they actually paid more tax when it was worked out as a percentage of income.

He reiterated his party's call for increased taxation on the resource sector of industry, labelling the mining tax an "obscenity in the tax system of this province."

He noted that in 1972 mineral productivity reached $1.5 billion in the province while the provincial government received only $16 million in tax yield.

Debate on the tax increase will resume Thursday and Mr. White will likely get a chance to respond to criticism then, before the legislation is put to a recorded vote on second reading.

Woodstock Merchant Won't Collect Tax

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — William Allen, former mayor of Woodstock and now owner of a lumber company, says he is not going to collect the increase in provincial sales tax from his customers until the appropriate legislation is passed and becomes law.

Mr. Allen said in an interview Tuesday he will continue to charge his customers five per cent sales tax, but he will keep their names on file.

He said if the government wants the extra money, it can try to collect it from the customers. But he said he will take the case to court if the government tries to collect from him.

An increase in provincial sales tax to seven per cent from five came into effect Tuesday, although legislation making it law still had not received second reading in the legislature.

Treasurer John White said, however, that the increased tax will be retroactive to Tuesday when it does become law. Shopkeepers, he said, were to start collecting it Tuesday.

Mr. Allen called the retroactive increase "unconstitutional and unusual." He said he would charge seven per cent sales tax when the increase becomes law, but not until.

Await Dow Case Before Acting on Dryden

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has indicated it will not instigate legal action against Dryden Chemicals for the alleged mercury pollution of the English, Wabigoon and Winnipeg river systems until another separate pollution suit advances in the courts.

Justice Secretary George Kerr said the government action against Dow Chemicals in connection with mercury pollution in Lake St. Clair had some bearing on how the government would proceed against the Dryden company.

Outside the legislature, Resources Secretary A. B. R. Lawrence said the suit against Dow was moving ahead and should be before the courts next year.

If the Dow suit is successful, Mr. Lawrence indicated a suit against Dryden Chemicals and "maybe a dozen others" would be instigated.

Mr. Lawrence said the Dow suit was the keystone of future provincial action.

"From our point of view it is the one which will set the law for Ontario and indeed for the rest of Canada in relation to this kind of pollution," said Mr. Lawrence.

Egyptian Work

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Scientists studying a statue of the Persian ruler Darius the Great have determined that the work was done by the Egyptians and shipped to Persia about 500 BC.

French in Ontario Content with Lot

OTTAWA (CP) — An economic study released Tuesday has given Franco-Ontarians a mirror in which to see themselves and a possible springboard to future action, says Lucien Bradet, vice-president of the Association Canadienne-Francais de l'Ontario (ACFO).

He told a news conference Tuesday the study will inform Franco-Ontarians about their economic condition and out of this may emerge an economic program.

The 333-page report says the average Franco-Ontarian has an annual income seven per cent lower than the average for all Ontario residents.

The report concludes that "If an action were to be taken in the economic sector, it would have to be with caution as that sector is not a source of dissatisfaction among the (French-speaking) population in general."

The $30,000 study was carried out by Yvan Allaire and Jean-Marie Toulouse, professors in the University of Ottawa faculty of management sciences.

Mr. Bradet said the report will be used at public meetings to educate Franco-Ontarians about their economic position. It might also be used in talks with the Ontario government.

Mr. Bradet suggested Franco-Ontarians may be generally satisfied with their lot because they don't know "what's happened on the other side of the fence."

The ACFO annual meeting this weekend in Sudbury will consider the report. ACFO is a federation of regional and provincial French-language associations in Ontario.

Many Queries Unanswered By Nixon's Watergate Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's claim that his investigators hid the truth from him in the Watergate wiretaping leaves a lot of questions awaiting answers.

It now embraces secret campaign funds, hidden documents, links concerning the White House and last year's Nixon election campaign to a mutual-fund scandal, and alleged crimes by White House employees against the man who leaked the Pentagon Papers on the Indochina war.

The president mentioned none of these in his address Monday night, except for a reference to "alleged improper actions" for which Nixon said he shoulders full responsibility.

Here are some subsidiary scandals in the conglomerate now collectively called "Watergate."

MONEY: Two secret campaign funds have been found, and a third is reported in new accounts. The Watergate burglars were paid from a secret cash fund in the president's re-election headquarters.

A former aide to presidential chief-of-staff H. R. Haldeman has been quoted in transcripts of grand jury testimony as saying Haldeman kept $350,000 more in campaign cash in his White House safe, purpose as yet unknown.

News reports say investigators turned up a $500,000 fund in California bank, used by the president's personal lawyer to finance a political saboteur, among other things.

RECORDS: Although the president promises there will be no "whitewash," his campaign organization continues to keep secret its spending, reported involving around $10 million, from before last April 7. That is the date a new law required public reporting.

VESCO: Financier Robert L. Vesco is accused in a lawsuit by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) of looting $224 million from mutual funds he controlled. Several links already have been established between his dealings and Nixon associates.

A representative delivered $200,000 in cash to the Nixon campaign last year, and was reported to have asked for "help." Campaign chairman John M. Mitchell, the former attorney-general, then told Vesco's lawyers they could meet with SEC Chairman William J. Casey.

Eventually government auditors accused the Nixon campaign of illegally not reporting the gift, the SEC went ahead with its suit, and the campaign returned the money two months later.

Other ties to Vesco go back to 1971. Mitchell called the U.S. embassy in Switzerland Dec. 30 of that year when Vesco had been arrested on a shareholder's complaint. Vesco was freed on bail. The complaint was dropped.

ELLSBERG: In Los Angeles, Daniel Ellsberg is on trial for stealing the Pentagon's secret history of the Vietnam war, and giving it to newspapers. Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy allegedly broke into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Lewis Fielding, in 1971, while they were on the White House payroll to investigate the Pentagon Papers affair.

Palace Guard Swept from Power

WASHINGTON (CP) — The palace guard has been swept from power. A chastened president has publicly accepted responsibility for what happened. Respected names have been given the job of cleaning up.

The initial public reaction to Richard Nixon's dramatic house-cleaning and soul-baring Monday appears to be that he did mainly what was inevitable. Although he may have gained some respite, he provided no new answers and made few new converts.

The Watergate bugging case, perhaps the greatest scandal to afflict an American president, seems destined to continue its disturbing course for months to come.

Too many dingy corners remain unexplored, too much questionable campaign money remains unaccounted for, too many unethical tricks were apparently plotted and covered up.

What the FBI does not uncover in subsequent weeks, the grand jury will have a chance to explore. What the grand jury misses, a special Senate committee will try to search out.

Thereafter, the press and the courts can be expected to extract further details.

"A partial beginning," said the New York Times, and added: "There is no hint of opinion by the president that the quality of his own leadership, or his own staffing arrangements have been shown, at the very least, to be dangerously faulty."

In his televised speech Nixon said the awful land already taken too much of his attention and that he must again concentrate on the "larger duties" of his office.

Whether to the extent that he succeeds in putting aside Watergate—and it is by no means certain that he will be allowed to—Nixon's conduct of U.S. affairs may be transformed.

Nixon has always sought order and solitude for his work. He got both in the old White House, where chief-of-staff H. R. Haldeman and domestic adviser John Ehrlichman brusquely fended off cabinet officers, congressmen and others who might interrupt the president's labors.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman is leaving, the most visible scandalies of Watergate. Their replacements are unlikely to carry the same influence with the president or be given the same broad mandates.

To that extent, the changes are likely to be welcomed by the majority of political figures in Washington.

Both Democrats and Republicans have protested for some time that the president has been insulated from a spectrum of opinion on many key domestic issues.

Pork - - - Priced to Please

Pork is priced to please this week.

Ontario's Pork Institute tells us that today's pork has 22 per cent more protein; 57 per cent less fat and 36 per cent fewer calories than pork formerly had. All in all, according to the Institute, it has impressive nutritive value.

Leftover pork roast - or ham - from yesterday's dinner, boiled ham or sausage links can make your menu tonight.

Make these tempting salads early in the day and an appetizing supper is assured. The cream puff bowl is fun to make — it's preparation is exactly like that of cream puffs but its shape is like a large "nest" or shallow bowl. The Jellied Ham Rolls may be served as a salad in itself or sliced to serve with potato salad or cole slaw.

JELLIED HAM ROLLS

3 oz. package lemon or lime jelly powder
1¼ cups hot water
2 tbsps. lemon juice
4 oz. package cream cheese
¼ cup drained horseradish
Dash of paprika
8 thin slices cooked ham (about 4 inches square)

Dissolve jelly powder in hot water. Add lemon juice and chill until partially set. Soften cheese, blending in horseradish and paprika. Spread this mixture on ham slices and roll up each in jelly roll fashion. Place rolls side by side in a loaf pan. Pour partially set jelly over ham rolls. Chill until set. Unmould on salad greens and slice to serve. Accompany with sliced cucumbers and tomatoes, hot muffins and for dessert fresh fruit cup with an added dash of vermouth. Serves 8.

CREAM PUFF BOWL SALAD

With this luscious salad, you eat not only the salad but the bowl as well!

Cream Puff Bowl

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup boiling water
½ cup all purpose (bread) flour
¼ tsp. celery seed
¼ tsp. salt
2 eggs

Salad Filling

4 hard cooked eggs
1½ cups diced cooked roast pork or ham
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1-3 cup sliced ripe olives
1 tbsp. chopped green onion plus tops
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1 tsp. lemon juice
1-3 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tbsp. French dressing
1 to 1½ cups shredded lettuce

Heat oven to 450 degrees then make cream puff "bowl", In a quart saucepan melt the butter in the boiling water. All at once, stir in flour, seed and salt. Beat this mixture over heat until it will form a ball. Remove from heat. Cool slightly. One at a time, vigorously beat in the eggs. Spread batter in a greased 9 - inch pie pan, shaping it into a "nest", with high-ersides. Bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 25 to 35 minutes longer. Turn off heat. Leave door closed and let puff bowl dry out 10 to 20 minutes. Cool on cake rack.

To make filling — sieve one egg yolk. Slice one egg for garnish. Coarsely chop remaining 2 eggs and egg white. Cube meat and combine with celery, olives, onion and seasoning to taste. Fold in chopped eggs and combined lemon juice, mayonnaise and French dressing. Chill.

To Serve — fill bottom of cooled puff bowl with shredded lettuce. Fill with salad. Garnish with sieved egg and sliced egg. Cut into wedges to serve. Accompany with chunks of French bread, iced tea and lemon meringue tarts.

SAUSAGE MACARONI BAKE

1 lb. sausage links
7 oz. package elbow macaroni
2 tbsps. chopped green pepper
2 tbsps. chopped pimiento
10 oz. condensed cream of chicken soup
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water according to package directions. Pan-fry sausage slowly until lightly browned. Drain. Combine macaroni, green pepper, pimiento, soup and cheese. Place half the mixture in 1½-quart casserole. Cover with half sausage, then remaining macaroni and, lastly, top with sausage. Bake in 350-degree oven about 20 to 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated.

Cream Puff Salad Bowl

Cream Puff Salad Bowl . . . who'd guess its main ingredient is Sunday's left-over pork roast? It's bargain week for pork in Belleville and these recipes from Ontario's Pork Institute lead the way to nutritious and low budget meals.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Emery J. Trahan, of Belleville wish to announce the forthcoming wedding of their only daughter, Lyon Helen to Arthur Dexter Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Fraser, Belleville. The marriage will take place on May 11, 1973 at 4 p.m. in Holloway Street United Church.

* * *

Mrs. Doris Johnston, of Picton, and Mr. Murner Molloy of Peterborough, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Stephanie Anne to Steven Ronald Cronkright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cronkright of Belleville. Marriage to take place June 9 at Tabernacle United Church.

At Home

On the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Judge, 9 Mt. Pleasant Road, Belleville, will be At Home to relatives, friends and neighbours on Sunday, May 6, from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. Best wishes only.

Seat Belt Safety

Consumers' Association of Canada demands manufacturers periodically inspect the seat belts in their cars. Sections of the webbing that make regular contact with metal hardware should be examined carefully. Continued abrasion at such vital points can weaken the fabric, which can then give way in a sudden stop or accident. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

When Wayne Haines, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Haines went to the Ontario Humane Society for his first visit earlier this week, he made friends with some baby goats. Summertime brings the biggest boom for boarders at the Humane Society, RR2, Belleville.

Humane Society Takes Boarders Summertime, Biggest Rush

Everyday animals come and go through the Ontario Humane Society doors to new homes. From budgies to goats, adoption papers are signed each day.

Parents and children in the Belleville area can visit the shelter any day of the week from 9 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. to see new arrivals.

Currently, according to superintendant Bary Brown dogs and cats are most numerous at the shelter.

"The boarding season is beginning", said Mr. Brown, "and we're currently taxed to the limit with boarding."

Adoptions are most common at Christmastime. Prices for cats range from $20 to $50, dogs cost from $8.

Animals at the shelter are either stray-aways, boarders or pets whose owners have had to part with them because of illness.

The "Kitty Villa" is an important part of the Humane Society. Cats are kept in outdoor shelters all year round. Heat lamps are provided in the winter.

This summer, Mr. Brown said there will be outdoor shelters also.

more

Animal histories are taggen on crates when possible. The includes names, innoculati received and age.

Children must be accom panied by adults when adop ing an animal. There are cu rently more dogs than cat at the Humane Society.

"The Whole World Hates Me"

By DORIS CLARK

It's great the way our library systems are able to pull together. We had a request fr a poem months ago and the Niagara Regional Library system kept on corresponding with other regionals until they fy came up with it.

'a fun, and here it is:

A FARMER'S BOY

They strolled down the lane together,
The sky, was studded with stars,
They reached the gate in silence,
And he lifted down the bars.
She neither smiled nor thanked him
Because she knew not how;
For he was just a farmer's boy
And she a Jersey cow!

— From The Desk Drawer Rhinology

Dear Doris: I feel as though the whole world hates me.

I have been working for this company for four years and find I am always the one who is disliked. At first I had a supervisor who really liked me and he quit. The next super disliked me, because he became fond of one of the other girls; now he has moved into the position of administration manager and is constantly on my back for the slightest error I make.

The girls will not speak to me. What should I do? I can't afford to quit, as I have a daughter in university whom I support. What causes younger girls to dislike older ones, or am I the only one this is happening to?

I used to be a good churchgoer and always played the piano but my sister - in law wanted to play so she made up all sorts of dirty gossip about me. I'm not a fighter so I gave in. Now I've quit going to church and even the minister doesn't visit us any longer. — Just a No-Good.

Dear Just A: You are not a no-good but a some-good! Yet there is something in your attitude or behaviour which gives folk the wrong impression.

Ask yourself:

(1) Do I study my work; learn about the new ways businesses are run, and try to keep up with today?

(2) Do I show resentment when corrected, or cheerfully show I would like to make the error right?

(3) Do I ever do anything kind for a new girl who may be shy and uncertain of how things are done around me?

(4) Do I show disgust when the young girls "talk boy friends"?

(5) Am I up to date with my hair style and dresses?

(6) Have I checked for sight and improvement?

Try these for a start. Then write to me again. Your writing, the way you express yourself, tell me you have a good mind. Now try seeing what love can do.

Ann Landers

She Stuck It Out With Husband Though He Smelled Like a Goat

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letter signed "Lost in California" I am moved to write my first letter to a columnist.

I faced the same problems—a husband who refused to bathe or change his underwear for weeks at a time—and I hope that "Lost" will listen when I tell her to follow her instincts and "do something about it." I speak from more than fifty years of first-hand experience.

Like "Lost," I stuck it out because "he was such a good guy." But after so many years of being left in a state of indescribable tension and being torn between love and hate, I know what a foolish mistake I made. Now my nervous system is shattered beyond repair and I am in no condition to make a move. I hope every woman who reads this and has a husband with this peculiar behavioral quirk will insist that he get professional help (he is sick) or dissolve the marriage.

These days a woman has a good many more options than were available 50 years ago. It's too late for me, but it's not too late for her. I wish the lady success.—High and Dry In St. Pete

Dear H and D in St. Pete: I have no idea how many women had this problem until I printed the first letter about it several years ago. Since then I have received hundreds—maybe thousands—of cries for help from wives who, like you, were torn between love and hate.

I'm happy to say this is a deep-seated and complicated illness, but it can be cured, and if a man loves his wife he will try. No woman should have to sleep with a husband who smells like a goat.

Dear Ann Landers: I am eagerly awaiting my 18th birthday so I can legally escape the clutches of a lousy home life. I know my folks will suffer a great deal when I go, but they are asking for it. I want to leave home so I can be independent, free to make my own decisions and learn from my mistakes.

My dad says I am to spend the next four years of my life at home and commuting to a nearby university—which does not interest me at all. If I refuse Dad's offer he will not give me money to go to any other school. Also, he will consider my "lack of co-operation" a slap in the face.

I see no alternative except to leave home and work my way through college. I know it will take a few years longer but I am willing to do it.

Please tell parents that it is their job to help their children grow, to prepare them for a life of their own, to encourage individuality and strength. Children need support, not ultimatums. —My Own Person

Dear Person: If you'd rather work your way through college and be on your own, I see no reason for your parents to hold it against you. Nor should you hold it against them because they refuse to finance your four years of college away from home. (It just might be they can't afford it. Do you have any idea what it costs?)

My guess is that after you've flown the coop, you'll have a lot more respect for your parents. And the comforts you now take for granted will take a whole new meaning. Good luck to you.

— Margaret Weston, 46, appointed director of London's Science Museum, is the first woman to achieve such a post in any European museum. She examines a replica of a machine she helps to acquire — the prototype of an electrical generator produced by a French instrument - maker named Pixii in 1832. Only two Pixii originals are known — one is in the Smithsonian in Washington. (CP Photo)

First Woman Achieves Post

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The Science Museum with its giant antique machinery and cases of scale models beloved of schoolboys may strike the visitor as one of London's most solidly masculine institutions.

But up in its sombrely-panelled, Victorian director's office sits a surprising new incumbent—Margaret Weston, the first woman director of any major museum in Europe.

Miss Weston, a trim, brown-haired woman of 46, won her directorship in competition against nine or 10 other applicants including several from outside the museum world. Most of them would have been men, she says, "though I can think of several women who might have applied."

It is the culmination of a remarkable career for the girl from the Cotswold country of Gloucestershire who decided in high school that she would become either a surgeon or an engineer.

"It had to be something that would use my hands and my brain," she explained in an interview in her big first-floor office, seated in a pale yellow woollen suit beneath awesome portraits of Josiah Wedgwood, the celebrated potter, and other eminent male predecessors.

A surgeon's training would have cost her schoolteacher parents too much, so Margaret, an only child, became an apprentice with the General Electric Co. at its engineering works at Witton, just outside Birmingham. There were three girl apprentices and 300 men.

In her spare time from shop floor and foundry she studied for a bachelor of science degree in electrical and mechanical engineering at Birmingham Technical College.

She rose swiftly up the engineering ladder to senior development engineer specializing in high voltage, stress problems, but here she began to encounter the first frustrations of being a woman in a predominantly masculine profession.

"When you got to a certain seniority you had to be in charge of large bodies of men and in those days there were difficulties," she recalled.

The civil service was "more attuned to women in senior posts" and in 1955 she answered an advertisement for assistant keeper at the Science Museum's new gallery of electrical engineering.

From there she moved up to deputy keeper and with her well-organized appetite for work took on the museum's publications department, bringing out colorful booklets on museum exhibits as well as scholarly, specialized studies by experts on the museum staff.

Now she has charge of a yearly budget of £1 million (about $2.40 million) and a staff of some 500.

Maximum Security At Cowansville 'Pen'

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Tuesday Cowansville penitentiary will be converted temporarily from maximum security to maximum security in an attempt to curtail a recent rash of escapes.

Mr. Allmand, who made a three-hour tour of the institution Tuesday, said that most of the 13 prisoners who have escaped or failed to return from leaves since April 13 were maximum-security prisoners.

He said they were sent to Cowansville, 45 miles southeast of Montreal, because there was no other space available.

"Thirty men who should have been in maximum-security institutions are here and they have been involved in most of the escapes," he said.

Mr. Allmand said that as part of the temporary changeover the prison would be completely encircled with barbed wire, a forest area around the prison would be cleared and at least five guards would be added to the current 75-man force.

The minister said his department plans to try to place more minimum-security prisoners in half-way houses or on parole in order to free space.

Housing Rationed For Poor Is Claim

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Cries concerning the need to provide suitable housing for the low-income earner are falling on the deaf ears of the federal and provincial governments, Whitby Mayor Desmond Newman said Tuesday night.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Canadian Association of Housing and Renewal Officials, Mayor Newman said the government's still hold to attitude that the problem of the low-wage earner are "fundamentally irresolvable."

Mayor Newman, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said present policies "ration" housing to the poor with the result that it undermines their self-re-liance, and human dignity.

He termed public housing in Canada as just the "dole" designed to keep the poorer half of the nation as perpetual wards of the state.

The mayor called for a whole new approach to social problems—an approach which would provide modest accommodation to those unable to afford existing housing rather than continually providing subsidized housing.

The senior levels of government will have to recognize the important role that municipalities can play if these goals are to be achieved, he said.

Non-union Quebeckers Said Hired at Cornwall

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A group of unemployed construction workers said Tuesday they plan information pickets at every construction project in this area to protest the use of non-union workers from Quebec.

Jerry Baron, spokesman for the group, said, "Both the worker and the contractor are at a disadvantage when they have to compete against people from Quebec."

A skilled worker in Ontario spends five years as an apprentice before receiving certification from the department of labor, he said. But in Cornwall such a certified worker entitled to union rates cannot find a job.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

The cost of owning and operating an automobile is a major expense for Canada's more than six million car owners. For some, it may be their largest single expense; for many it is second only to food and housing. Annually, more than $10 billion is spent on car purchases, automotive taxes, gasoline, parts, accessories and car insurance.

Many a motorist has only a passing interest in what all motorists spend, either, he wants to know how much it costs him to drive his car. This is a difficult question to answer, for almost every car operating cost item is variable.

Costs may be broken down into two categories, variable and fixed. Variable items are directly related to the number of miles driven, how hard the car is used, and how much is spent on service and repair. Fixed costs include insurance, licence and registration fees and depreciation.

The cost of fuel and lubricant varies greatly and depends on how the car is driven, the type of driving, (city, the loads carried and the general condition of the vehicle.

The best way to determine your gas and oil operating costs is to develop your own figures. An easy way is to fill the gas tank until fuel is visible in the filler neck. Record the odometer mileage. Drive normally until the tank is almost empty, then have it refilled to the same level. Divide the number of miles driven since the start of the test by the number of gallons required to fill the tank; the result is the number of miles per gallon you are getting from your car. Repeat the test several times each year for accuracy.

It is important to make the test under conditions which you normally encounter. If you drive mainly in the city, don't wait until you are taking a trip to make the test. Mileage on the open road is normally better than in traffic. You can test for oil consumption in the same way, but remember to add the complete cost of an oil change each time you have this done. The increasing use of credit cards has made these computations easier for many a motorist.

Maintenance cost varies from car to car even more than the cost per mile of gas and oil. During the first year of a new car's life, it may amount to no more than the cost of the maintenance program required by the manufacturer to keep the warranty valid. At the other extreme, some motorists may find it necessary to spend hundreds of dollars for mechanical repairs, replacement of parts and repair of body damage. Money saved by neglecting needed repairs will usually show up in the form of increased depreciation. A motor tune-up and adjustment twice a year — preferably in the spring and fall — will prevent this.

The only way to determine accurately the cost of maintenance is to keep a record of all expenditures.

Tire costs, like fuel costs, also vary from car to car. The type of driving and the type of driver are both factors. High speeds, warm climates, hard cornering, rapid acceleration and quick stops all contribute to fast tire wear and increase car operation costs. A conservative motorist who buys a new car each year may spend nothing extra on tires. On the other hand, the motorist who must replace a set of tires every year may spend from $80 to $200, depending on the size, type and quality of tires chosen. The average cost per mile for tires is slightly more than one-half cent.

The cost of insurance premiums is a definite part of total vehicle operating costs, they are listed under fixed costs because they do not fluctuate with the number of miles driven. To determine insurance costs simply add the premiums of all policies you carry that are directly related to car operation, such as public liability, property damage, collision, fire and theft and medical payment.

• Licence and registration fees should be treated as fixed annual costs. Federal and provincial sales taxes, which are paid only when the vehicle is bought, should be considered a part of the total purchase price, but should not be prorated in calculating annual operating costs.

One method the average motorist might use to figure depreciation is to determine the cash outlay necessary to replace his car with a new one in the same price class and with the same optional equipment.

Following is a breakdown of the national average cost figures computed by Runzheimer and Company for the 1972 Chevelle, eight cylinder, Malibut, four door sedan equipped with standard accessories, radio, automatic transmission and power steering.

| VARIABLE COSTS | AVG. PER MILE |
| Gasoline and Oil | 3.30 cents |
| Maintenance | .86 cents |
| Tires | .59 cents |
| | 4.75 cents |
| FIXED COSTS | ANNUALLY |
| $25 deductible fire and theft insurance | $24.00 |
| $100 deductible collision insurance | $135.00 |
| Property damage and liability ($300M inclusive) | $159.00 |
| Licence and registration | $30.00 |
| Depreciation | $705.00 |
| | $1,110.00 |
| | (or $3.04 per day) |

For mileage in excess of 15,000 annually, an additional depreciation allowance of $18.50 per thousand should be added to the fixed costs. The depreciation allowance of $705.00 is an average annual figure predicated on car trade-in value of the Chevelle at the end of four years or 80,000 miles.

Food Price Board Not Planned

NDP leader Stephen Lewis had made the suggestion in the legislature after noting that "a whole variety of food companies" made profits ranging from 24 per cent to 83 per cent over the last year.

He asked whether "now is the time to appoint a prices review board for the province . . . before which these companies would have to justify increases in food costs?"

No Foreign Bid

LONDON (Reuter) — Rolls-Royce Motors Ltd. did not attract any foreign bidders when put up for sale Tuesday.

A number of British offers were delivered to the London office of N. M. Rothschilds, the merchant bankers acting for Rolls-Royce.

Bank officials refused to say how many bids had come in and what price was offered for the firm that makes the famous luxury limousines.

Subway Arrest

TORONTO (CP) — A Metropolitan Toronto police constable and a robbery suspect confronted each other with revolvers drawn in a subway station Tuesday, minutes after the $3,594 holdup of a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Constable Robert Hunter said he ordered the man to drop his weapon, and the suspect did. About 30 persons were waiting for a subway train at the time.

Kiril Karov, 26, was charged with armed robbery.

JOHN TURNER

Plan Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial health and finance ministers, who meet here next week with their federal counterparts, Marc Lalonde and John Turner, may be offered a few "refinements" on methods of financing health-care programs.

However, a spokesman for Health Minister Marc Lalonde's office said Tuesday any changes will be "minor modifications" on the federal government's proposal presented to the provinces last January.

Heads CP

TORONTO (CP) — Gabriel Gilbert of Quebec Le Soleil was re-elected president of The Canadian Press for 1973-74 at a meeting Tuesday of the board of directors following the annual meeting of the national news co-operative.

Norman Smith of Ottawa Journal was re-elected honorary president.

Parole Change

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Parole Board has discontinued its practice of meeting face-to-face with potential parolees.

T. George Street, chairman of the parole board, said in an interview Tuesday that the decision was made because of the heavy case load of applicants.

Reporter Wounded In Office

MONTREAL (CP) — A Le Devoir reporter specializing in covering organized crime who was shot in the arm Tuesday in the newspaper's newsroom, says he has "already been warned a couple of times."

Jean-Pierre Charbonneau, 23, who has been covering the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime, spent the night in St. Luc hospital under police guard after being treated for a gunshot wound and fracture of the left forearm.

He was watching the Stanley Cup playoff game on television in Le Devoir's newsroom about 9:30 p.m. when a man witnesses described as dark-haired and in his mid-20s, entered and asked for Jean-Pierre Charbonneau.

When the reporter approached the counter near the newsroom door, the visitor drew a pistol and fired a shot which ricased and lodged in a wall.

The man fired a second shot as he rounded the counter and Mr. Charbonneau then dove for cover behind the counter.

The second shot also lodged in a wall but the third struck the reporter in the arm as he squirmed on the floor of the newsroom trying to duck the fire.

The assailant then fled out a back fire escape into the near-deserted streets in the city's financial district, not far from Place d'Armes.

Cheese Quota Increase Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William A. Steiger, (R.—Wis.) Tuesday described the president's decision to increase cheese import quotas by 50 per cent as shortsighted and unfair to consumers and producers.

"Our supply of cheese is presently increasing because of the flush spring dairy season and there is no shortage of cheese at this point," Steiger said. "If shortages existed, I would support a temporary increase to meet the demand, but that is simply not the case now."

Autonomy Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Fully-independent Canadian sections of international unions are a "foregone conclusion" within the next 20 years, William Dodge, secretary-treasurer of the 1.8 million-member Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), said Tuesday.

Co-ordinate Management Of Great Lakes Is Urged

WASHINGTON (CP) — A group of academics from Canada and the United States called on the two governments Tuesday to bring all the resources of the Great Lakes under co-ordinated management, replacing the "crisis management" which they said prevails now.

They specifically asked Congress to pass a resolution urging President Nixon to start talks with Ottawa, aimed at developing a joint study of all aspects of the Great Lakes and setting up a more effective institution to anticipate and deal with mutual problems.

The request was presented to a house foreign affairs subcommittee by two spokesmen for the university group, Professor George Francis of the University of Waterloo in Ontario and Professor Leonard H. Dworsky of Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

Their detailed 50-page report was the fruit of three seminars held at York University in Toronto and Cornell, involving faculty members from some 20 universities in Canada and the U.S., as well as government observers from both countries.

Car Believed Victim of Arson

Andre Mercier, centre, shows Fire Chief Leo Culhane rear end of car gutted in Church Street garage fire last night. At right is the car's owner, Josephine Tickell. Investigators said the fire is believed to have started near a rubber tire used as a bumper for backing the car in.

Elementary School Students' Year Is Shorter by 10 Days

Public and separate school boards here have made it official — elementary school pupils will get 10 extra holidays next year.

The decision was made last Thursday and released today by the Hastings county board, the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board and the Brockney board of education at CFB Trenton.

The 10 extra days will not be holidays for teachers. They will be in attendance for professional development, curriculum development and planning and evaluation chores while their pupils are out of school.

Prince Edward county's board of education, originally included in the deliberations about the extra pupil holidays, opted out of the three-board co-operative scheme. The Prince Edward board decided to give their secondary school teachers 12 days next year for professional development and their elementary teachers five days.

Secondary teachers here will continue to have the traditional last two weeks of school in June free for development and evaluation.

The extra days allotted to elementary school teachers for the first time brings them more in line with the secondary teachers.

The ministry of education this year gave school boards the option to grant 12 such days in the 1973-74 school year to elementary school staffs. The result was a flurry of decision - making across the province, with trustees looking warily over their shoulders for parents' reaction as they debated how many days to cut.

Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board considered the 10 days agreed upon by the public school board, then cut back to five days and finally decided on the 10 days. About 48 school buses routes serve both separate and public school pupils, making agreement between the two boards almost essential.

Other boards have gone all out and given their teachers 12 days next year. Among them are Toronto and Leaside and Addington county.

Under the scheme adopted here, elementary pupils will be released three days earlier next year, on June 25, giving their teachers the last three days of June for evaluation and planning.

Other paid holidays in the 1973-74 school year will be Sept. 28, Oct. 24, Nov. 11, Jan. 1, Feb. 14 and 15 and May 23.

School will begin next year on Sept. 4. For the record, statutory holidays, when pupils and teachers will be out of school, will be Thanksgiving day, Oct. 8; Christmas holidays, Dec. 24 to Jan. 2 inclusive; winter break, March 18 to 22; Good Friday and Easter Monday, April 12 and 15, and Victoria Day, May 20.

A Flame for Scarborough

Jake Berkhuizen (left) and Paul Mercier, president and general manager of P.M. Industries, admire the completed torch before shipping to Scarborough where it will hang in the display case of the War Memorial Lounge at the Scarborough Municipal Town Centre. Conceived by Jim Wilkinson of Raymond Moriyama Architects and Planners, the torch was designed and crafted in Belleville by Mr. Berkhuizen. The moulded acrylic orange flame houses a cleverly co-ordinated system of flashing lights that create a realistic fire-flicker. Cast near Toronto by Skarn Foundry, the 75-pound bronze flame was plated with stainless steel by International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd., Belleville.

Mystery Firebug Sought

Papers taken from the office of Rollins executive Bob Marcoste were found at the scene of the fire which burned through the garage ceiling and gutted the back end of a car parked inside.

First notice of trouble came at 1.45 a.m. from Andre Mercier, operator of a jewelry repair shop at 252 Church St.

"I was watching a late movie when I saw a light in the back yard next door," Mr. Mercier said this morning. "I thought it must be the police."

He returned to his movie but was startled when he looked out the window and noticed a garage door open.

"I couldn't see too well through the window so I went out," he said. "I found myself face-to-face with this person who was carrying a match. I talked for a moment to him but he just mumbled back and walked by out the yard. That's when I decided to call the police."

Moments later, Mr. Mercier saw what appeared to be light coming from beneath the twin garage doors, closed after the confrontation.

Realizing the garage was on fire, he called the Belleville Fire Department.

The flames were quickly extinguished but not before a storage area in the garage's attic was blackened and a car owned by Josephine Tickell, who lives above Mr. Mercier and owns the garage, had been damaged.

Mr. Mercier told police the man he met appeared to be between 20 and 25 years old. He described him as short and said he was wearing a white T-shirt and gray pants.

Also called to the scene were Paul Mckerracke of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office and police detectives.

While the investigation was proceeding, a Patterson St. woman phoned the station to report someone on her roof. Constable Robert Cooper, at the fire site, could see a man whose general appearance coincided with the description Mr. Mercier had given but by the time he reached the house with a ladder the person had fled.

It was about an hour later when an officer on patrol noticed a window in the front door of Rollins Construction was smashed and the Victoria St. office had been ransacked.

Third Car Stolen

Larry Good of Madoc, already charged with two counts of car theft, faces a third charge following recovery of a vehicle taken from the Canadian Tire parking lot in Madoc Tuesday.

Good, 19, was stopped shortly before 8 p.m. while he was southbound on highway 14. He was at the wheel of a 1965 Chevrolet.

A gas station attendant on Highway 62 at Ridge Road told police someone driving a car of the same description left with a full tank without paying shortly after the Canadian Tire theft was reported.

Earlier in the afternoon, Mr. Good was released from National Parole Regional Detention Centre where he was taken after being charged with stealing two cars in March and Belleville Monday. He was also charged with theft of gasoline from a station opposite the site where he is alleged to have swindled it.

A bail hearing was scheduled for this afternoon.

Townships Seek Change in Grants

The northern Hastings county municipality of Bangor, Wicklow and Methuen wants the Ontario government to change its grant system to county school boards which it claims is resulting in high mill rates in the rural municipalities.

The combined townships have passed a resolution asking Clarke T. Rollins, Hastings MPP, to use his influence to have the provincial government change its formula of calculating school grants "so that rural municipalities receive a more equitable break in school levies."

The resolution claims the present grant structure allows mill rates to be lowered in larger urban centres but raised mill rates excessively in small rural municipalities.

The northern township is asking Hastings county council to endorse the resolution at the county council session scheduled for next week.

Hospital Bikeathon Saturday

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital's first bikeathon will be held this Saturday, with all funds to be used to refurbish the children's ward.

Mrs. William Ellis, head of the bikeathon committee, reports more than 1,000 riders have signed up for the event, postponed from last weekend due to poor weather.

The route, 24 miles in all, begins at Trenton High School, moves along Highway 2 to the Dug Hill Road, north to Station Road, and west to the Wooler Road. From there, cyclists will bend north through Wooler, east on Northumberland - Durham County Road 39 through Stockdale and Hastings County Road 4 along Station Street, down Creekman Avenue to West Street. Once over the MacDonald Bridge, the turf-raisers will head along Division Street and King, to return to the high school.

Mrs. Ellis says so many availabilities have been held, a new venture was in order.

She anticipates the fastest times will range around 2½ hours, with slower bikers coming in between five and six hours after the 8 a.m. - 9 a.m. start.

Members of the 5-Watters Radio Club will be stationed at each of the six check points, as well as those manning mobile cars. Two nurses from the hospital will also be on duty at the check points.

Trenton Backs Guelph Move

TRENTON — Town council has backed a city of Guelph resolution to the ministry of education recommending that vacancies on school boards should be filled by a resident of the municipality.

Previously the Boards of Education Act sets down policy that "where a vacancy occurs from any cause in an urban school board or a township school area board and the remaining trustees constitute a majority of the membership of the board . . . a majority of the remaining trustees shall . . . elect some qualified person to fill the vacancy."

The motion for agreement was made by Councillor Edward Todd.

Hard Work to Follow

Students' Job Centre Now Open for Business

While students filed in to register for summer work, a brief and informal ceremony saw the Canada Manpower Student Summer Employment Office at 19-21 Wallbridge Crescent officially opened.

Canada Manpower supervisor Frank Martin said the student centre, now in its fifth year, had been the first in Canada with separate premises. "We thought it would give the student a sense of identity, and encourage students to use the facilities," he said.

"The department is going all out to find summer jobs," said Mr. Martin. "We have been granted the authority to hire five people for the summer and given resources for advertising campaigns locally."

Loyalist College was thanked by Mr. Martin. The college donated the use of the premises on Wallbridge Crescent and Mr. Martin said it released funds that could be made use of for further advertising.

"In short we hope this will be the best year ever," he said.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey took the opening party that back the Belleville Industrial Commission and City Council would be encouraging industry to hire students. Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said, "I'll certainly be calling on you to try to find jobs for people who come to me."

Marilyn Williams has been appointed Graduate Officer and has already spent several months preparing for the summer. She will supervise four students, one a male. Asked how her work was going Miss Williams said "a few weeks ago is looked pretty grim.

"It's going to be a hard summer but it should improve now that employers know we're open," she said. "We have 15 jobs available now, maybe 20 at maximum.

"We had up to 50 students in before 10 a.m., but most were here just to register," said Miss Williams.

Loyalist College, the Belleville Industrial Commission, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the Quinte and District Labor Council were also represented at the opening. Mr. Martin, represented Canada Manpower in the absence of CMC manager, H. W. Karn. He explained Mr. Karn was representing following an operation.

Principals Appointed

BLOOMFIELD—The Prince Edward board of education Tuesday announced the appointment of new principals for two county elementary schools.

Effective 1 September, 1973, Wayne Lindsay, now a teacher at Kente school in Ameliasburgh, will replace Arthur Jackson, retiring principal of Sophiasburgh Central school.

Milton Snider, principal of Wellington Consolidated school will be replaced this fall by Keith Barnett, at present a staff member of the school.

County Council Meets Next Week

It's budget time again for the senior county administrative body and next week Hastings county councillors will meet in a two-day session to strike the 1973 mill rate.

The session is called for Tuesday and Wednesday, May 8 and 9.

At the session, councillors will receive the county auditor's report and will hear reports from standing committees.

Also, a resolution from St. Catharines calling for further revision of the municipal election act will be considered.

The resolution calls for a review of enumeration procedures in order that the work may be carried out with more proficiency and greater accuracy, that ballots data be posted in more places, that one identical set of qualifications be established for candidates for council, school boards and other boards.

The resolution also asks that election day be changed from Monday to Saturday and that legislation be enacted to permit the sale of alcoholic beverages on election day.

Canadiens Stop Hawks 4-1

Bowman's Hunch Pays Off

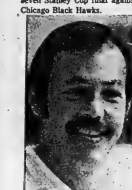
MONTREAL (CP) — Scotty Bowman played a hunch Tuesday night and it paid dividends as Montreal Canadiens took the second game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final against Chicago Black Hawks.



YVAN COURNOYER
Two Goal Shooter

Yvan Cournoyer fired a pair of goals and team-mates Pierre Bouchard and Frank Mahovlich added singles as Montreal dumped the Hawks 4-1 to take a 2-0 lead in the series, watch resumes Thursday night in Chicago.

Bowman's hunch was simple. He decided to put Mahovlich out on a line with Jacques Lemaire and Cournoyer near the 12-minute mark of the second period. The score was tied 1-1 at the time as Cliff Koroll had scored for the Hawks about six minutes earlier after Bouchard had scored the lone goal in the opening session for Montreal.

The Hawks' Bill White and Pat Stapleton appeared to get their signals mixed in their own zone and Mahovlich managed to come up with the puck near the boards. He quickly hit Cournoyer with a pass and the little right winger notched his 10th goal of the playoffs, the game-winner.

"When I put Frank with those two in the second game against Buffalo, the line scored four goals," Bowman noted. "I thought they might get one tonight and they did very quickly."

Mahovlich said White tried to pass the puck off the boards and it took a funny hop so the Montreal winger, He had no trouble potting Cournoyer who fired the puck into the lower right-hand corner.

The Canadiens controlled Tuesday's game for the most part as the Hawks managed only 19 shots on goal, five in the first period, eight in the second and six in the third. Montreal had 30 drives at Tony Esposito and had period leads of 1-0 and 3-1.

Three of their eight shots in the second came in one flurry that led to Koroll's fourth goal of the playoffs. Koroll picked up Dick Redmond's rebound and had no trouble flipping the puck past Canadiens netminder Ken Dryden, who was left defenseless.

The Hawks did not get a shot in the third to rival until 19:00 when Dennis Hull lassoed a shot from the left wing that Dryden blocked.

"It was a typical game against Chicago," Dryden said. You seem to be in control offensively, but they're in control defensively."

"Halfway in the second period you think you should be leading 3-0, but you're only up by one. They play good defensive hockey.

"They're opportunistic. They don't waste their shots."

WASTE ONE

The Hawks did waste one shot as Ralph Backstrom strode in on Dryden and tried to deke him and flip the puck over him.

"The puck just tipped my glove," Dryden said.

"I don't know how he stopped it," said Backstrom. "I thought I had him. I gave him my best move, my absolute best move.

It was big save because Montreal was only ahead 2-1 at the time and it was late in the second period.

Despite the loss, the coach Billy Reay of the Hawks was not disappointed with the performance of his club.

"I thought we played our game a little more tonight. I was not disappointed with our effort."

CLIFF KOROLL
Hawks' Marksman

When asked if that meant slowing the pace down, Reay replied:

"You said that. I didn't. You can draw your own conclusions."

Reay had two injuries to concern him as well as the loss. Defenceman Doug Jarrett pulled a muscle in his back early in the game when he crashed in the ice under Montreal's Rejean Houle.

Stan Mikita, the veteran centre, still has his middle finger on his right hand in a splint as a result of an injury Sunday and he says the injury "is not getting any better."

Jarrett said he should be able to play in Thursday's third game, which will get under way at 8:35 p.m. EDT.

Whalers Wary Of Hull's Jets

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Jack Kelley of New England Whalers was pleased to win the opening game of the World Hockey Association final Sunday in Boston but isn't happy with the remaining playoff schedule.

"What if we had lost that first game? . . . think of the spot we'd be in then . . . those first two games at home are very important. What other professional club would give up the advantage of the first two games at home?"

Kelley was referring to the second and third games of the best-of-seven final, being played tonight and Thursday in Winnipeg, although New England won the right to the first two home games by finishing the regular season with 94 points four more than the Jets.

New England won the first game 7-2, but because of a circus in Winnipeg Arena next week, the second and third games were moved to Winnipeg with the fourth and fifth at Boston.

The fact that the Jets will play only two home games because of the unavailability of the arena even if the series goes to a sixth game, didn't bother Kelley, who said his club "worked all season" for those first two home games.

If a sixth is needed, it has been set for Toronto. Boston would get the seventh game.

"But we're here now and we're looking to win two games. However, if we only win one, I'll be pleased."

Despite the lopsided score of the opening game, the New England coach said his club will not go into tonight's 8 p.m. CDT game feeling overconfident.

"We didn't play at all well Sunday and the guys know it. We were outshot 14-7 in the first period but came out ahead 4-1 because Al (Smith) played so well.

Throughout the season, the Jets have been led by the high-scoring threesome of Hull, Chris Bordeleau and Norm Beaudin, but Kelley doesn't plan to send out any special checkers.

"I tried that during the season but they play two normal shifts and our guys aren't used to that. We just put out our normal rotation. The guys know when they are out against that line they have to watch things a little closer."

The Whalers coach said he is confident who ever is playing opposite the highest-scoring line in the league "can skate with Bobby" and keep a close watch.

"What you have to watch is overplaying. Some guys . . . which they tend to do. And he can get the puck over to those other two. They've been sharp and worked that to their advantage all season.

Tough Tigers

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — Tough, talented and controversial are the Medicine Hat Tigers who will represent the West this season in the Memorial Cup final.

Medicine Hat earned the honor by defeating Edmonton Oil Kings in the Western Division final of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, and conquering Saskatoon Quakers, Eastern Division champions, in the final.

Their victory march was dotted with disputes. They led the league in penalty minutes and had Bob Gassoff and Jim McCrimmon tagged as hatchet-men throughout most of the league.

During the best-of-seven final series with Saskatoon, McCrimmon and one of the owners, Rod Carey, were disciplined by the league's executive for their part in a brawl. Carey was asked to pay a $1,000 bond and McCrimmon was fined $75 for receiving a minor penalty, misconduct and game misconduct in the same game, the second of the series which Medicine Hat won in five games.

Gould Leads Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — John Gould ended an eight-game playoff scoring drought Tuesday with a pair of power-play goals to lead Cincinnati Swords to a 4-3 victory and a 2-1 series lead over Virginia Red Wings in American Hockey League action.

The best-of-seven series moves to Norfolk, Wednesday for Game 4.

Steve Richardson scored the winning goal at 11:33 in the third period when he tipped in a shot by Norm Dennis after goalie Doug Grant had stopped it.

Eastern Hockey League Is Dissolved

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern Hockey League, at its annual meeting in New York Tuesday, announced the formal dissolution of the EHL and the creation of two separate leagues, one based in the north and the other operating out of the south.

The northern league, titled the North American Hockey League, plans to begin play this fall with a minimum of six clubs. Charter members include the Cape Cod Cubs, Mohawk Valley Comets, Johnstown, Pa., Jets and the Binghamton, N.Y. Dusters.

The Mohawk Valley team was known during the 1972-73 season as the Clinton Comets.

The southern league, titled Cape Cod, Mohawk Valley and Johnstown were members of the now disbanded EHL.

Earlier Tuesday, the Southern Hockey League was formed, with franchises granted to Charlotte, N.C., Greensboro, N.C., Winston-Salem, N.C., Roanoke Valley, Va. and St. Petersburg, Fla. With the exception of the Winston-Salem team, all the clubs were formerly members of the EHL.

BMHA House League Finals Completed

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

The Belleville Real Estate bantam majors had little trouble against their opposition during regular season play and even less against the Y's Men's Club in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's division grand championship Tuesday.

Led by Tom Britton's two goals, Estate skated to an 8-0 victory and shattered any hope the Y Men's had of handing the division's pennant winners the second loss of their 30 game schedule.

Estate completed their season with the grand championship match last night. They finished their season with a won-loss-tie record of 25-1-4.

Despite the weight and height advantage Y's Men's had in centre Brian Masterson, winger Wayne Williams and defenceman John Stoneham, the Estate club knocked the stuffing out of goaltender Ted Coates. Estate outplayed as well as outshot Y's Men's blue line, and came in alone to polish off the Estate victory with 11 seconds remaining in the final period.

Though fighting for a losing cause, Y's Men winger Rodger Saddad played his kind of hockey that one expects to see on an all-star team. Despite being one of the smallest members of his club, the winger had a considerable amount of the noble, but punishing art of checking.

In the bantam minor grand championship match between Canadian Legion and Bells Cleaners, Wally Inwood scored three goals to lead the Legion to a 5-3 victory.

John Wood scored two goals for the Bend Johnson club while Frank Smith, Gary Stapley and Ron Ferguson each notched singles. Dan Bell netted a pair for Cleaners while Fred Gordon, Greg Tobin and Bill McQuaid added singles.

Denmark may have finished at the top of the midget house league division, but they could not top the Bend Johnson club in the BMHA grand championship game.

Ross Lawreson, Brian Hastings, Mare Boyd and Danny Murray combined their single goal scoring efforts to notch a 4-1 score against Denmark. Gerald Gorrie provided the lone goal for the losers.

Teams Agree With Eagles

Belleville Screaming Eagles are not the only senior hockey club in the province that believes drastic changes in the league format are necessary. That fact became apparent at a recent meeting in Toronto when representatives of other senior teams put suggestions forth that call for even more sweeping alterations than those that Eagles' representatives had planned to propose.

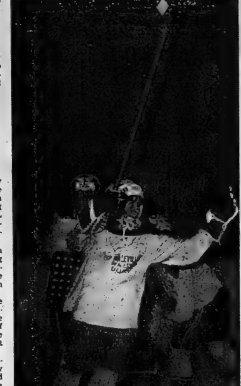
New plans are still in the formulative stage as yet since Orillia Terriers are still in the hunt for the Allen Cup and were not represented at the meeting. Firm decisions will be made at a May 15 meeting in Toronto.

Items discussed at last weekend's session: the creation of a money pool whereby financially strong senior teams would help the weak; the establishment of a rule making 8 necessary for each team to sign 10 players under the age of 19, and, of these, five must be under 21; the possibility of attracting new teams; a change in the name of the league; the promotion of the league; a working agreement with the NHL which would see young players developed for future delivery to the big time.

In an effort to make a team think seriously before folding during the season, the performance bond filed with the league has been upped from $1,000 to $2,500.

The reason for all these changes? Team representatives agree that during the 1972-73 season, the calibre of player in the league was the best in years but they didn't prove it on the ice.

Hungry young players, aiming for careers in pro hockey could change all that. Fitted into the teams along with a smattering of older, talented players who can provide the stilling effect and experience necessary, the youth movement is being counted on to make senior hockey a competitive, crowd pleasing sport.



Centre Rob Richardson may not have scored the goal, but he had every reason to celebrate winger Dave Elmy's success. Elmy beat Y's Men's Club goalie Ted Coates for the seventh goal in Belleville Real Estate's 8-0 victory in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's bantam major grand champion.hip game.

Switch to Fridays Should Benefit Fans

Quinte Exhibition Raceway officials are hoping for a long and ever growing friendship with Belleville's harness racing fans starting at 8 p.m. Friday.

The day and time of the first race of the 23 event season are two of the changes the QER has made not only for the benefit of the fans but also for the horses running the stone dust oval.

Since last year's Saturday race day proved to be a problem for the three bodies performing racing in Ontario, the raceway directors chose to comply with the superintendent's request for a change.

The Ontario Racing Commission, the Canadian Trotting Association and the Race Track Supervision branch of the Department of Agriculture were experiencing difficulty supplying officials to both the Belleville oval and Peterborough's Kawartha Downs last year. Both racepays ran Saturdays.

With the shift to Friday, Belleville fits into the Wednesday through Sunday racing circuit completed by Kingston's Frontenac Downs.

"It was a case of a duplication of services from one day of the week," said Ex Gowsell, Quinte Exhibition raceway manager. "In the interests of co-operating with them we changed our race day to Friday."

The fans can do nothing but benefit from the change according to Gowsell.

In compensation for the change of date, the three bodies allowed the QER to choose to race on any of the holiday Monday afternoons during the summer. Gowsell said that May 21, July 2, and September 3 were chosen by the raceway's directors as holiday race days. Post time will be 11:30 p.m.

"Also with us going to Friday," said Gowsell, "we may get some horses that we did not get last year. They can't be in two places at once after all."

With Kawartha Downs in a new $1.5 - million plant, Peterborough's has a greater drawing power than our smaller raceway. There won't be as much of a scramble for horses either.

"With only 240 horses in the three city circuit, it was difficult to get horses to fill in for those that were scratched and that couldn't make it to the raceway."

The reduction of the number of races per card from 10 to nine at each oval should help to alleviate the shortage of pacers and trotters. As a result of the decrease in races the purse money can be increased.

Due to the Canadian Trotting Association before the 1972 season were a percentage of the purse money," said the QER manager. "But, in a way, starting last year, they changed it to a flat fee of $17 a race. This year, it's gone up to $24 per race.

"Because we're only running nine races instead of the 10, we can add that fee to our purse money.

For the time being, the daily double has been discontinued. By way of compensation for the fans, the futures will be increased.

In Friday's nine race card, the third and fifth and ninth races will be quinellas while the first will be heat trotters.

"We're offering more features at the beginning of the season," said Gowsell, "but if we find that crowd interest and the bet average have fallen, we can change back to the daily double anytime.

"The fans, however I have a feeling that it's going to be better. It's something that only time will tell."

Two Picton Teams May Enter BMLA

The Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association may be playing with a four team schedule next season.

Roy Payne wryly commented concerning the possible entry of Picton teams into the city's minor system.

Since Picton does not have a minor lacrosse organization, those boys in the town who wish to play lacrosse will be joining the Belleville system subject to the approval of the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association.

Dave Jones, who has been involved with lacrosse in Picton over the past five or six years said there are at least 14 players of bantam age which could comprise a team.

Depending upon further registration, a peewee team could also be entered.

However, the BMLA may receive some comments from people associated with the Middleton Park Trenton teams which played in the Belleville house league last year.

The Belleville executive was forced to disallow any further team representation in this city as a result of problems encountered with the bantam Tyke and the T-Birds peewee teams.

The Flyers were a strong team, finishing first in the division, but they were also the fighting team according to Payne. The players on the other hand were "getting the heck beaten out of them, and we couldn't help them."

Since Belleville players could not be put on the Trenton team to fortify the weaker players, the T-Birds were constantly being doubled by the remainder of the division.

After last year's difficult experiences with the out-of-town teams, the BMLA is again planning into the fire, but Payne hopes there will be no repeat performances.

"They'll definitely play as a team if they get enough registered players," said Payne, "but if they don't, then we'll split up the players so that do want to play among the Belleville teams."

Payne said that has to be faced is approval by Minor Sports executive and they indicated a favorable response to the application of the lacrosse association.

Only formal approval remains to be obtained at the BMSA's executive meeting tonight, Mike Fitzgerald, vice-president of the BMLA will represent lacrosse at the meeting.

Muldoons Combine

The brother act of Joe and Steve Muldoon combined their two goal efforts to lead the Nicholson Catholic College field lacrosse team to a 3 - 2 victory over Quinte Secondary Tuesday.

Despite Quinte's 2-1 lead going into the fourth quarter, Joe Muldoon took ball in stick to start and end the Nicholson attack on the two goals scored by the Saints Roger Chapman and Rick Calkin.

Joe's tallies sandwiched those of brother Steve and John Enwright. The sudden polish the three gave goaltender Steve Hale came with-in 4:06 of the end of the game and kept Quinte winless with a two loss one tie record.

Quinte came up with a 3-3 tie against Centennial during one of last week's rain storms.

Briggs Belts A's Blue Moon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee's John Briggs remembered the one hit he managed against Oakland's Blue Moon Odom last season. He'll also remember the two hits he walloped off the Athletics' right-hander Tuesday night.

Briggs, who earlier had expressed concern over his lack of runs batted in, hit a three-run triple and then belted a game-winning home run in the ninth as the Brewers defeated the A's 4-3 Tuesday night and moved into first place in the American League East.

"I had been getting my hits with nobody on base or I'd wind up sending someone from first to second or something like that," Briggs said. "But I figured it's a long season and I'd start getting some RBIs eventually.

"I think I got one hit off Odom last season," Briggs said. "We haven't gotten to see him very much but I saw him enough tonight."

In other American League games, California Angels whipped Detroit Tigers 6-2, Texas Rangers edged Boston Red Sox 7-6, New York Yankees crushed Kansas City Royals 9-1 and Chicago White Sox beat Baltimore Orioles 8-5. Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins were rained out at Bloomington, Minn.

Oakland took a 2-0 lead in the third on Gene Tenace's homer but Briggs then put the Brewers in front with his bases-loaded triple to left centre that was barely missed by A's outfielder Bill North.

Frank Robinson and Bob Oliver each drove in two runs as the Angels put together a 15-hit, six-run attack in the first five innings against the Tigers.

Robinson began the assault with his fourth homer of the season and 83rd of his career in the second inning and Oliver added a solo shot in the third.

The Tigers tallied in successive doubles by Norm Cash and Duke Sims in the fourth and an infield error in the eighth.

California's Bill Singer, who scattered five hits in raising his record to 4-1, appeared on the verge of the pitching doldrums which have plagued him the last two seasons.

Pinch-hitter Tom Grieve stole second and scored the winning run on Jeff Burroughs' two-out single in the ninth inning as the Rangers handed the slumping Red Sox their 11th defeat in 14 games.

Boston held a 6-3 lead until Texas unloaded a three-run rally in the sixth highlighted by Burroughs' fourth homer of the season.

A three-run homer by Bobby Murcer broke open a tight game and relief ace Sparky Lyle recorded his first save of the season as the Yankees posted their fourth straight victory.

Dick Allen hit two homers and Ed Herrmann added a two-run blast that carried the White Sox past the Orioles. Allen's first homer in the first scored into the double-decked left field stands and bounced out of the park.

Giants Add To Bucs' Woes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Bill Virdon of Pittsburgh Pirates got less than news Tuesday night . . . and then he got some worst news.

First the bad news: Virdon was ejected by umpire Doug Harvey with the bases loaded and two out in the bottom of the ninth inning for protesting ball-and-strike calls.

Now the worse news: With Virdon on the way to the clubhouse, Bobby Bonds slammed a three-run double that capped a seven-run explosion and lifted San Francisco Giants to a stunning 8-7 National League baseball triumph over the slumping Pirates.

Elsewhere in the league, Chicago Cubs trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3, Montreal Expos outslugged Atlanta Braves 9-6 despite a pair of home runs by Hank Aaron, Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 as Jerry Reuss outdueled Steve Carlton and San Diego Padres pounded St. Louis Cardinals 10-5. The New York Mets and Cincinnati Reds were not scheduled.

Pittsburgh's Bob Moose was breezing along with a five-hitter and a 7-1 lead when he walked Bonds to open the ninth.

He recovered to get a pair of forceouts, but then he issued two more walks and pinch-hitter Chris Arnold tagged reliever Ramon Hernandes for a grand slam home run.

It was Bonds' fifth game-winning hit of the young season and gave the Giants' their 19th triumph in 25 games and a four-game bulge over Houston and Cincinnati in the NL West.

Fourth-inning runs by Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Jose Cardenal powered the Cubs over Los Angeles. It was Chicago's fourth win in a row and boosted them into a first-place tie with the idle Mets in the NL East, the first time since June 21, 1970—to-next for opening day—they've been that high.

Fred Kendall and Dave Campbell each drove in three runs and Gary Coleman doubled home two more as San Diego trounced St. Louis. It ended the Cards' 16th defeat in 19 games and their seventh loss on the road, where they have yet to win.

Pinch-hitter Hal Breeden's bases-loading infield hit with the bases loaded and Ron Hunt's single scored the first three runs in the eighth inning and led Montreal over Atlanta despite the 700th and 680th career homers by Aaron.

1973 Derby Could Be Richest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Top speed horses like Shecky Greene and Royal and Regal and quality finishers such as Secretariat and Sham are expected to make the 99th Kentucky Derby one of the fastest.

"The way everybody is working, the race will be run in close to two minutes," Lucien Laurin, the Canadian trainer of favored Secretariat said Tuesday.

The Derby and Churchill Downs track record for 1¼ miles is 2:00 by Northern Dancer in 1964.

A field of 15 three-year-olds was shaping up and if that many start, Saturday's Derby would be the richest, with $148,300 to the winner.

"With so much speed you don't know what's going to happen," said Laurin. "One of the speed horses might forget to stop."

In 1947 Jet Pilot broke on the lead and stayed there instead of fading to win by a head over the fast-finishing Phalanx.

Besides Shecky Greene and Royal and Regal, other front runners expected in the Derby field were Knightly Dawn and Angle Light owned by Ed Whittaker of Toronto.

Knightly Dawn will run as part of the Sigmund Sommer rowned entry with Sham, who won the Santa Anita Derby in a sizzling 1:47 for 1⅛ miles.

"With so much speed you don't know what's going to happen," said Laurin. "One of the speed horses might forget to stop."

track record of 1:08 3-5 for six furlongs, equalled a Gulfstream track record of 1:36 4-5 for seven furlongs and ran seven furlongs in 1:23 in winning by almost five lengths in the Stepping Stone Purse at the Downs last Saturday.

Lou Goldfine, who also trains Arthur Appleton's stretch-running Mr Gallant, the Blue Grass Stakes winner, isn't keen about starting Shecky Greene but Kellman obviously is.

"We've had a doubtful starter any more," Kellman said of Shecky Greene's status Tuesday. "We're a probable starter."

Athletics Still Have Franchise

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Athletics still have a franchise to Major League Softball Inc., but they'll have to come up with $25,000 by May 9 to keep it.

Fred Troinor, general manager of the Athletics, said in an interview Tuesday night his club now must come up with $5,000 by Thursday and an additional $20,000 by May 9.

Last week, Mitch Litman, executive director of the league, said the Toronto club had until Monday night to come up with $25,000 to acquire the league's equity in the franchise.

The club failed to meet that deadline, but Trainor took part by telephone in a league directors' meeting held Tuesday night at Harrisburg, Pa.

The directors required Trainor to produce a certified cheque for $5,000 by Thursday. Because of the Athletics' uncertain status, Trainor wasn't sure when their 56 game schedule would open.

On Monday, Pat Patterson, general manager of Montreal, said that Chattanooga was being considered as a possible new site for the Toronto franchise.

"It gets lonely in here with all the holding. By the way—what are you doing after this host?"

Lakers Hang on for Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers built a 30-point lead and then barely hung on for a 115-112 victory over New York Knicks Tuesday night in the opener of their best-of-seven playoff series for the National Basketball Association championship.

Gail Goodrich led the Lakers with 30 points, eight of them in the fourth quarter when New York staged its big rally behind the shooting of Dave DeBusschere and Bill Bradley.

Still the big difference in the outcome was the defensive play of Wilt Chamberlain, who hauled down 20 rebounds and controlled the boards through the first three periods.

With just one minute and 12 seconds to go in the third quarter, the Lakers led 93-73 and held a 95-79 edge at the end of the third period.

Then, with DeBusschere scoring nine points and Bradley eight, the Eastern champions steadily closed the gap until it stood at three points, 113-110 with 1:18 left in the game.

Goodrich missed two free throws, but the Knicks lost a chance to further close the gap on a bad pass from Walk Frazier intended for Earl Monroe.

DeBusschere led the losers with 25 points and 16 rebounds.

If you've let your new sweetness slip, there is nothing like a good summary to bring it back in line. Take the News Quiz today.

Jim Gosger Moves Up

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets have purchased journeyman outfielder Jim Gosger from their Tidewater farm club in the International League. Gosger, batting .319 with Tidewater, will join the Mets today in time for their National League game against Cincinnati. He fills the spot vacated by John Milner, on the 15-day disabled list with a hamstring pull.

GUIDE TO FOOD GRADES HELPS SHOPPERS

To help you shop more economically for food, Agriculture Canada has recently issued a handy pocket-sized Guide to Food Grades.

The word "Canada" in a grade name on a container or product indicates that the food has been graded according to standards of the Canada Department of Agriculture. The new booklet explains simply and clearly the grading of butter, cheddar cheese, skim milk powder, meat, poultry, eggs, fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, honey and maple syrup.

By using the guide you know when it is feasible to save through the grade you choose. For guests for instance, you might insist on Canada Grade "A" (finest quality produced) chicken or turkey. For the family, a Canada Utility bird, which has one or more part missing but must be Grade A or B, will save money.

You can get Guide to Food Grades free from Information Division, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0C7. And be sure to get my leaflet of Money-Saving Mealtime Pointers each week from your Miracle Food Mart.

Best Soviet Film in U.S. Strongbox

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a film in a United States storage vault that long has been an irritating thorn in the Soviet Union's side. It is Year to Lenin, an historical documentary of the Russian Revolution as well as a portrait of the men and events surrounding that 1917 insurrection.

The film, which is a part of a far larger Russian film archive, belongs to Herman Axelbank, a film-maker who devoted a lifetime to tracking down and snaring film of the Russian Revolution and the period preceding and succeeding it.

By a twist of history, Russian representatives now are negotiating with Axelbank for the acquisition of his film, available nowhere else.

Josef Stalin, in his long battle to have opponents in his country liquidated and to remove all memories and associations embarrassing to him, ordered vast amounts of film destroyed.

Axelbank, a man whose vigor and unbounded energy belie his 72 years, has spent more than half a century gathering footage of the Russian Revolution.

His film-hunting expeditions took him into Russia and to scattered sections of the globe. He has built up the most extensive film archive on Russia of the Tsarist, Leninist and Stalinist era.

"So complete is his archive that the Russians have come to him many times for footage.

Axelbank has amassed more than 5,000 reels of film.

The way he collected the footage for his Russian archives often made his life rival the melodrama of a movie thriller.

Fascinated from boyhood by motion pictures, Axelbank got his first job as an office boy to Samuel Goldwyn who later became movie studio owner Samuel Goldwyn. Axelbank moved on to become an assistant cameraman.

In 1917, on a snowy March afternoon, he spotted a newspaper headline: Revolution in Russia.

"I wish I could take motion pictures over there," he mused.

The idea took hold and he was to devote the rest of his life to a worldwide search for all the eyewitness films ever taken in Russia during, prior and following the civil war.

By forming associations with cameramen abroad he acquired films of the Kronstadt Mutiny of March, 1921, the trials of the social revolutionaries under Lenin, the purge trials of Stalin in the 30s.

While on the trail of film footage Axelbank was followed and threatened. At one time a mysterious fire destroyed some of the footage in his hidden compound in upstate New York.

On another occasion his car trunk was broken into and reels of irreplaceable film set on fire. While abroad his hotel room was looted and suitcases of film vanished.

But a new regime is in control in Russia and there is movement towards normal relations with the United States. And now Russia is negotiating to acquire the footage of those fateful days of revolution that marked a turning point in history.

What the Stars Say

By JEANNE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Creative but impractical schemes are the order of the day, none are intricate enough to be works of art.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Personal affairs run at such a pace that crowding is likely—you have conflicting appointments and colicate negotiations to settle.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): People who love you offer resistance, arguments, but eventually cooperate. Official, influential people work with you more readily.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You'll be proud you contain your restless impulsive as well as you do. Plan your time carefully, have an alternate course to follow.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The job at hand provides enough discussion without getting into complex, outside issues. If you can divide your work, do so, let others help.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In variable conditions, remain steady and calm as you listen carefully for a clue for what is most important.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The middle may offer special advantages—you get to know both sides as people and issues.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Having faced reality and possibly a vexing problem, you turn a corner late today. Routines and special deeds mesh to put you ahead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There's more humoring than persuading—and it's slowly and gently. Divide activities so everybody can participate.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make sure your projects leave plenty of time and space for others to move quickly. The doings of young people come to attention.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll be glad you asked before making an involved declaration —associates and family may have a different view.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Being well-mannered shouldn't mean letting friends prey into your personal concerns. Your candid comments could provoke mischief.

To Your Good Health

Measles Affects Brain in Some

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please explain post measles on the brain? Some doctors said it could be working on a child's brain as long as seven years, then he'll all of a sudden have a child like a vegetable or causing death. What are the chances of a child having this disease?—Mrs. F.F.

You can stop worrying about a child's brain being damaged seven years after having measles. If it is going to happen, it will happen in conjunction with the attack of measles or within a few days.

But measles can be dangerous. All these years it has been the usual thing to think of measles as "just one of the childhood diseases."

Usually, of course, youngsters recover readily from measles and the rest of it. Some, sometimes, however, complications can develop that are truly dangerous.

The most serious is encephalitis—that is, brain damage. Instead of causing only the usual rash and aching, sets up an inflammation in the brain. This can result in permanent brain damage. It can be fatal, too. And that is doubtless what you refer to as "post measles."

It occurs in something less than one case in 100, but that is enough to warrant efforts to prevent it. Indeed, the development of measles vaccine was especially necessary for the average child who got over the disease readily. The vaccine was needed primarily for the sake of the ones who develop serious complications.

Measles encephalitis brings on symptoms anywhere from one to 14 days after onset of the disease—symptoms such as stupor, headache, vomiting, and stiff neck.

Once the brain is involved, about half the children will have phalograms afterward, indicating that there has been permanent change in the brain.

The one means we have of preventing this sort of disaster is vaccination, and if enough people will see that their children are vaccinated, ultimately we can be pretty well rid of measles and some of the dangerous complications.

Vaccination against measles should be done at about the age of one year.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a mother of four and we have had this problem before: I had a baby nine months ago and have milk in my breasts. I did not breast-feed.

I took all the pills the doctor gave me to dry up the milk, and also used cabbage.

My breasts don't bother me, but I've heard this can be pretty painful. Is there anything I can do?—D.B.

Since medication has worked, the use of a tight binder may help.

Breast milk production (as you probably know) decreases when sucking ends. However it can take a variable amount of time, even in the same individual. As, also, you well know!

It is true that breasts can be painful under such circumstances but there's a difference between "pain" and "will."

Since you have no discomfort, I'd just wait it out—and use a snug-fitting bra.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How often should a woman past 40 have a Pap smear test? I had a benign tumor removed from my breast 2 years ago. Would that make a difference?—H.B.

After 40, a Pap test should be done every six to 12 months. The tumor surgery 20 years ago would make no difference.

Opening lead—king of clubs.

Card reading — the ability to declare how the unseen cards are divided — plays an enormous role in the outcome of many hands. Declarer can sometimes perform what appears to be a feat of magic by determining what kind of hand a particular defender has — or doesn't have — and so land a contract that might otherwise fail.

Here is a striking example of the art. Let's say West cashes the K-A of clubs and shifts to a trump. How should South play the hand?

If he follows the so-called normal line of play, he draws trumps and attempts both a heart and a diamond finesse. As it happens, both lose and South finishes down one. But if South is versed in the art of card reading, he avoids this outcome and, in fact, he can be supremely confident of making the contract before he so much as tests either red suit.

After drawing trumps, his next play is a low diamond from dummy! First let's observe the effect of this play with the cards lying as they do. If East rises with the king, South follows low and no longer requires a heart finesse, since he can discard two hearts on the A-Q of diamonds. And if East plays low on the low diamond lead from dummy, South's jack wins and the only other trick he loses is a heart.

This method of play is eminently logical, for, once West shows up with the A-K of clubs, he cannot have both red kings or he would have opened the bidding as Senior.

Hence the low diamond play from dummy is bound to be effective. Admittedly West, rather than East, may have the king of diamonds, but in that case East is sure to have the king of hearts and the contract will still come marching home. So, regardless of who has the king of diamonds, four spades is ice cold!

Tomorrow: The bread - and - butter hands.

Three Gunmen Seek Shelter in School

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — "We didn't know if we were going to see the light of day again. Those were a mean bunch of devils!"

That was how Paul McAvoy, 85, custodian at St. Cecilia elementary school, said it felt being held captive with 44 pupils and three other adults for almost two hours Tuesday by three gunmen in the school basement.

One of the gunmen was killed by police. The other two were captured.

The three men burst into the school while fleeing from police investigating an armed robbery.

Nearly two hours after the ordeal began, Melvin Burch, 23, of Peoria, who was trying to use fifth grader John Ardis as a shield, was shot to death by police outside the school.

Eleven-year-old Ardis, the son of a Peoria fisherman, said later that he volunteered to be the hostage.

"The guy asked somebody to go out with him," he said. "Nobody else did so I thought I'd better go or he might get mad.

"He took me out with a gun at my back," he said. "I heard a shot, saw him fall and just ran."

OHIP Costs Half as Much As Canada Spent on 1945 War

TORONTO (CP) Ten years ago all Canadians were spending about $2 billion a year on personal health care of all kinds.

Today that sum wouldn't cover the part of Ontario health bill that passes through the provincial government's hands, which doesn't cover such big-scale items as prescription drugs and dentistry.

Putting it another way, Ontario is spending in this sector annually more than half Canada's war expenses in the last year of the Second World War.

Granted that the buying power of the dollar is not what it used to be and that there are many more dollars circulating, the figures help to explain why the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) is in a wobbly state financially and the government is frantically trying to damp down exploding costs.

Health spending has even galloped past the government's education budget, long its No. 1 priority.

Hospital spending has been jumping at the rate of 14 per cent a year and recently an alarmed health ministry applied the axe drastically.

Doctors' pay has soared to the point where doctors have become the envy of other professions, bringing this $500-million-plus annual outpouring to the point where a showdown between the government and the medical establishment may be in the offing.

The physicians' controversial fee-for-service system is "the only area of the whole economy that's completely open-ended," says one doctor, who does not care to be named as pointing the finger at colleagues but who thinks curbs are needed for runaway service charges.

One expert on the financial aspects of medical care, not a doctor, says:

"As long as there's an open till, people are going to help themselves."

One result of a snowballing demand for treatment since Ontario launched universal coverage of doctor and hospital care in 1969 has been that other parts of the prospective package—prescription drugs and dental work notably—have been shoved aside for lack of available funds.

Another concern is that the over-all quality of physicians' care may be falling off as the result of a heavy work load either to pile up income or to meet the insistence of patients no longer worried about the bills.

An upshot is that health insurance has become a field day for politicians. Opponents have been clamoring for the head of Health Minister Richard Potter, himself a physician, though there is little chance it will roll.

But his department, undergoing a large-scale reorganization, has been reverberating to internal dissension. Last winter OHIP's medical director, Dr. David Dolcetti was transferred out of that office after run-ins with doctors' organizations as he tried to chop some $50 million a year from medical costs.

Dr. Kirsch left to become director of health-planning for the Quebec government saying the health department is ignoring the fact that the Ontario problem is overcharging by doctors.

Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, has obtained printed-out from OHIP's computer checking system showing that about 30 doctors put in bills averaging $16,000 for the month of April, 1972, the first in which OHIP began operations as a combination of insured medical and hospital services.

—25 services Advance MA

In the first three months, between 410 and 475 doctors billed the plan for more than $10,000 each per month.

Dr. Potter has since stated that two or three doctors may face fraud charges. Other information is that between 10 and 20 cases are being studied by the provincial attorney - general's department for possible prosecution. About 8,500 doctors participate in the plan.

Throughout the system study groups—"task forces"— are proliferating. Two have reported to the ministry on the doctors' costs problem and the department is finishing up an assessment on which future action may be based.

Another group under Dr. J. Fraser Mustard, dean of medicine at McMaster University in Hamilton, is making a long-range examination for the government and is to report in a few months, possibly with ideas for a fundamental and money-saving revision of the relationships among hospitals, nursing homes and all other elements in the health picture.

The Ontario Medical Association, the doctors' professional organization, has been inquiring into its members', relationships with the public—their image — in a $300,000 study.

Still another group from the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, the licensing and disciplining group of the doctors, recently completed at Dr. Potter's request an assessment of hospital use. Its central conclusion: About one in every 20 hospital patients is admitted unnecessarily and one in 10 is kept too long.

The federal government has been showing increasing concern with expenditures—it's not a problem confined to Ontario since its hospital grants are based to a large extent on bed use, while it picks up about half the tab for insured service by doctors.

For the last three years Ottawa has been dangling a device called a "thrust fund", which would increase payments in relation to economics. Ontario has not bought it because it feels the formula would shortchange this province by comparison with others.

At present, the Ontario government has struck at hospital spending in two ways. It has imposed a freeze on capital construction and has told hospital administrators to confine their budget increases for 1973-74 to not more than five per cent over the 1972-73 years.

Inflation is expected to neutralize the permitted increase. One of the ways the hospitals have been told to economize is by taking 1,500 beds out of active-care use. Some of these may be downgraded to a less expensive form of care.

Some hospitals have responded by reducing labor forces, which account for 70 per cent of costs.

But experts in and out of the government agree that these measures are a makeshift approach and any action to show substantial and long-term economies will have to be a co-ordinated effort over the whole range of services.

"Like putting the lid on individual items of expense," one says, "is going to result in the lid blowing off eventually."

Tung Kwan Near Hong Kong's Lure

TUNG KWAN, China (Reuter) — The line of grey hills clearly visible on the southern horizon is a constant reminder to the Chinese peasant here of a vastly different world of bright lights and elusive riches.

Tung Kwan county, a land of picturesque villages nestling in lush farmland, is about 35 miles from the Hong Kong border, close enough for the simplest transistor radios to pick up the British colony's radio stations which offer insights into a way of life almost totally at odds with the Spartan values of China's Communist society.

A group of British journalists, several of them based in Hong Kong, were invited to spend 24 hours here and received frank answers to questions on "illegal migrants" as they are called in China.

"Yes, it is a problem," said a commune official. Since the Communist takeover in China in 1949, more than 10 people from his commune had left their homes here for the clandestine and highly dangerous journey to Hong Kong.

Most of them took the usual route for refugees in recent years—the long and perilous swim from the Chinese coast, which has earned them the name of "freedom swimmers" in Hong Kong's newspapers.

Dead bodies washed up periodically on Hong Kong beaches are gruesome evidence that many of them do not make it.

The official said that in 1969 two of the escapees came back, disillusioned with the alternative society offered by Hong Kong.

"They thought they could make a lot of money on the other side, but found they couldn't even get a job," he said.

Neither of those who returned was punished and they now help with a program of "ideological education" aimed at persuading young people that the image of Hong Kong as a land of easy living and quick fortunes on the stock market is false.

This message is drummed into children from the moment they enter primary school. Half a day a week is devoted to what is called general political education, which includes a sizable slice on the evils of Hong Kong society.

An indication that the authorities here are relatively relaxed about the issue is the fact that Hong Kong Chinese are allowed to come here to visit relatives and one group was seen here on a sightseeing trip.

Officials said the region was relatively prosperous before the Communist revolution and wealth had grown steadily since then, aided by the growth of local industries directly serving the agricultural base.

Even so, per capita income for the whole of last year was only $65 dollars—a shade more than the cost of one bicycle.

THE TRIUMPH OF AMERICAN PAINTING — Irving Sandler

A history of abstract expressionism, this book traces the movement from its early days in the Depression years through the Cubist and Surrealist trends of the 1940's to the New York School in the 1950s. Mr. Sandler examines individual artists to the movement of many of these. An interest of many of them. An important aspect of the book revolves around the critics who played primary roles in the formulation of abstract expressionist theory. The text is illustrated with 200 subjects in black and white, and in full-page color.

THE WORLD'S GREAT REGIMENTS — Venn Metcgarf

Throughout history, hearts have been stirred at the sight of a uniform and the sound of a drum. Venn Metcgarf has presented an account of the soldiers of the world beginning with armies of northodogy and through the Middle Ages to the fighting men of the New World. Each page is beautifully illustrated and the accompanying text provides us with a brief history of the regiment and the development of arms and methods of warfare through the ages.

THE SPINNING WHEEL'S COMPLETE BOOK OF ANTIQUES — Albert Christian Revi

If you have been bitten by the collection bug, this book will be of great interest. Every field of antique collecting has been carefully researched by authorities in that field and their articles have been reprinted in this volume. The subjects range from advertising to buttons, and the chapters headed: determining furniture age; The Seven Hundred Years of Drawer handles; Kitchenwares; Old blushers and Beaders; and Facts and Fancies.

ROMANCE OF CANADIAN HISTORY — Vol. I—YEARS AND YEARS AGO — Robert MacDonald

Mr. MacDonald has launched his ambitious series "The Romance of Canadian History" with volume I — the prehistory. The story begins with the origin of the land, takes us through the first life man. Original oil paintings and photographs bring to life and the age of monsters, the Great Ice Ages and the first eras previously shrouded in scientific terms.

THE AGE OF DISCONTINUITY — Peter F. Drucker

What kind of changes are already visible in our society, our politics and our economy which preface a different "recent future" for all of us? Peter Drucker brings into focus with great clarity and perception, the new forces that are creating tomorrow's society. These new forces have been labelled the forces of discontinuity in our social, political and economic landscape. In this latest book, Mr. Drucker is really asking us "What must we do today to shape tomorrow?

CANADIAN PUBLISHERS AND PUBLISHING

The Ontario Royal Commission on Book Publishing was appointed in December 1970 to study and report on the industry "in terms of its contributions to the cultural life and education of the people of Ontario and Canada". This volume, the final report of the Royal Commission is the most comprehensive study that has ever been made of the book industry in Canada. In a final chapter, the Royal Commission makes no fewer than 70 specific and wide-ranging proposals designed to lead the Canadian book industry into a state of health, which will make it possible for it to contribute to Canadian culture and the national identity.

Palestinians Opposed

Lebanon Battling 'Occupation Army'

BEIRUT (AP) — Tank cannons pounded high-rise apartment buildings today and army-guerrilla fighting spread north of this shell-torn Lebanese capital, as President Suleiman Frangieh vowed he would not tolerate a Palestinian "occupation army" in Lebanon.

A group of 500 guerrillas was reported battling massed army troops at a Palestinian Arab refugee camp at Nbayre, five miles north of Beirut. Witnesses said some of the guerrillas had occupied a monastery near the camp to escape army mortar and tank fire.

Attempts to enforce a shaky ceasefire, negotiated before dawn and announced again at noon, appeared unsuccessful.

Shots, explosions and the rumble of tank guns resounded through Beirut's tightly-shuttered business district.

A curfew imposed Wednesday night was lifted for two hours to permit citizens to shop for food and other necessities. It was reimposed at 11 a.m.

Spokesmen for both sides announced the formation of "joint patrols which toured the areas of the fighting and reinforced the ceasefire." But there were reports that some guerrillas refused to heed the ceasefire appeals of their leaders.

Other reports spoke of a "third force," sniping at both the Lebanese army and the guerrillas from rooftops.

Heavy fighting and shell fire also raged at the 711 Zatar refugee camp in the eastern sector of Beirut, and there were periodic bursts of gunfire in the southwest sector near the Camille Chamoun sports stadium.

Casualty figures were not available for today's fighting but Palestinian radio broadcasts said 22 guerrillas were killed and 39 wounded Wednesday. They said 10 to 13 Palestinian civilians died and an unknown number was wounded.

Lebanese casualties were not announced and Beirut hospitals said they were under army orders not to disclose the number of persons treated. A guerrilla spokesman said "both sides have suffered. Ambulances have been busy for two hours."

In Wednesday's fighting, the defence ministry reported 12 soldiers were killed and 46 wounded.

The fighting broke out Wednesday in a dispute over the arrest two days earlier of eight bomb-carrying guerrillas. The Palestinians, when seized two army corpsmen as hostages for the release of the guerrillas.

The hostages were set free late Wednesday, but the government still holds the guerrillas on charges of carrying prohibited weapons.

Premier Amin Hafez, in office only a week, met with guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat during the night to work out the ceasefire. Hafez was quoted as saying he wanted to remove all causes of friction with the guerrillas.

The presence of Palestinian guerrillas in the country is not welcomed by a sizable number of business-as-usual, neutralist-minded Lebanese.

Franjieh in a statement read over Radio Beirut after an emergency cabinet meeting, said Lebanon has more than 300,000 Palestinians, and "I do not think any sister Arab country has given the Palestinians more than Lebanon."

He said the Lebanese owe the Palestinians "residence and hospitality" as a duty, not as a favor. And the Lebanese also welcome "co-ordination to serve a common cause."

"But the existence of an occupation army in Lebanon is something no Lebanese can accept," the president declared.

Inflation to Last

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has stiffened his wage price control system to require a closer government watch over price increases by big companies. But he says consumers should expect inflation to be a problem for several months.

GOP Aided McGovern

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times quotes government investigators as saying they believe Republicans running President Nixon's re-election campaign used three networks of agents in an effort to help Senator George McGovern win the Democratic nomination. The Times says the investigators say the Republican intelligence effort operated on the assumption that McGovern, the eventual nominee, was the weakest candidate Nixon could face.

Market Opportunity

LONDON (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said today Canada does not see the enlarged Common Market "as a threat but more as an opportunity. We intend to go after the opportunities we see in the Common Market very aggressively," he said at a news conference following a round of talks with Prime Minister Heath and other British ministers.

Mounties Trapped

EDMONTON (CP) — Two RCMP constables chained their lucky stars Tuesday that they were on good terms with their prisoners. Trapped for 45 minutes in a stalled elevator in the law courts building, the two red-coated policemen were alone with 19 convicts. "We had a short discussion on minority groups," Constable Terry Densmore, one of the trapped counties, said.

Rains Will End

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Weather forecasters predicted that recent heavy rains in the midwestern United States would end today, but they warned that new crests on the upper Mississippi will result in continued flooding in southern areas. A "tranquil" weather picture for the Midwest through Sunday afternoon should allow the Mississippi and its tributaries to recede slightly, the National Weather Service said.

Streets Drying

FREDERICTON (CP) — Some local streets dried up Wednesday night as high water began receding for the first time since flooding hit during the weekend.

Less Aid to Israel, More to Arabs, Plan

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Nixon administration proposed to increase aid to Arab nations and cut financial assistance to Israel, the state department disclosed Wednesday.

The shift was outlined when Deputy State Secretary Kenneth Rush testified before the Senate foreign relations committee with administration's $2.9-billion military and economic aid program, unveiled Tuesday.

Rush said in his statement the administration proposed to provide $55 million to Israel in economic supporting assistance for the fiscal year beginning July 1, compared with the $30 million being provided during the current year.

Rush said the administration is proposing $200 million in low-interest credit financing for Israeli purchases of American military equipment, the same level as the current year.

At a while, committee sources said the administration proposed to provide Saudi Arabia with $20 million in military credit sales. It did not receive such assistance this year.

The administration is proposing to provide Jordan with direct military aid of about $40 million compared with $34 million this year. Economic supporting assistance would be raised to $65 million dollars from $50 million this year.

Fractures Overlooked

WINNIPEG (CP) — A provincial medical examiner told an inquest Tuesday he could not understand how two doctors failed to notice four fractured ribs and a thorax puncture when a woman was brought to St. Boniface Hospital after a traffic accident.

Dr. Dennis Booth expressed the opinion the woman would not have died if she had been properly diagnosed and treated.

He testified at the inquest into the death last June 2 of Anita Vanchesluyt who was brought to the hospital after the accident May 6. She was examined, X-rayed and discharged.

Two days later she visited a doctor at the Manitoba Clinic, was admitted to Winnipeg General Hospital and treated for a chest infection and discharged May 16. She was readmitted May 24 suffering from shock and acute lung infection and her condition deteriorated until her death.

Six Inches Of Snow In North

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A spring storm dumped six inches of snow in Northern Ontario Wednesday along an arc from Kapuskasing west and south to Wawa and 40 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

The storm, whipped along by northeast gales of up to 40 miles an hour, left motorists stranded and driving conditions hazardous.

Provincial police at Wawa said snowplows had to be called out to clear sections of Highway 17, closed for four hours Wednesday evening while stranded vehicles were freed.

Police at Manitouwadge and Nipigon also reported conditions hazardous.

Copter Attack Strengthens Arguments for Withdrawal

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

External affairs officials in Ottawa Wednesday said the unprovoked attack on two Vietnam ceasefire observer commission helicopters has added weight to the argument that Canada should withdraw from the four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision.

But in Toronto, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the government is sticking with its peace-observation role in Vietnam despite the Wednesday episode.

The Canadian attitude remains that "we will withdraw if there is no improvement" in conditions facing the Canadian contingent,, Mr. Sharp told reporters, and so far "there has been no substantial improvement."

However, there are another 30 days to go before the previously-announced Vietnam May lapses, Mr. Sharp said.

While "it is hard to be constructive if you're fired on," it is essential to stick with the supervisory role while it appeared there was a chance of a Vietnam peace.

The helicopters, brightly painted with flourescent stripes, flew into a heavy barrage of fire close to the Vietnam demilitarized zone Tuesday.

"I don't know if it's the straw that will break the camel's back," an external affairs department officer said in Ottawa. "But it indicates that the situation has not improved."

The helicopters, carrying full crews and four members of the (ICCS) managed to return to their base at Quang Tri about five minutes after takeoff without damage.

Both craft were en route to pick up the remains of one of two helicopters shot down April 7, along with survivors of that crash who had returned to inspect the wreckage.

A Canadian ICCS officer and other passengers aboard one of the machines were killed in the crash. Both flights had been approved beforehand by the Viet Cong, which controls the territory involved.

If the latest attack came from the Viet Cong—as Canadian observers claim—it would indicate that advance flight arrangements cleared by the Viet Cong "cannot be relied upon," the external affairs spokesman said.

Mr. Sharp told the Commons March 27 that without "substantial improvement" in the much-broken ceasefire, Canada would announce withdrawal by May 31 and end its involvement in the ICCS by June 30.

Metro Detective Shot in Abdomen

TORONTO-(CP) — A Metropolitan Toronto police detective was shot in the abdomen early today when he and another officer went to an east-end house to disarm a man who had threatened a neighbor with a rifle.

Det. George Gerigs, 46, was reported in satisfactory condition two hours later in hospital.

He was felled with a single bullet from a high-powered rifle as he and Inspector Gordon Mugford entered the ground floor of the house from the basement. Insp. Mugford, who carried the wounded detective back to the basement, said he was "under fire" from the gunman and fired two shots from his own revolver to discourage pursuit.

Police lobbed tear gas into the house and soon afterwards an unarmed man emerged and surrendered.

Eric Rose, 42, who has lived on the street for five years, was charged with attempted murder.

Police converged on the Alton Avenue house about 5:45 a.m., after Gordon Calhoun, an operator with the Toronto Transit Commission, reported he had been threatened by a man with a rifle while he was walking to work.

Mr. Calhoun's wife told police her husband said the man accosted him and asked where he was going. When Mr. Calhoun said he was going to work the man replied: "No you're not. Go back home."

After calling police, Mr. Calhoun took his car and drove to work another way.

Det. Gerigs, a 15-year veteran with the force, was the fourth policeman to be shot this year. Two were killed and the third suffered gunshot wounds.

Judge May Declare Mistrial In Pentagon Papers Charges

Pentagon papers trial judge has directed lawyers to give final oral briefs today on dismissal and mistrial motions and raised the possibility that the case may never go to the jury for a verdict.

Judge Matt Byrne of U.S. district court has said he will not allow jurors to begin deliberations until he has all the facts about a burglary of the office of co-defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and alleged White House involvement in prosecution of the case.

Byrne also demanded that the government give him more details about the alleged roles of Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt in the burglary and of a special White House investigation of the leak to news media of the Pentagon papers.

Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo, both former researchers on government projects for the Rand Corp., are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft for copying the Pentagon papers, a top-secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Byrne says he wants more information on the Liddy-Hunt operations in order to determine whether those actions interfered with the defendants' constitutional rights to a fair trial. Byrne has expressed fears that "tainted evidence" obtained from the Liddy-Hunt work might have been used in the prosecution.

The government submitted Wednesday three FBI reports on recent interviews with White House aides John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and Bruce Kherli.

Ehrlichman's interview added only sparse details to a previous interview. Haldeman and Kherli professed no knowledge of Hunt's and Liddy's role in any White House investigation of the Pentagon papers case or Ellsberg.

Ehrlichman said in an interview made public Tuesday that he knew about the psychiatrist's office burglary and of Liddy and Hunt's effort to produce a psychiatric profile of Ellsberg to show the defendant had "moral and emotional problems." Ehrlichman said the conspirators worked for the White House at the time.

Technology Said Eroding Society

Still wondering where the younger generation gets its ideas?

It's simple. From the older generation.

"The young get their ideas from the older generation in advertisements, its behavior, whether the older generation knows it or not," Dr. E. R. Conn, director of Belleville General Hospital's psychiatric department told a mental health seminar Wednesday.

"People forget the young are still learning rules to live by: forming basic beliefs about the way the world is — and how it ought to be," said Dr. Conn. "The young do learn some things. They're listening to the messages we send them every day.

The seemingly simple answer to one social question was only part of a complex scrutiny by the psychiatrist of modern society, where technical achievement could weaken the creative qualities that fashioned it.

With technocracy has come erosion of traditional values and institutions. Progress has at once created an affluent culture in an unpredictable world said Dr. Conn.

Instability fosters disillusion which can be indulged. It's now possible to contemplate little yet live adequately.

With less emphasis on training for achievement the concept of individual accomplishment which evolved modern society is "fast disappearing".

Dr. Conn sees these factors as upsetting the historically healthy balance of individualism and dependency between man and society.

The culture that guarantees personal well-being runs the danger of reducing the individual's motivation for social contribution.

Such a society, said Dr. Conn, faces the risk of becoming a "pathological breeding ground for weakening of its members — and eventually society itself."

Highway 2 Claims Another

Road construction, still incomplete on Highway 2 between Trenton and Belleville, has resulted in hazardous condition following recent heavy rains. Trapped in the mud along the shoulder last night was a couple on the way to Bayside Secondary School's open house. Student Dana Lear and Bayside teacher Miss Catherine McEvoy inspect the situation, soon relieved by the arrival of a helpful truck driver and an OPP officer.

Psychiatric Caseload Doubled

The statistic added emphasis to a theme made by professionals and laymen at a hospital seminar Wednesday:

Community involvement in mental health care has become inevitable.

Changed medical and social concepts of mental illness have created a crucial demand for broad local participation — by individuals and organizations — in a total rehabilitation program.

Major factors creating the need — outlined by Dr. E. R. Conn, director of BGH's psychiatry services o the seminar organized by his department — included:

Medical — Treatment has mostly now evolved away from large regional institutions. Emphasis, where possible now is or local hospital units, enabling patients to stay within hometown environments.

Social — Although an aged stigma lingers, mental illness now is accepted by most of society in its proper perspective. It's another disorder to which the human condition is vulnerable. But recognition has increased the pressure on treatment services. There may never be sufficient trained personnel for the task.

The need now not only embraces individual volunteers, but much of the community's organization — industry, education, local government, religious and medical institutions.

"Within our own community at the present time," said Dr. Conn, "there is a need for formation of volunteer agencies which include not only private citizens, but members of various agencies to collaborate with mental health workers."

B. A. Williams, BGH psychiatric unit co-ordinator, said much progress yet had to be made toward such a goal in the Quinte area.

"The challenge is great and the involvement is inevitable," said Mr. Williams. "We view mental health in the community as the business of everybody."

Deputy Moving

Deputy-clerk of the town of Napanee for the past 15 years, Ernest G. Leaver has resigned to accept a similar position in the Georgian Bay District. Mr. Leaver will become deputy clerk for the town of Collingwood.

Dr. Conn said his outpatients' clinic had recorded 1,930 interviews last year — almost exactly double the 907 a year earlier.

At the same time there were 513 in-patients, compared to 414 in 1971.

But mental health and rehabilitation must not only exist within the psychiatric unit of the local hospital, said Dr. Conn. A social approach has to be taken in an integrated over-all program oriented to the community.

Among the various projects mentioned by Dr. Conn were:

—A community mental health centre, involving both laymen and professionals in prevention.

—Foster homes for adults with special problems — such as divorce — which prevent them returning to a family environment.

—Sheltered workshops in which industry would assist persons who had mental health problems regain "their sense of integrity and pride."

—Recreation clubs largely organized by patients or those with similar problems in the past.

There is a specific need for people in the community with special skills and training involved in mental health and rehabilitation. The facilitation process, said Dr. Conn.

Professional resources would never be sufficient to undertake such a comprehensive program, said Dr. Conn.

There are not enough trained mental health workers, as such, to provide all phases of this. But it is reasonable to expect that there will be in the future," he told the delegates at a Rehabilitation Hall in the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing.

Social workers, hospital personnel and clergymen were participants in the seminar.

Sandbanks Cut Off

PICTON — The road leading to Sandbanks Provincial Park will be closed because of high water conditions causing flooding in the parking area.

Parks Superintendent Robert Davison said today he expected the park would be closed to traffic shortly and noted that Outer Park is still experiencing problems with high water. Change houses were moved to the park last month to protect them against shoreline erosion. Life guard towers also were removed.

Firearm Play Costly

McCauley's gun was confiscated by police. The Simpson boy's frontier-style, single-action revolver was returned to his parents.

Stage of the Rising Sun

One of Gilbert and Sullivan's most entertaining operettas, The Mikado — a light-hearted tale of Japanese traditions starts tonight at East Northumberland Secondary School in Brighton. The 3-hour production has taken months of hard work for the 48 players and equal number of assistants. Here, executioner Ko-Ko (Jim Gordon) reads news from the court of the Mikado, while a jovial Pooh-bah, Lord of Everything Else (Robert Hanks) hovers expectantly and lovers Nanki-Poo (John Meiboon) and Yum-Yum (Alison Goodfellow), await results with other members of the cast. Curtain is 8 p.m. Admission is $1 for each of Thursday, Friday and Saturday performances.

Fitness Benefits Crippled Children

There's no such thing as the impossible dream for Ted Cairns. He'll tell you his objective is crazy and so far he has spent $16,000 grasping for it.

Armed with a bank loan and most of his personal savings, Mr. Cairns has set out to nurture his portion of the physical fitness trade into a thriving endeavor — for no personal gain.

Mr. Cairns, one-time operator of Ted's Tack Shop in Stirling, who later left the Quinte area via a truck and trailer to tour Canada, has founded the Executive Men's Club. Once the bank is repaid Mr. Cairns doesn't want to see any profit.

"After the company (in his wife Carol's name) repays the bank, the entire profits of the business go to aid crippled children."

Asked who that particular charity would be the beneficiary, Mr. Cairns answered, "I like the idea of Belleville people contributing for the sake of children who can't."

The Cairns which also incorporates a women's health spa facility, celebrated its open House Wednesday night. Mr. Cairns believes he will reach this dream in about a year.

While businesses dispersed wine and escorted possible members about the spacious 180 North Front Street complex, Mr. Cairns explained it costs about one drink a week to use the club.

For two dollars a week you can visit the club as often as you wish, use the saunas and have access to qualified instructors on an individual basis.

Mr. Cairns says he got the idea of opening a health club while on his trip to Vancouver ending with a mask related waist line.

"I joined a club that had next to no facilities and was paying $170 membership. When I got back home I couldn't stand doing nothing with my time and started the Executive Men's Club," — even though he says the health club industry has a "lousy" reputation.

Mr. Cairns believes a lot of fly - by - nighters have jeopardized the integrity of the industry and have spoiled it to some degree for the sincere establishments.

"I have a reputation here to live up to," says the Carrying Place resident. "I'm here to stay as long as people want to help their bodies."

He doesn't believe he's in the business to tell people what shape their bodies should be in. "People can decide for themselves what they want and I and my staff will help them achieve it."

In his striving to gain the respect of the general public, Mr. Cairns has given free memberships to every doctor in Belleville and Trenton.

"I want their approval," he says.

No less than 24 nouns and choruses later, the lovers, aptly played by Alison Goodfellow and John Meiboom, have been married. The executioner, played by Jim Gordon has solved everything by marrying the spurned court lady, played by Kathy Morgan, and everybody lives happily ever after.

Costumes — from detailed Japanese guard uniforms to kimonos and cart outfits, would bring pleasure to many a stock players' company.

Makeup, that for this production is nothing less than lavish, falls to the willing hands and brushes of 25 student artists under Mary Thompson.

And because this is a musical, vocal training is a must. For the production, four teacher-coaches have been busy for months preparing their budding charges.

Brighton's Mikado A Lavish Production

BRIGHTON — The Mikado — a light-hearted musical by Gilbert and Sullivan, is a test of performing skills for both actors and audience.

And at East Northumberland Secondary School here the next three evenings, 48 drama club students will be putting their all into this scenic Japanese-setting extravaganza.

The product of three months' work by these students and their advisors showed many gaps and flaws teacher - director Barbara Kilyner hopes to have ironed out by opening performance tonight. And if the enthusiasm shown during dress rehearsal Wednesday is any example, there shouldn't be any problem.

The young people started to rehearse the three - hour production in February. Over the weeks they have produced a brilliant array of costumes, sets and makeup.

Rober Hanks, the jovial mutton - chop and pillow-girded Pooh-bah, Lord High Everything Else, has a voice and budding theatrical approach that may well mark him for a promising career.

He's been involved in the drama club for some time and this year began singing lessons.

The operetta concerns the story of a young prince, Nanki-Poo, who flees the amorous approaches of an aging lady in his father. The Mikado's court. Dressed as a minstrel, he falls in love with Yum-Yum, the ward and prospective bride of Ko-Ko, the chief executioner.

No less than 24 songs and choruses later, the lovers, aptly played by Alison Goodfellow and John Meiboom, have been married. The executioner, played by Jim Gordon has solved everything by marrying the spurned court lady, played by Kathy Morgan, and everybody lives happily ever after.

Chamber Supports Citizens Bureau

Support for extending Local Initiatives Program funding of Belleville's Citizens Bureau received the May 31 expiry of its current grant is gathering.

With Mayor Robin Jeffrey's endorsement of the project already offered, board members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce voted at Wednesday's meeting to write a letter stating their support.

"When they started they received a load from the Chamber of Commerce," said chamber manager Don Sutton.

"They took over many of our problems.

"I think they're doing a very useful job — we refer a minimum of 10 to 12 calls a day to them on the average," he said. "If this LIP support were to cease we'd have to pick this up again as a courtesy to the community." The Citizens Bureau has more than 400 current files.

"If it came back here we'd have to be prepared to take over their files and hire someone to do it — and we just don't have the resources of people or money," said Mr. Sutton.

"If they get an extension, the service would be continued until September 30, 1973," he said.

A motion put by Wally Streit, tourism committee chairman, that volunteered the Chamber of Commerce's support for extension of the LIP funding was unanimously accepted.

Youth Held In Custody

Richard Blake Boomhower, 17, charged with two counts of attempted murder following a Canniffon Road shooting early Sunday morning, will be detained in custody until May 8.

The youth, who fired seven shots at Police Constables Jack O'Donnell and Gerald Bull when they answered a call to his home to quiet an axe-wielding youth, will be held in the Napanee Regional Detention Centre.

He was represented by lawyer Sidney Murray at the bail hearing.

Socialism All-Party Style

The Welfare State—What A Difference 10 Years Can Make

By HENRY F. HEALD

OTTAWA — Where must one go to find a real conservative these days? The social welfare program that Health Minister Marc Lalonde outlined to the Commons the day the MPs went home for their Easter vacation was a description of the welfare state in such an advanced stage that a decade ago he would have been branded an out and out communist.

It is good to know we have got past the name-calling stage, but when Tories, New Democrats and Socreds all hailed the minister's statement as though it was the Trump of God proclaiming the millennium, those who is left to look at it with a magnifying glass and ponder whether it is really what is needed?

NDP spokesman Stanley Knowles virtually danced with joy as he promised to prod Mr. Lalonde to dig deeper and fast-er into the taxpayers' pockets to finance the socialist revolution.

Social Credit deputy leader Gilbert Rondeau accused the ex-Trudeau government of lifting the program from a recent election campaign literature, but warned that $800 million was not nearly enough to generate the kind of spending power the Socreds had in mind.

That $800 million, by the way, sounds suspiciously like the size of the government's revenue surplus — a surplus that Finance Minister Turner had always assured the House would be fully absorbed by the time the books are balanced.

What little criticism there was came from Heath Macquarrie, the eloquent member from Prince Edward Island. Sometimes, unfortunately, the thrust of his criticism is buried in his eloquence. Nevertheless, his criticism was the standard opposition stuff. In terms of the proposals made by Mr. Lalonde he welcomed them with open arms and promised the support of the Conservative Party.

The tipo points in the minister's proposals that sound so attractive are the principle of universality and the removal of the disincentives to employment.

Both are great temptations to the politicians. Any program, that is universal saves them the difficult job of deciding where to draw the line. And although Mr. Lalonde does not say how he will do it, removing the disincentives to work sounds just great. One of the big problems in welfare programs are the people who would rather stay home and draw welfare than go to work at low-paying jobs and lose all aid.

But what about the disincentive to business development in general of a universal welfare state? Both Mr. Macquarrie and Mr. Knowles talk about escalating family allowances and pensions, not just in step with the rising cost of living, but with the rising gross national product.

What that is translated into guaranteed income, we are talking in the neighborhood of $8,000 or more per family. Now if the principle of universality is to be adopted, that means paying everyone the $8,000 and then getting it back in taxes from the man who does not need it. So the man who earns $10,000 a year will get $8,000 — $18,000 and have to pay something like $8,000 per in taxes. How is that for a disincentive to employment?

But even that is not the biggest problem. The problem is that the amount of money going through the government's hands would give it a stranglehold on the economy. Think of the size of the bureaucracy that would be required to administer such a system.

The problem with the welfare state is that it emphasizes rights and de-emphasizes responsibilities; it stresses administration and neglects productivity.

It is true this is going a bit beyond the proposals Mr. Lalonde outlined in his social security paper. But that is the road it follows and with no one in the opposition ready to set up any roadblocks there is nothing to stop it.

In the latter days of the 28th Parliament, it is not the time for the message to ease off on socialism was getting through to the cabinet. Ironically, now that the balance of power rests with the NDP, the Liberals are being forced to go even more that way.

Or we can vote in a Conservative government and let Bob Stanfield bring in the welfare state.

Full Facts Awaited

At best President Nixon's position at this moment, in the wake of the Watergate revelations, may be regarded as precarious; at worst, untenable.

But complex situations such as this, with overtones of political scandal and corruption, have a way of resolving themselves to the point that they no longer occupy centre stage.

That is not to say events of the utmost seriousness do not claim the attention of the American people and the processes of law in that country. Or that they are having anything else but the most profound repercussions on the international scene. But even when things seem to be at their worst a sense of proportion must be preserved. The outcome of the Watergate affair is still something for the future, as is the fate of the principals involved. A full accounting is expected but final judgment cannot be passed on any of them, or on the President's role, if any, until the full facts are known.

Some observations of 1964 republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater are interesting in this context. He said if elections were held next week, the Watergate affair would have a decisive effect. "But," he added, "when you run it through the wringer, it won't remain that much." Significantly, Goldwater does not think the president had prior knowledge of the Watergate bugging or its cover-up.

The UK newspaper, The Daily Telegraph noted: "If his (Nixon's) faults, as we assume, are at worst no greater than misjudgments or indiscretions, the American people will bear in mind what they owe him — and so will the free world."

Time will tell. The full story of Watergate has yet to be revealed.

Canadians Lose Out

Students of American influence in Canada will be interested in a number of appointments to a Lindsay firm, Prowler Industries of Ontario Ltd.

Americans have been appointed to the positions of sales manager, plant manager, purchasing manager, and production manager respectively.

They are former stockbroker Ralph B. Clemans, who served with the U.S. air force for eight years, L. Norman Gruden, a native of California with a degree in accounting, Forrest R. Webb Jr., a business administration graduate of the University of South Dakota, and John A. Mahoney, who attended university in San Diego and also saw service with the U.S. army as a test pilot.

The importation which comes to us from a public relations firm in Tustin, California, indicates that the executives are all new to the firm Grudem joining it in 1971 and his three colleagues only last year. Prowler Industries is a subsidiary of Fleetwood Enterprises Inc., which manufactures mobile homes, recreational vehicles and sectionalized modular housing.

Thus Americans have made a fairly clean sweep of some of the plum jobs with this firm in Lindsay. We are left wondering what has happened to our own bright young men coming out of university. Or were no Canadians considered for the jobs? The appointments are all the more ironic considering the "Ontario" designation in the firm's name.

Red Shield Campaign

The Salvation Army and the extraordinary work it performs for the needs of people around the world command public respect. In the spheres of missionary and social work, and in medicine and countless other ways the Salvation Army performs a noble task. Some of it is illustrated in the front window of a vacant store on Front Street this week, in connection with the Army's Red Shield campaign in which the public is afforded an opportunity to contribute to the organization's vital work. At a glance we see the practical way in which the Army seeks to aid those in need at home and abroad. It is work that merits our support and traditionally this is freely given. We trust it will be the same again this year with the campaign opening in coming days.

'Atlantic' Talks Held in Shadow of Watergate

By CV FOX

BRUSSELS (CP) — A period of intensive diplomatic activity at summit level has begun between Europe and the United States with the visit to Washington of West Germany's socialist chancellor, Willy Brandt.

Communist Europe as well as the Continent's Western segment will be prominently represented in the summit discussions over the next few months.

As far as non-Communist Europe is concerned, the talks will be held in the light of the U.S. proposal for a new Atlantic Charter designed to bring relations between America and western European states, as well as Japan, into a new era of co-operation.

Having made his long-awaited speech on the Watergate affair and appointed a new attorney-general who supposedly can deal with the scandal, President Nixon may feel he can fully resume his activities as a world figure helping to mould a strikingly-new pattern of international relations.

Whether future developments in the Watergate scandal will allow his return to international preoccupations, Nixon apparently feels his major historical mark as president will be made in foreign rather than domestic policy.

In an obvious reference to Nixon's role in ending U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war and restoring relations with China as well as warming ties with Russia, the Conservative-supporting Daily Telegraph of London said in an editorial about the president and Watergate:

"If his faults, as we assume, are at worst no greater than misjudgments or indiscretions, the American people will bear in mind what they owe him — and so will the free world."

Whatever the merits of such a contention, foreign affairs specialists in both Europe and the U.S. may feel some degree of nervousness and excitement at Mr. Brandt visit to Washington opens the new diplomatic cycle.

Though a firm supporter of West German friendship with the U.S., Brandt has been portrayed in one French-language Brussels newspaper as pursuing a kind of socialist-style Gaullism, primarily because he has urged a new sense of collective identity for Europe.

After Brandt returns home, he will play host to Soviet Communist Chief Leonid Brezhnev, who then will visit Washington.

A highly-significant reshuffle of the all-important politburo of the Soviet Union has given extra influence to supporters of Brezhnev's policy of greater friendship towards the U.S., further bolstered by Russian-American trade agreements involving everything from raw materials to soft drinks and vodka.

The idea of strengthened U.S.-Soviet ties causes some concern in certain western quarters, where relief at the receding of great-power conflict is mixed with a conviction that such developments make it all the more necessary for the Common Market countries to develop a separate collective identity in world politics as a counterbalance to the giants.

Even the British, usually accused by Gaullists of being "Trojan horse" allies of the Americans within the Common Market, are interpreted in Brussels as having given Washington's atlantic charter project a cautious welcome.

The British, some observers believe would have preferred to see the Americans delay their bid for a new pattern of friendship with western Europe until after the Common Market has time to settle into the enlarged nine-member pattern of activity established Jan. 1.

Another stage of summit diplomacy will be Nixon's trip to Europe later this year, designed to reduce American-European problems.

With vital trade talks also due in September, the year as a whole shapes up to be a crucial one for world relationships whatever the impact of Watergate.

Leftist Lands Seek Capital

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Eric Kierans former Communications Minister and now an economics professor at McGill University, is very worried about the growing power of multi-national corporations.

He says that future estimates of growth should be put in terms of their growth and no longer as that of separate nations.

Instead of gross national product expectations from say, Canada, Japan, West Germany, Britain and the USA, we should use a single global figure of gross multi-national corporation growth suggests Mr. Kierans.

Maybe so. Certainly the contemporary phenomenon of multi-national corporation profitability defies the Marxian concept that capitalism has sowed it, the seeds of its own destruction.

For those monster multi-nationals with head offices in major American industrial cities, whose profits now come chiefly from overseas business, Karl Marx is a dead duck.

However Eric Kierans and other gloomsters about the spreading and unchallenged power of the multi-nationals, or the "transnationals" as the British often call them, should take stock of the beating these companies have taken since 1960 from nationalization processes in Third World countries.

Beginning with the massive takeovers of US-owned sugar, cattle, utility and manufacturing industries in Castro's Cuba in the summer of 1960, US multi-nationals alone have lost about $5 billions in assets, many due to non-recoverable.

Since then in Indonesia, Iran, Libya, Peru, Chile, Burma, India, Ghana, Egypt and even France, US-owned multi-nationals have suffered nationalization or have had to accept joint venture ownership deals with local governments, where the state has controlling interest.

Indonesia under Sokarno nationalized or seized management control of US and European oil companies, (a move which was reversed after he lost power). In Peru after the army colonels started a military socialist regime in October, 1968, their first move was nationalization of International Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of the former Standard Oil with book value of about $80 millions.

Egypt in 1966 expropriated most of the remaining foreign enterprises in that super-nationalistic Arab republic, and in Burma a few years earlier with whatever was left of foreign companies there. And since Marxist President Salvador Allende's victory in Chile in September, 1970, we have seen the spectacle there of Cuban-type nationalization of US-owned copper mines, auto assembly plants and other manufacturing and services outlets.

To this end we have also watched a major multi-national, in fact the largest of the lot, International Telephone and Telegraph admit to interference in Chilean national life in the interest of trying to unseat President Allende. Mr. Kierans, convicted most of their mixed bag of utility and hotel enterprises in the underdeveloped world.

But there is a curious yet import ant difference between what under way in countries which are not at odds over subsidiaries of multi-national corporations.

This is to invite new investment from countries which have had no dominating contact with the national economy in the past. Hence in-Peru, US investment dollars are still very direct, but Japanese yen and West German marks are very clean. It's a curious but essential switch.

Community Services Operation

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

*Over the years Alderman Ben Corke has rendered the city of Belleville yeoman service. Usually he portrays the image of hard headed common sense in what he says and does for the community.

For instance Alderman Corke thought he was doing the city a favor by bringing Isidore Laliberte's circus here to behead Belleville a leading social agency.

The fortunes of the UCS and its affiliates, as far as I can see, do not appear to be advanced very much under the direction of Mr. Cooperman. In fact, I am strongly inclined to the opposite view.

The UCS has shown no dramatic increase. The Boy Scouts and Girl Guides out of the agency and the YMCA suffered similar treatment. Of course they are back in action.

What exactly are we, the people of Belleville getting for our investment of $17,000 per annum plus a well endowed pension scheme?

City council seems permanent. Its members could serve a full 100 per year toward Mr. Cooperman's salary, the rest coming from the public purse itself.

Alderman Art Keegan is only one of a number of many of the citizens of Belleville who he asks for an inquiry into the running of the UCS board of directors.

If my information is correct, and I have no reason to doubt the source, the UCS board of directors merely rubber stamps Mr. Cooperman's proposals for the most part.

The UCS charges those who can afford it $15 for family counselling. The Rev. Maurice McLeod who does the work is paid $8 per session. What happens to the rest of the money?

The Citizen's Bureau approved before council recently and Alderman Keegan asked questions in relation to monies spent on supplies and services. No Liff program were never really answered. The Mayor called UCS president Hugh Perrow to the podium to answer. His replies were very evasive and inconclusive to say the least. Why was Mr. Cooperman not asked to appear? After all, the people of Belleville have a considerable investment in this man and they should be entitled to a few answers to simple questions.

I cannot see Alderman Keegan getting to the rot of the matter either.

For my money Mr. Cooperman has become a luxury the city of Belleville cannot afford.

I am wondering how many concerned citizens, members of clubs, Kinsmen, Kinnettes, parents, and numerous other organizations who might be hearing others, have taken the time to write to their MP and the Minister of Health, Marc Lalonde, answering Mr. Thompson's plea (Letter to the Editor — Monday, April 23 edition) asking that the laws be revised for driving while consuming alcohol.

Dear Ann Landers: I didn't his hat, open the door and tell him goodbye. Maybe he'll continue to drink and end up in the gutter. Or he just might hit bottom and decide to save himself. Whatever he decides, let him do it on his own. If you can't walk away from the marriage, walk away from his drinking. Make it his problem, not yours.—Voice of Experience

Dear Voice: I hear you loud and clear. Your letter was twice as long as most I print in this space, but it was too good to cut and I am using every word.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband hasn't worked for over a year. He has gambled away our joint savings account and cashed in a life insurance policy which also went down the drain.

Here's the question: I read somewhere that a wife's earnings are her own. My husband says that when our income tax refund comes (about $400) I own him half. I told him the entire amount belongs to me since he did not work this past year. He says he is entitled to half because I used him as a deduction by filing a joint return.

Do I owe him the money?—Mrs. Ours Or Mine

Dear H.O. Or M.: In a state that has community property laws, your husband may well be entitled to half. If there are not community property laws the money might belong to you. Ask a lawyer.

Fifth Graders Pull Knives—What's a Mother To Do?

By DORIS CLARK

In Winnipeg, deaf people now have a way of talking on the telephone.

Ten obsolete teletypes were donated to the deaf by CP Telecommunications. The receiver of a regular telephone is placed in position on an acoustic coupler, and impulses from the keyboard of a type wires and activate a teletype through a similar coupler at the receiving telephone.

The fellow at the other end reads the message and types out his own reply. A lamp lights up when the phone rings.

A similar donation of 20 tele typewriters has now been made by CP Telecommunications in Regina to the deaf, and Betty Holdsworth, one of the deaf housewives with the equipment in Winnipeg is looking forward to making her first long distance call. —CP TeleNews

Dear Doris: My daughter is in grade five. One of her classmates, a girl of 15, steals lipsticks and filthy magazines from stores around here and sells them. The trouble is, she told our daughter that if she's caught she'll say our daughter put her up to it.

To complicate things, a few weeks ago our daughter stopped this other girl for swearing at her, and was amazed when the girl pulled a jackknife on her. They had a real fisticuffs battle, and both girls were called to the principal's office.

Our daughter was blamed for starting it.

She came home and told us everything, and said she did not want to get the girl into any more trouble by saying that she had pulled a knife on her. But I think this is what gave this girl the idea that she could blame our girl for making her steal things. Do we keep quiet and hope nothing happens, or what? — In A Quandary

Dear Quandary: There are times for parents to step in, and this is one of them.

Go to the principal privately and make sure no knows the whole story, including the threat to blackmail your girl. A good principal will know enough about human nature to discern who is telling the truth.

Confidential to Stand Up or Sit Down: After your daughter and her bridegroom cut the cake, the champagne is served, toasts are proposed. Persons being toasted always remain seated while their particular toast is being drunk.

The bride and groom do stand up when it comes to the cutting of the cake and everybody else stays seated.

We're big in Canada. In fact, if all our employees and their families moved to one place, we'd be almost as big as Kingston. And that's pretty big. But in reality, our employees are located in Northern Electric's 43 sales locations, 17 factories, 31 warehouses, 7 laboratories and 10 divisional and corporate offices from coast to coast.

Doing what they do best—manufacturing and distributing telecommunications equipment the world over. Northern Electric is actually one of the world's largest telecommunications companies. And we're also one of the largest companies in Canada with a payroll of over $196 million.

This money goes into the pockets of our employees and back out to buy goods and services from other Canadians. When you really think about it, you'll realize just how much Northern Electric contributes to Canada's economy.

Liver in Weiners and Other Progress

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Big food manufacturing firms maintain elaborate research laboratories for a lot of reasons.

They are part of quality control programs. They can check products when there has been a consumer complaint. They test for taste. Shelf life tests are looming large now as federal legislation requiring use dating comes closer.

The labs are looking constantly for new products, improved processes, ways to use familiar raw materials, to increase profits or cut costs.

And they are used to analyse products in the light of concern over additives, nutrition, mercury traces from the environment, the effect of plant waste on the environment.

Dr. Leon Rubin, director of research at Canada Packers, said the emphasis in the laboratories changes as the market changes and technology changes.

"There has been a tremendous change in the operation of a packing house since the 1950s. For instance, wieners used to be a hand operation, now they're done pretty well continuously by machine. With roughly the same production, it took 85 people to produce the wieners, now it takes about 12."

The hot dog is one of several foods researched with a new focus now because of the current interest in nutrition.

Assistant director Ralph Wiky said: "With an emphasis to alter raw materials to provide increased nutrition. Medical evidences changes all the time, and consumers want different things.

sis on nutrition, we're asked

"We've added liver to wieners and tasted them to find out at what point you can taste the liver, which a lot of people don't like."

"We'd love to develop a high protein snack, but the texture, flavor, stability would have to be similar to what's on the market now, or people wouldn't buy it.

The nutritional problem with snack foods now is the raw material. They are mostly corn, and that's deficient in amino acids.

"Amino acids make up protein, and if one is missing, the total effect of the protein is completely missing. In the case of the snack foods, that means there is no food value in them, only calories."

When they do develop or change a product, they not only test it in a panel of people trained to describe tastes, they machine test it. They can measure the "bite," the crunch of a hot dog as well as factors such as how much less it takes in cooking.

Dr. Wiky said opinion on additives of all kinds changes as technology develops ways to test for them.

"One of the reasons DES was taken off the market is that in two years they have learned to detect it in minute parts per billion rather than per million."

DES is a growth hormone injected into cattle to make them grow faster. Its use has been outlawed in Canada because of a possibility it might cause cancer.

Dr. Rubin said their lab works with information from other research resources and vice versa, and one of their important functions is to develop methods to detect and combat threats to health that involve their industry.

He said they are trying to manufacture a phosphate-free industrial detergent and are looking for new ways to tan leather because the traditional way produces pollutants.

How to Come Out on Top

It's likely the biggest purchase you'll ever make — and if you make a bad deal buying a house, you'll regret it for a long time to come.

Free advice, largely unqualified, can be had from parents, friends and neighbors. "Build a new house, buy an old house; borrow from the bank, borrow from a trust company; buy privately, make sure you go through a real estate dealer; get a lawyer, don't waste your money on a lawyer." Who to believe?

* * *

Before you buy anything you've got it have money. Or at least know where you can get it. Ordinary sources for mortgages include trust companies, insurance companies, banks, and lawyers with clients who have money to invest. Sometimes the vendor— get used to the terms early in the game: he's the seller— will take back the mortgage at suitable interest rates. Private individuals will also frequently invest funds in mortgages. Other than these sources, there are firms from which you can borrow money at high interest rates. —

* * *

How much to pay depends on more than your desires: market, income, cost of operation, and the like. There's an old rule of thumb that says you shouldn't pay more than 25 per cent of your income for housing — that includes taxes — and the total house cost shouldn't exceed three times your annual income.

* * *

You need more than the downpayment to buy a house. But first, how much downpayment do you need? National Housing Authorities mortgages will cover up to 95 per cent of the value . . . you've got to come up with the other five per cent. Conventional mortgages will cover up to 75 per cent of the value. Note to future farmers: rural property can often only be mortgaged for 65 per cent of its value. You'll have to come up with the rest or take a second mortgage. If you can get it. When you make an offer to purchase a property be sure to have a clause allowing at least 10 days for financing. .

Once you've got that downpayment and the mortgage, your troubles — financial ones — are just beginning. There'll be tariffs to pay, land transfer taxes, prepaid property taxes, legal fees, and, of course, moving costs. And if you've been an apartment dweller, rakes and lawnmowers, hammers and paint all cost money.

* * *

A new note to cheer prospective home owners. National Housing Authority mortgages can and should now be based on the total income of both husband and wife. Formerly only a percentage of the wife's income was included in annual income calculations — and that's what will determine how much money you can borrow. (Don't let anybody tell you any different.)

* * *

When is July is questionable. Most people buy in the spring and it'd be a miracle if this annual activity period doesn't drive up house prices just a little. This year it's a seller's market in Belleville and the city's 140 real estate salesmen might well agree there's a shortage of listings. And you can guess what that does to prices.

* * *

Buying privately is considered, by some, to be risky. That's purchasing a property without benefit of a real estate agent. If you decide to go through an agent — most people do — keep in mind he's working for the vendor who's paying him from five percent of the purchase price. If you decide not to — or the property you want is being sold privately, be prepared first to learn about offers to purchase and escape clauses and conditions and all manner of intricacies.

* * *

Or you might want to get yourself a lawyer. On the other hand, you might not. The Mortgage Insurance Company of Canada recommends that you do use the services of a lawyer. Here's why: "The title to real estate is a complex matter which can only be handled by a professional with legal training." It mentions unpaid taxes, judgment claims of creditors and, "other encumbrances", Chatelaine magazine, on the other hand, thinks that if you're spunky, you can do without one. They've got a cope-kit to tell you how. If you do hire a lawyer, he'll cost you about one and a quarter percent of the purchase price.

* * *

Be wary if you purchase property from a non-resident of Canada. The Income Tax Act requires such a person to pay a tax of 25 per cent on his capital gain in the sale . . . if he doesn't pay, the purchaser can be forced to pay 15 per cent of that capital gain. Make sure your offer to purchase a non-resident's property includes a clause protecting you.

* * *

Once you're ready to start looking, keep track of which house is which. One expert recommends keeping a note for each property viewed: address, price, down payment required, taxes, age of house, style, size of lot, number of bedrooms, bathrooms, garage, and comments about good and bad features.

* * *

If you're buying in the country, be sure to include a clause in your offer to ensure the quality of well water. Have it tested for bacteria and chemical content.

You'll ask about taxes when you tour a house. But if you're serious about the house, double check at city hall.

* * *

Things to look at: how's the neighborhood? Noisy? Are the streets good? Are neighboring homes of equal value? How's transportation? How far from schools, shopping, church? Any weird smells from industry?

Look at the roof, the porches, the eaves troughing, the doors and windows. Screens and storms? How's the chimney?

Are the floors level? Enough storage space? Light and height enough? Will your furniture and appliances fit?

How's the basement? Does it seep or leak? Supporting pillars still in good condition if wood?

What are the annual heating costs? Does the hot water tank go with the house or is it rented?

Do you know just exactly what's included in the purchase price . . . fixtures, air conditioner, etc?

If you're careful, you ought to be able to get a fair deal. If you don't or in the case you have a complaint against the real estate agent, contact The Registrar, Real Estate and Brokers Act, Ministry of Consumer, Commercial Relations, 555 Yonge Street, Fifth Floor, Toronto 284, Ontario.

Unhappy owners of new houses with complaints against the builder can write The Registrar, Consumers Protection Act, Department of Consumer and Commercial Relations, 555 Yonge Street, Toronto 284, Ontario.

Happy househunting.

Construction in Belleville can't for housing . . . in the city's building is booming. Prices for city have skyrocketed in the quite keep up with the demand Centennial High School a r e a, single family dwellings in the last 10 years.

The Belleville Story

Ten years ago just isn't that long ago.

If you're the average aged prospective home buyer in Canada — 25-34 — certainly you can remember 1963 as if it were yesterday.

You could buy a home on the Bay in May, 1963, complete with carport and hostess house on a half acre lot for $8,500. Yesterday a home on the Bay was advertised at $29,900. In that year you could buy a "Modern Bungalow" on the West Hill for $11,900. A central west hill four bedroom 2-storey brick with a fireplace is advertised in May, 1963 for $14,900.

The 2-door coupe has made automotive history. It's tough, it's quick. And traditionally, it looks a lot sportier than its bigger brothers. When Datsun set out to design the best 2-door coupe around, we stuck to the principles that made the coupe a classic.

In the Datsun 1200, we've simply updated these features with a large dollop of modern technology and the feel for good, solid auto building that's been our trademark over the last 40 years. So when you want tough, quick, sporty transportation, we think our Datsun 1200 is all you really need.

Chinese Show Canadians Research in Acupuncture

SHANGHAI (CP) — Chinese scientists gave visiting Canadian doctors Wednesday a deeper look into how the centuries-old practice of acupuncture acts as a pain-killer.

At the Shanghai Institute of Physiology Wednesday, the Canadian doctors saw researchers at work on a rat, a cat, self a rabbit and sophisticated electronic monitoring machinery in experiments designed to find out more about pain and how acupuncture works to inhibit it.

Chinese researchers believe acupuncture inhibited pain at least partly through the spine and brain, probably by way of muscle areas known as nerve receptors which may be the acupuncture points.

In other words, needling muscles, somehow scrambles the normal pain message in the nervous system.

They believe main scrambling centres are in the brain and spinal column and perhaps augment each other to extend the normal human or animal pain threshold. They measure pain by monitoring electrical impulses given off at various points.

Researchers have found two specific points that react electrically to pain or its relief—both in the thalamus at the base of the brain in pinpoint areas whose function previously was unexplained. They demonstrated this for visitors by monitoring exposed points in the brain of a white rat.

In the rabbit experiment it proved acupuncture acts through the central nervous system, the spine and brain. The blindfolded rabbit, with its brain monitored and a hot light placed almost against its nose, flinched in about four seconds. After brief needling in the lower leg point known in old acupuncture metaphysics as Tsou Shan Li, the rabbit took more than seven seconds to flinch and brain waves confirmed the process took place in the brain.

Jailed Labor Leaders Seek Leaves of Absence

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Wednesday conditions may be attached to the "leaves of absence" Quebec's three top labor leaders have requested, but he is not prepared to discuss the conditions at present.

Mr. Choquette confirmed, however, that his department has received requests from the three leaders—Louis Laberge, Marcel Pepin and Yvon Charbonneau—for their release.

They are the presidents of the Quebec Federation of Labor, the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Teachers Corp., respectively.

Mr. Choquette said the earliest the three men could be given leaves of absence — the term under Quebec law for a system resembling the Canadian parole system—is May 15.

They then will have served one-third of their one-year sentences imposed last year for contempt of court.

When asked about the touchy question of whether the labor leaders would be permitted to make public statements, the justice minister held to his policy of not for the moment penalizing conditions to be attached to their release.

In the past when the labor leaders have been released for a few days, they have been required to sign documents pledging themselves not to make public statements.

Mr. Choquette was speaking to reporters outside the Quebec national assembly.

Anglicans to Discuss Wide Range of Topics

REGINA (CP) — Priesthood for women, proposed union with two other churches, abortions, Prayerful lamentation, organ Anglicans, church work in the north and other issues facing Canada's 1.5 million Anglicans will be discussed at the 26th general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada in Regina today through May 11.

More than 200 delegates, including all five archbishops and 33 bishops of the national church, the four ecclesiastical provinces and 28 dioceses are attending the synod, with Most. Rev. Edward Scott of Toronto, primate of the church, giving the opening address tonight.

MOST REV. E. SCOTT

The long-standing question of the church's influence and admitting women to the priesthood in Canada will come to a vote at the synod. There are already Anglican women priests in the world, the first two being ordained in Hong Kong two years ago.

The synod will be asked to vote on a recommendation of the national executive council that a committee be set up to work for the proposed union with the United Church of Canada and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) to form the Church of Christ in Canada, which will have a combined membership of almost four million.

The primate's task force on human life will bring to delegates what it considers the acceptable principle of abortion, which is "in a case where pregnancy poses problems, abortions would be morally acceptable if circumstances made it the conscientious choice of the mother."

The task force report also touches on the impact of transplants and artificial insemination on the church's traditional values.

A major report to be presented is the church's work in the north. A task force on the north has identified some problems, including the decline of hostile arctic environment.

Other topics to be covered include the church's public responsibility, the changing concept of missionary work, work with the youth, better pension plans for the clergy, the role of the rural ministry and condemnation of South Africa's racial policy.

Four main themes have been set for the discussions: renewal of life and community, of faith, of the ministry, and of the church.

Drain Water Provides Heat and Drink

OTTAWA (CP) — That dirty water you now flush down toilets and drain from kitchen sinks could be returned to you as drinking water in the near future.

It could also become the source of your heat and water supply, says a spokesman for Canwel—the Canadian water energy loop.

Canwel, a world-first developed for the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) by the Ontario Research Foundation, now is operating as a plant serving 200 homes in Mississauga, a community on the western outskirts of Toronto.

The plant, which handles 15,000 gallons of water daily, contains a long, transparent, blue plastic column with cross inside. The water emerges clearer than the usual tap water, say CMHC officials.

It can also be used to produce heat and electricity.

The system, which has been operating for five months, will be demonstrated officially to U.S. and Canadian scientific writers and manufacturers in a two-day seminar May 17-18.

Former White House Aides To See Watergate Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outgoing White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman are scheduled to visit the Watergate prosecutor today, news sources report.

Later the two are scheduled to meet investigators from the Senate Watergate committee on "neutral ground" belonging neither to the executive nor legislative arm of government, a source said. That meeting may come later today, but sources give differing accounts of the timing.

The developments come amidst reports that the two face possible indictment for their role in an alleged White House coverup of the Watergate wiretapping.

Haldeman, White House chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, have resigned. And Wednesday the White House effected a realignment of responsibilities. Staff veterans will fill their vacancies temporarily, sources said. Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew was given an expanded role in forming domestic policy, the White House announced.

Meanwhile Wednesday, the Justice department cited the Nixon campaign for not reporting a secret $200,000 cash gift from accused mutual-fund looter Robert L. Vesco.

The committee, which could be fined $5,000 on the alleged violation, denied it broke the law. It also noted that Vesco's money was given back to him after the Securities and Exchange Commission sued him for siphoning $224 million from four overseas mutual funds.

The Nixon campaign already has paid an $8,000 fine for not reporting money paid from a secret cash fund used to finance the Watergate bugging. No individuals were accused in that case either.

The Watergate grand jury heard two key witnesses Wednesday. Former Nixon campaign deputy Jeb Magruder appeared for what is thought to be his first testimony since the scandal broke open. And E. Howard Hunt—already convicted, sentenced and given immunity from further prosecution in the case—was brought from his jail cell in handcuffs for a repeat appearance.

Hunt testified for about two hours, and didn't speak to reporters. Magruder testified for three hours, and said later he answered all questions without being granted immunity.

Magruder is reported to have accused former attorney-general John N. Mitchell and ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III of helping plan the bugging and later arranging payoffs to cover it up. He quit his commerce department job last week without explanation after Mitchell is reported to have testified that Magruder himself proposed the bugging.

In another development Wednesday, Egil (Bud) Krogh took sudden leave from his own job as No. 2 man in the department of transportation. Krogh, 33, had been an aide to Ehrlichman at the White House, and was boss of the White House news-leak-plugging team when two of the group allegedly burgled the office of psychiatrist who had treated Daniel Ellsberg, defendant in the Pentagon papers trial.

Nation of Spectators

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — State Secretary Hugh Faulkner said Wednesday Canada is becoming a nation of spectators. "There is no question in my mind that we are becoming a nation of spectators, not just in sports, but in all creative activities as well," he told a group of Grade 13 students Wednesday.

Labor Ministers Trade Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor ministers attending a two-day federal-provincial conference spent Wednesday shadow-boxing, exchanging information and views on a variety of labor issues.

Topics of debate included the compressed work-week, the right to strike and causes of illegal strikes. The ministers are expected to get down to some firmer discussion on minimum wages and jurisdictional problems today.

Federal minister John Munro and seven of his provincial counterparts all took part in the first day of the closed talks. But when the meeting broke up they had few revelations to make.

The ministers did reach agreement on the need for a joint federal-provincial study into the causes of illegal work stoppages.

Products Make Leisure More Enjoyable

Modern leisure means more than merely loafing the time away.

It's a multiplicity of pastimes as diverse as the personalities of its participants.

And it all keeps multiplying.

Today, there's more leisure, more people, more pastimes.

For three days this week, end the big exhibition at Belleville's Memorial Arena will be a showcase of just what latter-day leisure means.

From swimming pools to saddles and sailing boats, bows and arrows and bicycles, the itemized list of displays ranges through most aspects of recreation.

Its variety merges such a cross - section of personal tastes, it emphasizes arena manager Robb Burrowes' belief that today "leisure time is pretty hard to define.

"What one man considers recreation may seem like hard work to another. Each individual has a different interpretation," says Mr. Burrowes, as he surveys work preparations for the exhibition.

Even within one family, leisure time can mean meeting such a variety of tastes that things become complicated. Translated into consumer demand, shopping around for the necessary equipment can be a bit involved.

In the marketplace, supplying such an increasing, varying demand has been marked by corresponding growth and diversity.

CIVILIAN AWARDS

The Royal Canadian Humane Association, founded in 1894 to recognize deeds of heroism in civilian life, has granted 3,000 medals and parchments for acts of bravery.

Hence one reason for the big display which opens Friday evening.

The show is timed so it almost ushers in the start of the warm - weather season when leisure time activities peak.

It brings consumers and suppliers together in one spot, providing a centralized showcase, says city recreation director Lorne Williams.

"It benefits merchants who participate by drawing attention to what is on display early in the season. It also lets people know what's available — without having to go from one part of the city to another."

Officially sponsored by the city's recreation and arena committee, the show is the only one of its kind in the Quinte district, says Mr. Burrowes.

As such, it has added significance since Belleville is the major service centre for what he calls a "fantastic recreation area."

Almost every leisure time environment is within no more than an hour's drive of the city, from woodlands and bush in the north to Lake Ontario beaches in the south.

The display also marks the start of warm - weather programming at the arena. The last traces of winter's sports disappeared this week when the building was being prepared for the exhibition.

It's the third year for the exhibition — the second for its direct sponsorship by its recreation committee.

This year, times have been changed slightly to more closely fit available time patterns of the public.

Show times: Friday, 5 p.m.-9 p.m.; Saturday, 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Sunday, 1:30 p.m.-6 p.m.

Parole Board Slowing Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Parole Board has decided reluctantly to restrict its activities at a time when some authorities are calling for a thorough revision of the whole system of granting paroles and temporary absences from prison.

The decision to at least temporarily discontinue a four-year-old practice of visiting prisons comes as the need for review of parole procedures is being discussed in a number of areas.

The Senate legal and constitutional affairs committee is in the second year of a review that takes in parole and temporary absences granted by the penitentiaries service.

At the same time a report on paroles done by Judge James Hugesen of the Quebec Superior Court is in limited circulation and Solicitor-General Warren Allmand has said eventually it will be made public.

It is reported that one recommendation is that some of the right of granting temporary absences now exercised by the penitentiary service be given to the parole board.

The additional work load that could come might be eased by a restructuring of the board.

One restructuring possibility is the regionalization of board operations. The headquarters of the board would remain in Ottawa, but much of the parole work would be done by boards operating exclusively in the five Canadian regions.

It also is considered possible that provinces will be asked to take over the parolling of prisoners under their jurisdiction—those receiving sentences of less than two years—which would remove about half the case load of the board.

The provincial case load is part of the reason that the parole board has decided to suspend face-to-face dealing with federal prisoners in parole applications.

Since 1969 the board representatives have been visiting federal institutions to deal with parole applications, while dealing with provincial paroles from the central Ottawa office.

Parole board chairman George Street, who has been saying for some time that he needs an additional six members, finally decided the work was such he had to stop the prison visits.

The big advantage to the prison hearings was that in most cases prisoners were given the decision on their parole applications immediately.

Now prisoners will be interviewed by field workers who will report to Ottawa. The board will meet here and decide on the applications and the decision will be sent to the prisoner by telephone, wire or mail.

Death Penalty . Foe Is Acquitted

OTTAWA (CP) — A 60-year-old Toronto man, who in 1942 was sentenced to death for killing a prison guard, had a charge of attempted murder against him withdrawn by the Crown Wednesday.

Al Baldwin, an advocate of repealing capital punishment, was cleared of the Jan. 10 charge in connection with the stabbing of Robert Hawley of Ottawa.

A co-accused, Nicholas Minnelli, 55, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of assault causing bodily harm. He will be sentenced May 8.

Baldwin, who was later sentenced to life in prison and paroled for the killing of the Kingston penitentiary guard, is the director of a consulting firm which counsels men requiring workmen's compensation.

Minnelli was a counsellor of the company's Ottawa branch.

Mr. Hawley was stabbed in the stomach and slashed across the face by one of two men who entered his apartment Jan. 10.

Baldwin was in Ottawa at the time of the stabbing to present a petition to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand calling for the abolition of capital punishment.

Baldwin said he became an active advocate for abolishment of the death penalty after his own death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

He said Wednesday that since being charged with the attempted stabbing he was banned from Kingston Penitentiary where he was doing work with parolees.

Police testified at the trial there was no apparent motive for the stabbing incident. But they suspected that Minnelli was retaliating to remarks made by Mr. Hawley about Minnelli's criminal record.

Minnelli was released from prison in 1959 after serving 10 years for armed robbery and another three years for a prison break.

Assistant Crown Attorney Jack Nadelle told the court that the "Crown feels he (Baldwin) should not be called to face trial."

"There is no evidence against him aside from the fact he was with Minnelli when the offence occured," he said.

Nurse Enthuses After Acupuncture

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal nurse Helen Anderson says she was on her feet a few minutes after a recent hernia operation and conscious throughout the painless surgery in which acupuncture was used as an anesthetic.

Dr. Chiu Kwo performed the acupuncture in a 40-minute operation.

Mrs. Anderson had five needles inserted into her skin during the operation at the Reddy Memorial Hospital. Three of the needles were inserted at the hip, two in the leg.

"From beginning to end of the operation, I did not feel a thing," she said, "not even the insertion of the needles.

"Because of the analgesic effect of acupuncture, for nearly 12 hours after surgery I experienced none of the usual post-operative pain."

Mrs. Anderson, 56, bypassed the usual five-day convalescence period and returned to her home the next day.

Dr. Kwo, staff doctor at the hospital, has been doing research on acupuncture for two years and has applied the technique in his practice to relieve patients' pain but never before as an anesthetic during surgery.

Spokesmen for the Canadian Medical Association and the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons also said they knew of no other such case.

Dr. Harry Stevens, who performed the surgery on Mrs. Anderson, was enthusiastic about Monday's success.

Shulman Says Sex, Drugs Causing Reformatory Unrest

TORONTO (CP) — Sexual abuses, drug trafficking and convict brutality have become so rampant at Guelph Correctional Centre that there is a danger of a riot by prisoners or a walkout by guards, Morton Shulman charged Wednesday.

The New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto—High Park urged that superintendent Scott Keane be replaced by a stronger disciplinarian.

Reforms at the medium-security provincial institution are bringing conditions up to modern standard, Mr. Apps told a news conference.

But the minister said Dr. Shulman has exposed one flaw in the present system. Convicts who have committed offences in the centre are allowed to remain on a prisoners' committee and hold passes allowing them movement about the centre.

"I think it's wrong," Mr. Apps said. "That will be rectified."

Dr. Shulman presented reporters at a news conference with a lengthy list of problems at the centre which he said had been given to him by guards who could not get their grievances publicized otherwise.

Dr. Shulman cited:

—A "serious upsurge" of both voluntary and forced homosexuality;

—An incident in which a woman brought into the prison had sexual intercourse with a convict;

—Distribution of hard drugs by convicts with passes allowing free access to all areas of the reformatory;

—A reign of terror by hardened convicts who have used strong-arm tactics to induce a "psychology of fear" among first-time offenders.

The NDP member said "hardened narcs and cons" have wrested control of the 700-convict centre.

He said 95 per cent of guards are unhappy and a number are prepared to lay their jobs on the line.

Dr. Shulman said homosexuality has thrived at the reformatory ever since a prisoner committee, taken over by hardened convicts, ordered all interior doors be left open and that they be allowed as many as three prisoners in a cell.

The flow of hard drugs and marijuana has increased because 15 passes, good for anywhere in the institution, have gone to tough narcotics dealers, Dr. Shulman said.

One prisoner has been allowed to keep such a pass despite being charged, and convicted of possessing drugs inside the reformatory, he said.

Another prisoner caught with drugs by guards is to appear in court May 8, Dr. Shulman said. However, his information indicates the prisoner still has a free-access pass.

But Mr. Apps defended Mr. Keane, saying he helped improve conditions at what once was a rundown institution.

Mr. Apps said homosexuality and drug abuse have declined at the Guelph centre and challenged Dr. Shulman to prove otherwise.

He invited reporters to meet with the reformatory's prisoner committee Friday.

When the committee was established, Mr. Apps said, the danger of bullies taking charge was considered.

"It was a calculated risk considered worth taking."

He dismissed the possibility of a walkout by guards but conceded that "there are no doubt staff who would prefer a return to more emphasis on locks and keys and bars."

But he said he has "no intention of giving more emphasis to strictly custodial measures than is absolutely necessary in a centre housing young offenders."

Hospital Association and OMA Oppose Health Councils for All

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Charles Boyd, president of the Ontario Hospital Association said Wednesday his group and the Ontario Medical Association have asked Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter not to impose district health councils across the province.

"Instead we would prefer to see the impetus come from within the districts themselves, utilizing as far as possible the framework already created by existing planning councils," he told a district meeting of his association.

Mr. Boyd said the two organizations made their suggestions in a joint brief to the ministry.

The councils, if they are formed, should not be loaded with hospital and medical personnel, he added. This might put a "severe strain on our objectivity in the eyes of the government and the public."

The health ministry announced last year its intent to establish such councils whose functions would be to plan, coordinate and evaluate local health services.

Canada All for New NATO But Where Does It Fit In?

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will respond "most willingly" to the American call for a new Atlantic nations charter but the basic question remains of where Canada fits in, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday night.

In his first official response to the Washington proposal voiced last week by Henry Kissinger, Mr. Sharp said "we think we have a distinctive contribution to make and we don't want to be polarized around any of the main power centres."

There had been a "potentially disturbing feature" in the statement by Dr. Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign policy adviser, in that he had identified The United States, Europe and Japan as main power centres. That speech mentioned Canada once.

Mr. Sharp, addressing the annual dinner of The Canadian Press national news co-operative, said this country can take some comfort from the fact the U.S. is calling on it, Europe and—eventually—Japan to work out a new Atlantic charter.

"In that call, I have no hesitation in saying that we will respond most willingly, the more so because it is within such a framework that Canada will have the best chance of avoiding polarization and of achieving the diversity of economic, cultural and political relations that is fundamental to the strengthening of the Canadian identity."

That path is the option chosen by the government in its policies on foreign ownership, trade and other matters, Mr. Sharp said. But decisions still must be made on assorted Canada-U.S. issues arising almost pearred there was a chance of a daily from energy to investment and broadcasting policy.

The external affairs minister also repeated to reporters after his address that the government is sticking with its peace-observation role in Vietnam despite Tuesday's episode of further firing on helicopters bearing Canadian and other supervisory personnel.

But the government view is that "we will withdraw if there is no improvement" in the conditions facing the Canadian contingent and "there has been no substantial improvement."

There are another 30 days to go before the previously-authorized extension period lapses, Mr. Sharp said.

It was essential to stick with the supervisory role while it appeared there was a chance of a Vietnam peace.

CP News Roundup

Polluter's Identity Withheld

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Prof. D. C. Van Loon of the University of Toronto says the ministry of the environment refused him the name of a company responsible for spilling a highly concentrated mixture of a chromium compound into a creek here.

The spill Feb. 11 occurred about half a mile from one of the intakes in the Oshawa water supply.

Prof. Van Loon is with the university's institute of environmental studies.

J. B. Annand, manager of the Oshawa Public Utilities Commission, said:

"I think you would be safe to say the water supply was in no danger. I hadn't even heard of it."

Oshawa Times says it learned the company involved in the spill was Houdaille (Oshawa) Ltd., a manufacturer of auto parts, and quoted a company spokesman as saying five or six conditions combined to demonstrate to the company that what previously had been considered a "fail-safe system" was fallible. The system now was being altered.

To his knowledge it was the only time a spill had occurred.

Need to Export

TORONTO (CP) — Industry Minister Claude Bennett told the Canadian Exporters' and Bankers' Associates Wednesday that although trade has helped Ontario produce a good standard of living, manufacturing and processing industries mustn't be neglected.

"We must bear in mind that Ontario can't ride forward only on the exports of our auto industry and our foreign-aid program," he said.

Control Elm

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain has ordered tough new restrictions on hardwood elm imports following reports that a virulent form of Dutch elm disease has been carried into the country on Canadian logs.

Food Rations Said Possible

TORONTO (CP) — A marketing professor said Wednesday food prices have been rising for years "because of politically-inspired inflationary policies" of governments around the world.

Max Brunk of Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., said rapidly rising wage costs combined with disastrous crop harvests last year to lift prices for consumers to a crisis level this spring.

"Should 1973 prove a second disastrous year (in food production) we can only look forward to widespread rationing," he told the closing session of the annual meeting of the Canadian Grocery Distributors' Institute.

He said there appears to be no politically palatable solution to the world food price crisis.

"Political leaders are in no position to abandon those inflationary policies which have so enhanced wages and to some lesser degree physical volume of production."

People Nice

TORONTO (CP) — Tourists rate Ontario highly when it comes to warm, friendly people, but not-so-hot in the quality of its food.

A survey for the Ontario Hotel and Motel Association found that of 1,500 travellers, 56 per cent rated the province's people the most important attraction.

D. FULLERTON

No Ale

OTTAWA (CP) — There will be no quaffing of ale on Ottawa's Confederation Square this summer.

The chairman of the National Capital Commission, Dougl=s Fullerton, said Wednesday he has decided not to fight a decision by the Ontario Liquor Licence Board which has refused to grant a licence for a proposed beer garden on Confederation Square in downtown Ottawa.

"We've checked our constitutional position, and quite frankly, it's all a very grey area and I don't want to fight it on those grounds," said Mr. Fullerton.

Go Slow

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Fraser Mustard, dean of medicine at McMaster University, Hamilton, said Wednesday Ontario's health care system must move slowly and not by "revolution."

Dr. Mustard, who heads a provincial committee studying health planning, was addressing a district meeting of le hOntario Hospital Association.

"If you do it through revolution or dictates from on high you won't get very far," he said. "People will drag their feet or fight the system."

Minimum Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would increase the minimum wage in the United States to $2 from $1.60 an hour this year and $2.20 next year, was approved Wednesday by a House of Representatives' labor subcommittee.

Costs Rise

TORONTO (CP) — As of Tuesday, patients in Ontario nursing homes are paying from 50 cents to $1 a day more for nursing home care, a health ministry official said Wednesday.

The spokesman said the 20,000 patients are required to pay $1 a day for standard care, an increase of 50 cents.

Patients in semi-private accommodations pay an increase of 75 cents and those in private rooms pay an extra $1 a day.

They Had A Good Time So He Pleaded for Girl's Life

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A statement read in court Wednesday said Laura Cronk, 18, was sitting in the front seat of a car between two men when one of the men, Donald Elliott, pulled a gun from his pocket and said: "I'm going to kill the girl." He then pulled the trigger.

Elliott, 32, of Amherstburg, Ont., is charged with the non-capital murder of the girl last Nov. 28. She was living at an ated Elliott.

Amherstburg motel and worked as a waitress.

Her body was found Nov. 29 in a ditch by a side road near Amherstburg.

The statement was read by Crown attorney E. A. Duchesne, who said it was made to provincial police by Hayworth Wilson, 24, of Amherstburg two days after the discovery of Miss Cronk's body.

In testimony Wednesday, Wilson denied making three parts of the statement which implicated Elliott.

In the statement, Wilson said he drove Miss Cronk from a party at Elliott's apartment. He and Elliott were in the front seat with the girl between them and another man in the rear seat.

The statement said that when Elliott said he was going to shoot the girl Wilson said: "No man, please don't kill her. She ain't done nothing to us and we had a good time."

Doctor in Town of 600 Had Bills for $250,000

Over a period of about a year, he had rung up claims for payment amounting to some $250,000.

His fees were drastically slashed by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, the doctors' licensing and disciplinary body who reminded him that health insurance was not a get-rich-quick scheme for the medical profession.

That was an extreme case and occurred before the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) took over last year with a computer-surveillance setup that produces a month-to-month "profile" of a doctor's practice.

But many authorities consider that doctors are doing better than all right out of the public treasury and that it is time to curb rising payments.

Setting aside the few caught trying to hit the cash register for $15,000 a month or so and the odd one billing for 300 patients a day, Ontario doctors have suddenly bounced into average net incomes approaching $50,000 a year, and the upward slide continues.

In the last seven years since the Ontario government entered health insurance—and particularly since universal coverage began in 1969—the cost of doctors' services to the public about doubled.

During the current fiscal year, the Ontario government will pay doctors $600 million for insured coverage, about what all Canadians spent for medical attention seven years ago.

The big jump, far exceeding pre-insurance calculations, is stimulated partly by many more people getting service more than before, including those whose lack of money kept them away from the doctor.

Experts cite additional reasons: higher doctors' fees; over-use by the public now that a session with the doctor is free (or apparently free); over-servicing by doctors to swell their bills.

And there is a sizable temptation, students of OHIP say, for doctors to embellish the value of their work by such gimmicks as translating an office visit ($5) into a general assessment or checkup ($15) for billing purposes.

Late in April the College of Physicians and Surgeons announced a clampdown on the scale of payments to doctors who appear to be treating too many patients to give them adequate care, starting May 1.

The college said that "certain physicians whose pattern of practice indicates that the quality of service is less than acceptable" will have their fees cut through a formula now being devised.

Beyond a certain work load by a doctor, the college explained, "the quality, and therefore the value of such services, must decline."

However, some experts believe that an even more substantial curb will be required, even to the point of a major modification of the doctors' client and cherished fee-for-service principle.

At present, fee-for-service is the general basis of payment for the 9,500 doctors in private practice in Ontario, though about one-third of all the doctors in the province are salaried. OHIP pays the doctor 90 per cent of what he bills it under an Ontario Medical Association scale.

If he wants to try for the full amount, he can switch to billing the patient, who collects 90 per cent from OHIP, leaving the doctor to collect the remainder from the patient. Most doctors settle for the simpler 90 per cent.

One way of reducing the drain on OHIP would be a drastic curtailment in the servicing of patients by doctors. But doctors say they can't turn aside a patient just because he bobs up frequently; he just might have something seriously wrong.

On the other hand, some experts think many doctors encourage unnecessary work for revenue purposes. One survey in a large city, admittedly a small segment, showed patients instigating 46 per cent of office visits and doctors 80 per cent.

Prof. Rod D. Fraser of Queen's University, Kingston, a nationally-recognized expert on medical economics who is on a government-appointed committee trying to chart the long-range future of the insurance plan, says putting doctors on salary may have merit.

He also says group practices should be set up to deliver more service to patients less expensively. But he and other authorities agree that the traditional doctoral concept of being his own boss mitigates against the idea getting wide acceptance in Ontario.

Some other thoughts from Prof. Fraser:

Since 80 per cent of Ontario births are normal, could midwives substitute for high-priced obstetricians? Could more babies be delivered at home instead of using $80-a-day hospital beds? Should insured persons be allowed to shop around among specialists, as many of those wanting specialists' services do?

Under Britain's health service, patients must be referred to a specialist by the family doctor.)

Prof. Fraser agrees with other students of the system that it's time the nurse was allowed more responsibility in such things as the preliminary assessment of patients, making lesser decisions, managing chronic-care patients, taking house calls.

Some doctors are not unelastic about this, saying the physician must bear the ultimate responsibility for patient. But the health ministry is considering having nurses take over some of the doctor's work in thinly-populated sectors and in overtaxed emergency departments, where only a doctor now can apply a stitch.

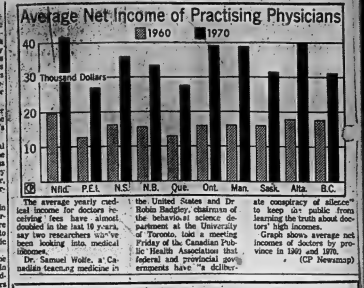
There is a mish-mash of other suggestions for plugging the medical flow from OHIP's treasury.

Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, has suggested fixing the amount available for physicians annually and, should the money run short in the last quarter, paying out only a pro-rated percentage of the bills.

A version of this is used in some places, including Germany. One administrator here suggests it might be adapted to Ontario by allocating specific sums for each quarter-year.

A semi-official view of the Ontario Medical Association, in an editorial in the Ontario Medical Review, is that doctors with "unusually high" incomes might take longer holidays and shorten the work week. This is not expected to get much consideration from the government as a workable device.

Meanwhile, the OMA is about to come up with its biennial revision of the fee schedule. The last two—in 1969 and 1971—were expensive to the treasury. In the prevailing atmosphere, the doctors will find it tough to wring more out of the treasury this time.



The average yearly medical income for doctors receiving fees have almost doubled in the last 10 years, say two researchers who've been looking into medical incomes.

Dr. Samuel Wolfe, a Canadian teaching medicine in the United States and Dr Robin Badgley, chairman of the behavioral science department at the University of Toronto, told a meeting Friday of the Canadian Public Health Associations that federal and provincial governments have "a deliberate conspiracy of silence" to keep the public from learning the truth about doctors' high incomes.

Graph shows average net incomes of doctors by province in 1969 and 1970.

Gambling Joining Curriculum

OTTAWA (CP) — Have you ever wondered what are the odds of winning two games of solitaire in a row?

Next season, Carleton University's mathematics department will be prepared to give you those odds, providing you take Mathematics 100: Gambling.

The new course, to be offered next semester, will look at horse racing, the stock market, football pools, casino gambling, poker and the gambling of politics, economics and war.

Prof. Walter Schneider, who will teach the course, said it is only the third such course offered at university level in North America. York University in Toronto and New York State University also offer gambling courses.

Prof. Schneider said the need for such a course is because 95 per cent of the population "has incredibly sloppy" ideas about making probable statistical estimates."

He noted that the game of poker, for example, is harder to analyse than the mathematical factors of sending a man to the moon.

In fact, the computer hasn't yet been made that can handle the number of betting strategies for seven-card poker, he said.

"If mathematicians knew an optimal poker strategy, they wouldn't be in colleges. They'd be in Las Vegas."

Although the course is planned with non-mathematicians in mind, math can't be avoided, said Prof. Schneider. But students won't be expected to deal with complex calculations.

As for requirements, Prof. Schneider said he will take anybody who can handle high school algebra, providing they meet the university's requirements.

A word to the wise for gamblers: "Don't," said the professor.

Mightier Than Ever

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The mighty Niagara River is mightier than ever this spring, despite the fact that Ontario Hydro and the Power Authority of New York are drawing off more water than usual. Lloyd Young, public relations officer for Ontario Hydro, said that while the average flow of the Niagara River is 200,000 cubic feet a second, this spring's flow is about 280,000 cubic feet a second.

Jury Asks Crosswalks

PICTON — A coroner's jury as ruled that Wilson Bonard, 44, of RR 2, Picton, ded by accident in a double edestrian fatality here in February and has recom- ed pedestrian zone cross-

Mr. Bongard and his com- anion, Keith Jenkins, 59, of rown Street, were struck and lled by a car driven by ichard Parks, 18, of RR 2, loomfield as they crossed Main Street. The incident oc- rred shortly before 1:30 .m. on February 3 near the ntersection of Main and Bow- ry Streets. No charges were aid following the traffic ieaths.

Constable George Wright of the Picton police department estified he found Mr. Parks in "an hysterical condition" at the accident scene and said there was "absolutely no evi- ence of alcohol." The man was alone in his car when he truck the couple.

A very light rain was falling at the time of the accident and visibility was described as fair to good. The area in which the couple was killed was well lighted.

Constable Wright testified that blood samples showed Wilson Bongard's body had a 200 milligram per cent alcohol content much in excess of the .08 per cent or 80 milligrams permitted for drivers. Mrs. Jenkin's body had a 30 milligram per cent alcohol content described as "rather slight."

Richard Parks testified he was westbound on Main Street following a car that appeared to have stopped at the intersection of Main and Bowery Streets. He said he had pulled out into the left hand passing lane when the couple moved in front of his car. He was unable to stop after attempting to brake, then to swerve. He estimated his speed at 25 to 30 miles an hour.

Mr. Parks said he had drunk one pint of beer at approximately 10 p.m., several hours before the accident.

Steven Ryan, a passenger in the car passed by Mr. Parks testified that its driver, Gary McConnell was travelling from 18 to 20 miles an hour as the Parks vehicle pulled onto behind. Mr. Bongard and his companion had crossed in front of the McConnell car safely just as the Parks' vehicle started to pass.

"They were just clearing our car," he said.

Prince Edward County coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond said an autopsy showed Wilson Bongard died instantly from a broken neck and a severed spinal cord. He also had been enthaged between the brain and the skull and suffered a ruptured bladder.

The coroner said Mr. Bongard was "inebriated" at the time of his death and had been imbibing "at a great rate."

The jury's verdict was read by foreman Walter Frost. Other jurors included Harry Varty, Douglas Strong, Roland Berry and William Mansley, all of Picton.

Watercolors Follow Hasty Pees' Campaign

Jagged realities clipped from the sane, blasted trudge of Baby then to northwest Europe, 1943-45, are relived in watercolors to be displayed in the officers' mess at the Belleville Armory.

They relate to the history, the losses and the honors of the Hasty Pees and are provided by Maj. R. F. Wodehouse, curator of war art at the Canadian War Museum, National Museum of Man in Ottawa. On Sunday May 6 from 1:30 p.m., as part of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment A Company's open day, and several days over the following two weeks, the paintings will be on display.

Artists on both front lines, German and Allied, are represented in the 25-piece collection that follows like a bomb custern the route of the Hasty Pees, from the Pachino Peninsula in Sicily where they landed in July 1943, to a 1945 victory procession of armored cars through a battered Rotterdam.

The observation post at Assoro and the battered bulk of Monte Cassino will evoke many memories for veterans of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. For others the paintings will be a glimpse of a dimension of war known first-hand by fathers, husbands, brothers, grandfathers or friends. Through his selection, Maj. Wodehouse has created a memorial of sorts.

Allied war artists whose works are displayed include Will Ogilvie, Charles Comfort, Lawren P. Harris, Paul Goranson, Tom MacDonald, Campbell Trening, Bruno Bobak and Orville Fisher. There are also seven paintings by the German war artist Wilhelm Wessel.

The art display and newly completed Regimental Museum in the officer's mess at the Armory will be open to the public on Sunday afternoon until 5 p.m. and again Monday May 7, 8 p.m. - 11 p.m., Thursday May 9, 8 p.m. - 11 p.m., Saturday May 11, 2 p.m. - 4 p.m. and from 8 p.m. - 11 p.m. on Monday May 14, Thursday May 17 and Tuesday May 22. There is no admission charge and teachers wishing to organize daytime tours for their classes are asked to contact Lt.-Col. A. B. Duffy, co-ordinator of the Emergency Measures Organization, Quinte Area, at 962-9455, or at home: 968-2887.

81-mile Trail Link Proposed

The possibility of establishing an official overland trail to link the Trent and Rideau canals is being discussed in the Highlands of Hastings County Council.

The proposed trail would be between Campbellford and Westport, covering a distance of approximately 81 miles through some of the most rural country in Eastern Ontario.

Development of the trail will be discussed at the next meeting of Highlands of Hastings executive and if interest appears to warrant its promotion, citizen tourist regions will be requested if they are prepared to assist in the project.

Council member Don Rodgers of Stirling said there was a specific need for the trail but one of the problems of development is the fact that the route runs across four separate tourist regions, the Bolero and Lake Islands, Land O' Lakes, Highlands of Hastings and the Five Ridge Tourist Region.

The trail route links a number of villages and hamlets. Through Hastings county road 9 through Hoskston to Springbrook and on to Campbellford and the Trent River.

Geography Project

Twenty-three Bayside Secondary School students spent a month constructing a scale model of a landscape, from desert plateau to urban development as a teaching aid. Showing it off at the open house last night are Linda Cheney, Ian Stewart and Robert McPhee. The model was made in sections so it can be transported to other schools and reassembled for instructional purposes. More than 2,000 people turned out to view the school, students' displays and demonstrations.

Belleville's Fire Record Looks Bad in Report

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Belleville is one of the most fire - prone city in the province this year, an Ontario Fire Marshal's report has revealed.

In 1972, Belleville had 256 fires, a rate of 745 fires per 100,000 population. That figure far exceeds the provincial incidence rate of 334 and the next highest city, Port Colborne, 625.

With 34,351 residents, the city compares in size with Waterloo (31,893) and Chatham (33,230) but in those centres the number of fires totalled 138 and 135.

Only other Ontario city with a population of more than 20,000 to have an incidence rate higher than 600 was Stratford with 608. Trenton, at 419, had the highest rate among municipalities.

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane said the incidence figures are not as startling as they first appear.

"We had 73 grass and bonfires and 63 fires involving cars, trucks and motorcycles," he said. "That leaves 120 fires with any actual loss."

He said many of the fires also involved malfunctioning oil burners and rubbish containers where loss was minimal. Only 61 fires took place in dwellings.

A spokesman for the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Toronto said the statistics were compiled from reports received from municipal fire chiefs, insurance companies and insurance adjustors and were intended to provide statistical information for use of fire agencies concerned.

The spokesman said many fires are too small to merit the fire department's attention although reports are still filed when persons claim damages through their insurance companies.

The report listed loss from Belleville's 256 fires as $653,588. The bulk of that, $385,955 — resulted from an April fire at Victoria Ave. and Front St., that wiped out several stores and offices.

Across Ontario, the total number of fires rose from 38,435 in 1971 to 38,162 last year although necessarily loss decreased by $3,799,286 to $79,237,571.

The number of fire deaths also rose, from 225 to 254. Five occurred in Hastings County, seven in Lennox and Addington County, four in Northumberland and Durham and none in Prince Edward County.

The report, made available Wednesday, said the heaviest toll came during winter months when heating units were in use and residences were sealed by storm windows. The highest number of deaths occurred on weekends, it said, suggesting that the home should still receive the greatest fire preventive attention.

House Burned

A Queensboro area house owned by Allan Ramsay and occupied by Cecil Wright was completely destroyed by fire last week.

Mr. Wright said a wood stove in the house was burning at the time and apparently sparks jumped from the chimney and set the roof ablaze.

Tweed firemen controlled burning grass to prevent the spread of flames to a nearby house owned by Neil Johnston. Only a few of the household contents owned by Mr. Wright were saved from the fire.

In general, the most hazardous time occurred during the night and early daylight when kitchen activities are high and human concern for safety is lowered, the report found.

Some 20 per cent of the fires were attributed to careless smoking. Electrical flights and lightning ranked second and third, while incendiarism, cause of Belleville's major blaze, was fifth from matches.

The number of fires with loss in brackets for other localities: Trenton 88 ($142,429); Picton 23 ($52,495); Brighton 16 (27,861); Madoc 9 ($21,882); Tweed 8 ($5,776); Stirling 2 ($30); Marmora 3" ($280); Bloomfield 4 ($255); Wellington 5 ($350); Sidney Township 6 ($184,653); Thurlow Township 41 ($36,617); and Ameliasburgh Township 45 ($94,110).

Caller Called

One of the eight callers at the 12th international square dance convention at McMaster University, Hamilton, May 10, 11 and 12 will be Garnet May of RR 5, Belleville. Mr. May is well known in the Quinte district, calling for three Belleville clubs — Quinte Twirlers, Whirlaways and Hits and Mrs. — and for clubs in Peterborough and Kingston. More than 2,000 dancers are expected to attend the Hamilton convention, coming from all over the continent. Six callers are American and two are Canadian. Mr. May's fellow Canadian on the convention staff is Orphie Eason of St. Catharines.

Damage $1,100

TWEED (Special) — A two-car collision south of Marmora Wednesday morning resulted in a total of $1,100 damage. The accident occurred on Highway 14 one-tenth mile south of the village at 8:40 Wednesday morning. A car driven by Lorne Oddie of Belleville struck a parked car driven by Homer Potts, also of Marmora.

Toronto Man Convicted

BRIGHTON — A Toronto man who led Brighton provincial police on a 100-mile-an-hour chase on April 20, rolled his car and then assaulted Constable Thomas Hall, was sentenced to 15 months in reformatory.

Robert Arthur Noble, 22, pleaded guilty to a charge of car theft, assault and dangerous driving in provincial court here Wednesday. Judge George Runciman assessed him prison terms of one year on the theft charge, plus three months consecutive for the assault and a concurrent three month term for dangerous driving.

The chase along the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway west of here during afternoon traffic two weeks ago ended at the Colborne interchange, 10 miles west of Brighton. Police say the car involved was stolen from Oshkigton, north of Brighton, on Highway 30.

Police report Noble had been returned to jail in Cobourg to face other charges.

Grant Will Employ Six

The group is made up of Sandra and Lana LaChapelle, John Mouck, Liz Kerby and Leanne Stapley which will be more participant yet to be named.

Civilian Base Workers Will Fight for Jobs

TRENTON — A nation-wide series of protest meetings has been called by the Union of National Defence Employees, the result of recent moves toward off-base contracting of civilian janitorial and food services jobs.

Members of Trenton local 637 gathered at the Royal Canadian Legion last night to hear arguments presented by national union representatives who claim long-time civilian cleaning and food service employees on military bases across Canada face loss of their jobs.

The government has issued statements both denying and admitting policy that contracts will be let to private companies to provide these services.

Main purpose of last night's meeting, said local union president Noble Young, was for members of local 637 to protest any such government action by writing their members of Parliament. Pre-written samples of letters were provided as were copies of government memos and union newsletters.

Mr. Young read from an Ottawa-prepared address, stating because of a frozen defence budget in 1969, cutbacks in civilian military base personnel were made. "When any of our full-time cleaning people retired, died or left, for any reason, they were not replaced," he read.

UNDE chief negotiator Jack Hermiston later quoted statistics showing the number of staff have been cut by 16 per present numbers of 80 and 97 respectively.

He also pointed to national figures for civilian and military strength as examples of cutbacks. In 1965, there were 115,545 military, 37,478 civilian personnel. Today those figures have been cut to 82,987 and 30,756.

Most of the 5,000 members of the union are retired men and women, most of whom at one time were members of the armed forces. Mr. Hermiston said their average annual salary is $4,100, compared to the $10,000 per person salary bags would pay to off-base companies to provide similar service.

One base worker claimed a contract was let six to seven years ago for a cleaning company to work at the Trenton terminal but "they did such a poor job the contract was never renewed and we had to go in and clean up the mess they left."

According to their reports, union officials claim the base commander, CFB Calgary refused a statement forbidding off-base contracting would be policy from now on. Jack Meghan, UNDE eastern region vice - president said orders to this effect come from high up in the defence ministry and no blame can be attached to base officers.

Protest from the Union of National Defence Employees became too heavy the Calgary statement was withdrawn and no action has yet been taken to contract for servicing firms there.

Union national vice-president Gordon Grant said last night, a meeting in Kingston Tuesday brought promises from Flora MacDonald, MP for Kingston and the Islands, that she would bring the matter up when parliament reconvenes.

The workers are both worried about their jobs being replaced by lower paying contracting firms that supply few if any benefits, and adamant in their demands that retirement and resignations of workers not be grounds for their positions being phased out to be replaced by the military.

And they're prepared to go to extreme measures in their fight, Mr. Young read the nationally-prepared statement which says, in part: "If we seem to be getting nowhere, you will have to do some hard thinking about other moves — perhaps moves other unions have used to exert pressure — refusal to work overtime for example and jobs . . ."

No Contracts At CFB Trenton

TRENTON — Hugh Simmons, chief civilian personnel officer at CFB Trenton, this morning said there is no move here to let contracts out to cleaning firms or food service companies.

He was commenting on a meeting of the, Union of National Defence Employees here last night. Union officials have called a series of nation-wide protests after one military base announced it would be contracting, thereby reducing the number of civilian jobs.

Union intervention called a halt to the policy at CFB Calgary.

"There certainly has been no action taken and to my knowledge it has not been contemplated," Mr. Simmons said.

Injuries Offset Home Advantage

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks were back on home ice for the third game of the Stanley Cup finals tonight but any advantage they might have gained from the shift seemed certain to be offset by injury problems.

"I can't see Stan (Mikita) really playing tonight," Chicago coach Billy Reay said Wednesday. Defencemen Doug Jarrett was "at the doctors" and his availability remained in doubt.

The Black Hawks go into tonight's game trailing Montreal Canadiens 2-0 in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final series, their ranks riddled with injuries that show little promise of improving.

Mikita has a cut middle finger on his right hand, suffered in the first game Sunday at Montreal and he sat out Tuesday's game. Jarrett, a solid performer on the blueline, crashed a rib early in tuesday's game when he fell with Rejean Houle of the Canadiens on his back.

Reay, who already is short-handed on defence with Keith Magnuson nursing a fractured jaw, said he's not counting on either veteran for tonight's contest, which begins at 8.30 p.m. EDT.

"Mikita's finger is very sore," Reay said. "We found out it wasn't broken, but it seems to be affecting the whole hand."

Jarrett, who came back from a mid-season broken leg to start for the Black Hawks in earlier playoff action, said: "I thought I had winded myself when I fell under Houle. But after I got back to the bench, I tried to take a long breath. It was excruciating."

With Jarrett on the bench after his first shift Tuesday, Reay was forced to send rookie John Marks back on defence, pairing with another first-year player, Phil Russell.

"There was nothing wrong with them. That Marks, he gives a hundred per cent when he plays," Reay said of his decision to break up the remainder of Mikita's line.

Marlies Pull Even

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Boudreau scored three goals in leading Toronto Marlies to a 5-0 victory over Peterborough Petes Wednesday night, evening their eight-point Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals at five points apiece. But once again the game was dominated by a number of brawls.

Marshbrother led 3-0 after the first period and added one in each of the remaining stanzas. Captain Bob Stanley scored the first and last goals to round out the scoring.

Two Petes—Bob Neely and Craig Brown—were assessed game misconducts as the game followed the pattern established in the second game of the series.

Referee Bob Nadin issued a total of 184 minutes in penalties including 20 majors, one misconduct and the two game misconducts.

Neely was banished as the third man in on a fight. Teammate Colin Campbell was on the short end of an altercation with Marlboro's Glenn Goldup when the rugged defenceman decided it was time to step in.

Neely also required to feed off some exuberant Toronto spectators among the crowd of 11,171, who reached over the protective glass to grab the Peterborough player's sweater.

Brown, who had been sitting out a misconduct penalty, left the penalty box to peruse one of those tormenting his teammate. For this he received the game misconduct.

Terriers Win 4-2

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Orillia Terriers scored three unanswered third-period goals en route to a 4-2 win over Thunder Bay Twins Wednesday night which evened the best-of-five Eastern Hub Cup final at two games apiece.

The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and Twins led 2-1 after two.

Terriers out-shot the Twins 40-21 and carried the play by about the same margin. The visitors also took four of the five minor penalties handed out. The crowd was 1,700.

Deciding game will be played here tonight.

Five Goals in Third Spark Whalers' Attack

WINNIPEG (CP) — John French sat in the dressing room with a smile on his face and said he was lucky and good to score the winning goal Wednesday night as New England Whalers whipped Winnipeg Jets 7-4.

The win gave the Whalers a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven World Hockey Association final series for the World Trophy. Third game will be played tonight in Winnipeg.

French, a native of Orilla, Ont., scored two goals in the final 20 minutes as the Whalers rallied for five unanswered goals in the third period.

"We were confident we could come back after that second period," French said in the happy Whalers' room. "We figured if we got a quick one we'd have them.

Defence man Jim Dorey started the Whalers' eventual eruption, finishing off a good passing play with Tyrn Williams and Tom Webster at 2:19. Brit Selby tied the score at 4-4 49 seconds later.

He teamed with Williams and Webster and passed the Jets dizzy before Selby slapped the puck into the open net behind a baffled Ernie Wakely.

Then French scored his first goal of the playoffs, deflecting a low slapshot into the top corner.

"I was lucky and good on that goal. I was in the right spot and Ricky (Ley) hit my stick with his shot."

John Cunliff made it 6-4 before French ice tied the scoring with an empty net.

Williams in the first period and Brad Selwood in the second got the other New England goals.

Swords Meet Voyageurs

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Cincinnati Swords took the lead in the second period Wednesday night and kept it for good to defeat Virginia Red Wings 5-1 and win their American Hockey League Calder Cup semi-final playoffs.

Wednesday night's game was the fourth win for Cincinnati in the best-of-seven series. Virginia had won two games of the series.

The Swords will face Nova Scotia Voyageurs in the first game of the finals Saturday night.

Jim Nichols scored the first goal of the game for Cincinnati, but Virginia's Robbie Irwin evened the score at 1-1 before the period was up.

John Gould scored the first of his two goals and what proved to be the winning goal for the Swords in the second period. His other goal and goals by Joe Robertson and Murray Kunis rounded out the scoring for the Swords.

Winnipeg led 3-1 and 4-3 at the end of the first two periods as they matched the Whalers skating and hitting and showed more offensive bustle in their bid to win the series.

But they had trouble putting the puck past Smith who finished with 33 saves.

Wakely was equally sharp, although not as busy, in the first two periods but found himself abandoned by team-mates in the final period when he managed to stop just one of six New England shots.

"That was one of the finest third periods we've played," a happy Kelley said. "Give these guys the credit, they picked themselves up. That is a team that really believes in itself."

The Whalers, who ran all over the Jets to win the first game 7-2 in Boston, had difficulty getting untracked Wednesday as Winnipeg came out skating and hitting.

After Beaudin scored at 33 seconds for the Jets and Wakely came up with a sensational save on Webster, the Whalers began to concentrate on the defensive aspects of the game.

At the same time, the Jets turned to more forechecking and it paid off for two full periods.

But in the third, the Whalers came out to kill and Winnipeg playing coach Bobby Hull said in a subdued Jets' dressing room "they destroyed us on one shift."

Signs 10-year Contract

Plante Leaves Bruins To Join Nordiques

QUEBEC (CP) — Jacques Plante is a member of the Quebec Les Nordiques family and Harry Sinden-is a little upset about the whole thing.

Plante, 44, one of the game's outstanding goaltenders and the first netminder ever to wear a face mask on a regular basis, signed a 10-year contract Wednesday as coach and general manager of Les Nordiques of the World Hockey Association.

Plante closed out his 16-year National Hockey League career with Boston Bruins, who acquired him from Toronto Maple Leafs March 3, a deal that helped the Bruins to a second-place finish in the NHL's East Division.

It was hoped that Plante would be back with the Bruins for the 1973-74 season and Sinden, managing director of the club, had said earlier this week the veteran goalie would return to Boston.

"I talked with Jacques Friday and he told me: "Give me a good deal and I'll stay." We gave it to him and we were counting upon him to play about 30 games for us next year. Then I began hearing reports and called him Tuesday.

"He told me not to worry, our offer still stood. Now I get this news. He'probably had the contract with the other team when he talked to me. If that's true, I never want to speak to it again."

A native of Shawinigan Que., Plante broke into the NHL with Montreal in 1953-53 the late stages of the season and was a member of the General Stanley Cup-winning squad that year.

He was also a big factor in the Montreal machine that captured five straight Stanley Cup from 1956 to 1960.

During his career with the Habs, he won the Vezina Trophy as the NHL's top goalkeeper six times.

Plante fell into disfavor with the Montreal management during the latter portion of his stay and after the 1962-63 season, was traded to New York Rangers, a deal that brought veteran Lorne (Gump) Worsley to Montreal.

After a year and a half with the Rangers, Plante spent the latter half of the 1964-65 season with Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League, before following the AHL playoffs the season, he quit hockey.

Thompson Leads the Field

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Jim Thompson and Quinte Secondary's Gerard Farrell took turns beating each other in the Bay of Quinte track season this fall, but the Centennial runner did the winning in the 4.2 mile Ken Colling Road Race yesterday.

Thompson took the course through the wet, slippery streets of Belleville in 22:16:4 time, 0:13:9 seconds slower than the record time of 22:02:5 set by Prince Edward Collegiate's Paul Cory two years ago.

The grade 13 Centennial student was anxious to run for the Ken Colling Memorial Trophy this year as in the previous three he had been unable to.

"I'd hear about it the day that it was running or something else would come up. I really wanted to win it this year, seeing that it is my last year at Centennial."

Quinte's Gerard Farrell, the defending champion, was disappointed with his second place finish. "I don't know what the difference was between us," said Farrell in reference to Thompson. "he's got just that little bit over me. Jim's really a good runner."

The five - foot - five Quinte cross country team leader took the finish line 0:13:2 seconds after Thompson though Trenton's Bruce Lowry gave him a run for the money with a 0:04:2 lag.

Lowry, the only runner representing Trenton High School of the 68 contestants in the rain sodden race, "figured I'd come in in the top five. Third place is a nice spot to come in," said the satisfied runner.

The other runners on the school's track team were not doing a great deal of training according to Lowry. That accounted for his lone black and gold sweat suit in the race.

Both Thompson and Farrell spend a solid part of their time in the suits running distances. After his warm-up Thompson tries to do at least four miles a day while Farrell polishes off two five mil sets five days running.

Though the coldness of the day was not pleasant for the spectators, it proved beneficial to Thompson.

"In a long distance race, the longs dry out and it is difficult to breathe. But the rain moistens the lungs and allows you to breathe more easily. It also cools the body down."

Thompson, who has won the senior COSSA cross country race in the fall, came out of the starting pack in the top eight and worked his way to a lead of about a 100 yards close to the end of the race.

Brighton's Dave Peckham, who placed second in the Kingston Royal Military College midget road race Sunday, took the fourth position with a time of 22:55:6.

Quinte Secondary's John Sheppard moved up from his 11th place finish last year to the fifth spot. The 16-year-old runner trailed Peckham by 0:00:9 of a second.

37 Bowlers Entered

TRENTON — The first bowler of the year tournament for Trenton is scheduled Sunday at D and A lanes. Thirty-seven five - pinners who have achieved recognition in the regular bowler of the week series over the past four months will be competing.

There will be trophies for the top three men and women in the event and it is planned to make the tournament an annual one. The five-game roll off begins at 1 p.m.

During the bowler of the week series, 11 men recorded triples of over 900 with Bruce Westfall's 948 leading the way. Fifteen women scored triples over 800, led by Betty Hyatt who chalked up an 847.

Tops in the singles department were Bill Mills with a 428 and Carol MacDonald, 416.

Owner-driver John Adams adjusts the harness of Rosies Sister, the 4-year-old mare who will be running in the Quinte Exhibition Raceway ninth race on the opening card Friday. Kevin Day rode the mile during Rosies Sister's three mile evercise trip during Tuesday's inclement weather.

Raceway Entries

"People think she's going to be tough," said Adams, "but she's going against Dominion Lad and Margies Lad. They're tough horses."

Rosies Sister, back from a second place finish at Toronto's Greenwood oval, holds three wins over her 11 starts this season. The four-year-old mare placed twice, showed three times and notched a couple of fifths. "We don't count the rest," said Adams.

TO BELLEVILLE CAR DEALERS

We wish to apologize to the automobile dealers of Belleville — for the drastic price reductions on our cars at this time. But limited space forces us to do one of two things. Wholesale our cars out of town double-quick to the trade — or sell to the public at "Wholesale Prices". So if, wholesale it must be — the new and used car buyers of Belleville should reap the benefits. We can assure you that prices will be raised to normal levels as soon as our extra parking facilities are completed.

Dave's Lighter Bat Potent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds have always been known for the heavy bats of Johnny Bench, Tony Perez and Bobby Tolan, but so far this season the light bat of Dave Concepcion has been most successful.

Concepcion, who had only two home runs last season in nearly 400 at-bats, hit his third of the 1973 National League baseball season Wednesday as the Reds beat New York Mets 6-1.

"It's the bat," said Concepcion. "I switched from a 35 ounce to a 31. Now I can hit inside fastballs and breaking pitches."

In other National League games Wednesday, St. Louis Cardinals beat San Diego Padres 5-4, Montreal Expos defeated Atlanta Braves 3-2, Pittsburgh Pirates nipped San Francisco Giants 2-1, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Chicago Cubs 4-1 and Houston Astros beat Philadelphia Phillies 9-4.

Cepeda Produces

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Anywhere Orlando Cepeda bangs his bat is home.

Long a mundeman in the National League, the "Baby Bull" has found a home, and a new life, in the American League as a designated hitter with Boston Red Sox.

Cepeda continued to flourish in his new surroundings with his sixth home run of the year, a grand slam, that helped the Red Sox beat Texas Rangers 8-4 Wednesday night.

"Every homer feels good," said Cepeda about his dramatic shot that capped a five-run third inning. "But home runs don't mean anything unless you win.

"Tonight we won and I'm thankful for the other players."

Cepeda, 35, was supposed to be washed up because of bad knees. He was released by Oakland midway after last year, but the Red Sox signed him after the designated hitter rule was put into effect during the winter.

The grand slam Wednesday was the ninth of his career, which included stints with San Francisco Giants, Atlanta Braves and St. Louis Cardinals in the National League.

In other American League games Wednesday Kansas City Royals beat New York Yankees 4-3, California Angels defeated Detroit Tigers 5-3, Oakland beat Milwaukee Brewers 7-3 in 10 innings, Cleveland Indians turned back Minnesota Twins 8-4 in 10 innings and the Chicago White Sox blanked Baltimore Orioles 4-0.

Favored Secretariat Appears Prepared

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Favored Secretariat seems better prepared for the Kentucky Derby than Riva Ridge did before he won last year, says the man who rides both Meadow Stable colts.

"This horse worked better Tuesday morning than Riva did for the Derby last year," jockey Ron Turcotte said after working Secretariat five-eighths of a mile on a sloppy track in 58 3-5 seconds.

The jockey from Grand Falls, N.B., also worked Angle Light five-eighths in :59 flat. Angle Light and Secretariat are trained by former Montreal jockey Lucien Laurin, but Angle Light is owned by Edwin Whitaker of Toronto.

Others expected to be entered today for Saturday's 99th running of the $125,000-added, 1¼-mile Derby included Sham, Gold Bag, Restless Jet, Impecunious, Warbucks, My Gallant, Sir Ecky Greene, Navajo Forego, Royal and Regal, Our Native and Twice a Prince.

Gordon And Blair Signed

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League Wednesday extended general manager Wren Blair's contract for two additional seasons and signed coach Jack Gordon to a new two-year contract.

Financial terms of the agreements were not announced.

Walter Bush Jr., North Stars president, announced the extension of Blair's contract through the 1975-76 season. Blair then reported to the North Star executive board of directors that Gordon had signed for the 1973-74 and 1974-75 seasons.

"Our goal is to continue this program of building with our sights eventually set on winning the West Division championship and bringing the Stanley Cup to Minnesota," said Bush. "I think the actions taken today bring us closer to those objectives."

New Owners And Building For Nationals

TORONTO (C) — "Toronto somethings" formerly known as Ottawa Nationals, still haven't an arena to play in but the World Hockey Association club's new owners said Wednesday they'll soon have a new building of their own.

John F. Basseti, head of a group of 21 Toronto sportsmen and businessmen which calls itself Can Sports Inc., officially announced purchase of the hockey club and tentative plans for building a new arena which will compete with Maple Leaf Gardens in the field of hockey and other entertainment.

"We're not at war with Maple Leaf Gardens—there is no feud between Bill Ballard and myself," Bassett told a news conference.

"But when we get our new arena built, we'll be interested in other promotions besides hockey. We'll try to bring in as many good shows as we can."

Bassett said Ballard, vice-president of the 40-year-old Maple Leaf Gardens, had offered the Gardens as a home base for the WHA team "but I don't visualize that."

U.S. Team Tops U.S.S.R.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Minnesota's Ron Behagen hit 19 points in the first half and Providence's Ernie DiGregorio got hot in the second to lead the United States to an 83-67 basketball victory over the Soviet Union Wednesday night.

Behagen didn't score in the second half, but DiGregorio hit 16 of his total 18 points in that span.

The United States now leads the six-game series, two to one.

DETROIT (AP) — Guard Frank Gallagher and reserve quarterback Bill Coppleman of Detroit Lions became free agents Tuesday under National Football League rules by playing out their options. # Joe's 45.5 Average Impresses

DETROIT (AP) — A coffin-corner kick is a rare in the National Football League as a 33-year-old rookie, but Detroit Lions have both right now.

The "rookie" is Joe Zuger, a Lions draft choice in 1963 who decided to skip the Detroit club and head north to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Canadian Football League. He spent 10 years there, first as a linebacker and then as a quarter-back-punter.

A coffin-corner kick is almost a lost art in the NFL, one Zuger says he'd like to revive since putting a punt out of bounds on the opposition's two-yard line gives them the ball on the two. If the punt goes into the end zone, however, the receivers take it at the 20.

Zuger's quarterbacking was good enough to take the Tiger-Cats to five Grey Cup championship games and they won three of them.

And as punter, which is the talent Lion coach Don McCafferty is interested in, he averaged 45.5 yards and led the league four seasons.

Zuger will be one of 24 players reporting to McCafferty tonight for a two-day orientation.

The Arizona State graduate said he jumped to Canada in 1963 because, "Yale Lary ran with the Lions doing the punting, Milt Plum was quarterback at the time . . . I just thought I had a better chance in Canada to play right away."

He played until a shoulder separation in the 1971 season ended his quarterback career.

Zuger had planned to come to the Lions last season but ran into a new NFL rule which prohibits players joining the NFL if they have played with or even participated in a CFL team's training camp during the same season. Zuger had attended the Ticats camp last summer and therefore had to wait a year before moving here.

"It's something I always wanted to do," he said.

"I knew I was still Lion property as far as the NFL was concerned, so I got in touch," with the Lions.

Zuger says his shoulder is in good shape again and says he sees no problem in adapting his kicking to the NFL style.

"Height is more important there," he said, since a punter can pick up a point by putting it through the end zone.

But since altitude is not that important in the NFL, he'd like to resurrect the coffin-corner kick.

"It can be a great secret weapon."

Openers on May 14

Don't look now but the Belleville Industrial Softball League openers for 1973 are just around the corner. According to league treasurer Larry Graber, all 13 teams are anxious to get things underway and some of them will do just that on Monday, May 14.

The league has already scheduled an exhibition doubleheader for Alemite Park Friday night. In the early game, Brooks Bond meets AOO at 6:30 and following up are Quinte Mall Lenders and the CNR squad.

This year, the league has three new awards up for the winning. The most valuable player, the most valuable pitcher and the most sportsmanlike player will be honored.

Team coaches will select an all-star team which will take part in a game for charity on a date yet to be announced.

The 13 league teams have been divided into East and West sections. In the East are AOO, Brooks Bond, CNR, The Intelligencer, Quinte Mall Lenders, Post Office and Stewart-Warner. West: Canadian Tire, Constellation, Indesco, Meag Johnson, PUC and UIC.

Rock pickers are needed Monday, May 7 at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School advises Graber. The work bee is set to start at 6 p.m.

Two Tournaments

Bay of Quinte five-pin bowling championships will be decided Friday in two events at the Belleville Bowl-O-Drama. Competition in the open ladies' singles event and the special men's singles for bowlers with an average under 215 will get underway at 7 p.m.

Belleville's Bea Hunt who has won the ladies' open in past four years is expected back to defend her title. Except for 1970 when she spilled the pins for a sparkling 10 game total of 2,668, Bea has been quite consistent. In 1969 she tbh for 2,384; 1971, 2,394 and 1972, 2388. And that's good bowling in anyone's league.

Before Bea began to monopolize the event, Belleville's Jean Calnan took the title in 1968 and prior to that, Trenton bowlers were in command as Mary Fox scored wins for three consecutive years from 1964 to 1966. Trenton's Betty Hyatt was the winner in 1967.

Belleville bowlers have won the under 215 average championships for men in all but one year since its inception in 1961. Brian Shearer of Campbellford broke the string in 1968 with a pinfall of 2,402.

Since Shearer's victory, the title has gone to Pat McKenzie (2,466 in 1969), Don Marchinson (2,185 in 1970), Gary Cameron (2,027 in 1971) and Bob Richardson (2,400 in 1972). Richardson, according to a Bowl-O-Drome spokesman, will be back trying for a repeat win this year.

Entries are still being accepted for both events at the Bowl-O-Drome.

Smiths Falls Coaches Are Suspended

OTTAWA (C) — The coach and acting coach of Smiths Falls Bears of the Central Junior Hockey League have been suspended for their actions in a league game against Brockville Braves in February.

Coach Hal Rockburn was suspended for three years, while acting coach Ken Vallquette received a one-year suspension. The penalties were announced at a meeting of the Ottawa District Hockey Association here Tuesday.

The two teams scored on their own sets in what was seen as an apparent effort to lose the game and thus finish in fourth place in the standings.

The third-place finisher would have had to play Pembroke Lumber Kings in the first playoff series. The Kings had been a powerhouse all season and held the top standings through the schedule.

Smiths Falls and Brockville were suspended for the playoffs, in which Pembroke defeated Ottawa Rangers.

A decision on whether to take action against members of the Brockville coaching staff was postponed until June 2. No reason was given for the postponement.

Watergate Hearing on Live TV

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Senate committee investigating the Watergate bugging affair still plans to start hearings May 15 and live TV coverage still will be allowed, says a spokesman for Senator Sam J. Ervin (Dem. N.C.), head of the committee.

Will the networks cover it live? You'd think so, now that President Nixon has accepted responsibility for the affair, fired one of his top aides and announced the resignation of two more and his attorney-general.

But no decision has been made yet on live coverage of the Watergate hearings, say spokesmen for the CBS, NBC and ABC television networks.

They say it partly depends now on who will be called to testify.

An Ervin aide says the witness list may not be ready until "the last minute."

If there is indecision at NBC, CBS and ABC about live coverage of the hearings, there was none in the networks' correspondent commentary and analyses immediately following Nixon's Watergate speech. Virtually all of it was harsh.

The strongest words came at CBS, where Daniel Schorr and White House correspondent Dan Rather—both of whom have been sharply criticized by administration officials—hammered away at what they felt were major holes and unanswered questions in Nixon's speech.

Victor Gold, who resigned in January as Vice-President Agnew's press spokesman, checked in on the other side of the commentary fence during an appearance on NBC's Today show.

He praised Nixon's speech as "very good" and, in discussing his dead tactically."

Nixon's brief praise of a "vigorous free press" in the Watergate case, said:

"I believe the media issue, as an issue for this administration,

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, May 4

Aries (March 21-April 19): Set aside time for review of recent past, particularly where you carry responsibility for younger people.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In clearing off the work-week's loose ends keep a tight rein on impulse spending. You will find a better use for cash shortly.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): When you find everybody else intent on working for themselves, take the hint, see if you can do likewise.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Things you do now range from interesting to provocative. Make the most of your upswing, stir people constructively.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It is all too easy to take a critical attitude. Probably there will be more than one invitation to enter financial deals.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Every extra push toward career, skill improvement or working conditions brings results.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Collect everything coming to you, round up belongings and tools in preparation for opportunity.

Chemical Diabetes Is Latent Variety

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is chemical diabetes? I've been tested several times and blood tests have been normal. I do not use sweets and am 70 years old. —C.B.

There are different classifications of diabetes. Overt diabetes means there is expectation of presence of the disease. Chemical diabetes is called latent diabetes because means that a fasting blood sugar is normal, but a sugar tolerance test is not.

That is, a fasting blood sugar would be a test made a substantial time after you have last eaten. A sugar tolerance test is the test made, an hour apart, with the patient being given a measured amount of sugar.

Thus with the fasting test, you can conclude that the patient manages to use up enough sugar, given time. The sugar tolerance test will show whether he uses it up rapidly enough.

With a chemical or latent diabetes, the salient symptoms of diabetes do not appear—excessive thirst, frequent urination, loss of weight. However, I would suspect that your doctor at some time or other detected some sugar in your urine, making him rightly suspicious.

One must keep in mind that at your age blood sugar values may be a bit higher than what is considered normal for less younger ones. A chemical diabetes can remain the same, or can get worse if you don't follow a suitable diet, or can improve if you cut out sweets and reduce weight.

Which will happen in your case remains to be seen. I would recommend a periodic blood sugar test, taken two hours after a meal, to keep track of the situation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that "hot dog" sandwiches are constantly for-lndigestion? My husband has had a bad time for years, and I've noticed that now I'm buying a "family size" hot dog once in every two or three weeks.

It is not. from what he eats, that seems to be from smoking and drinking. When he quit smoking for several months four years ago he didn't require any. But when we've been to a party where he's been drinking, he takes more.

It is the alkali in the fizzy powders that is the principal irritant to the stomach. The bromide portion acts as a sedative. Yes, habitual use of bromides can be harmful, causing rheumatism, with such symptoms as sleepiness, lethargy, weakness, skin disorders. Bromides should be used within limits. It's not wise to let the habit become a fixed one.

Note to Mrs. L.B.: No, you can't become "addicted" to streptomycin used to treat your tuberculosis.

Opening lead—ten of hearts.

It is possible to thoroughly understand and execute squeezes, coups and other highly advanced plays, and yet be so accident-prone that one fails on the simplest plays there are in bridge.

The real bread-and-butter hands are those where nothing more is required of a player than ordinary care and skill in solving ordinary problems. If you keep your eye on the ball in these hands and avoid one or less errors, you will do well in the end.

Take this deal where declarer failed in a slam he should have made. He won the heart lead with the queen and returned a low spade, winning his dummy ace with the king.

He then returned to his hand with a club to the ace and played another spade. This time West took the ace but, after he returned a club to the queen, South had to go down one. South's spades were all good, but he had no entry to his hand to cash them. Dummy eventually had to lose a club trick to the jack.

Actually, South lost the hand at trick one. His low anxiety to start the spades, he not the opening lead in his hand instead of in dummy. This seemingly innocuous play proved very expensive.

A moment of thought would have told South to win the heart in dummy. He could then play a club to the ace for his first spade lead to dummy.

Assuming that West ducked, South could next play a club to the queen for another spade lead to dummy. Whether West took the ace then or later would see-nather, since the spades would be established in either case. Declarer would still have the queen of hearts as an entry to his hand.

Tomorrow: The overcall.

A Good Sign

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The annual provincial government sampling of winter fish catches in the Bay of Quinte area this year has showed a high number of spakle, a cross between a speckled and lake trout, a phenomenon for the ministry of natural resources, which stocked Lake Ontario with 49,000 spake yearlings in 1972, said the 2,000 spake recovered so far "is an excellent gain in so brief a period."

Cheap Highway

TORONTO (CP) — The St. Lawrence seaway is the quietest, cleanest and cheapest highway in Canada and the total cost of the 2,000-mile-long route was no greater than the cost of building 20 miles of expressway, says an engineering report by Ken Gilbert of the Toronto Harbor Commission. The seaway should be used to its full potential, "before we go off building roads and railways," he writes in the report.

Job Prospects Bright For Students This Year

By VIC PARSONS
CP Staff Writer

Summer should have a generally favorable smile for students seeking seasonal work, especially those with special skills.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates that prospects are bright from the Atlantic to the Pacific, particularly as the federal government expands spending on summer jobs for students and the swifter economic pace generates demand.

As in previous years, however, it pays to work in certain fields.

Commerce and engineering students and those learning special skills such as geology and forestry will find their opportunities the brightest.

Arts students, the unskilled and females seem to face the grimmest struggle for jobs, say manpower and university personnel.

Biggest single boost for the job market comes from the federal government's $83.4 million program announced Jan. 15 by Labor Secretary Hugh Faulkner.

The plan is designed to provide work for 67,200 students in various community services and training programs, including 7,500 summer military trainees. Another 10,000 students are expected to take part in travel and language training programs.

Included is the $40 million Opportunities for Youth (OFY) plan, which will provide 34,000 of the jobs. The OFY spending is up from $34 million in 1972.

Another 15,000 students will be hired by the government to work in career-oriented positions leading to permanent jobs, and in clerical and manual work.

In most parts of Canada, manpower and university placement spokesmen said the job situation is "good."

In British Columbia, about 240,000 students will be seeking work.

The job placement centre at the University of British Columbia said it expects the continuance of a trend that began in 1971 toward more job openings at higher pay.

The centre agrees that arts students and the unskilled are less likely to find jobs. girls were also less likely to find work and, when they get jobs, were likely to receive lower pay.

In Alberta, a manpower spokesman said most employers are looking for more students than in the last two years, particularly hotels and the oil industry.

General industry will pay about $2.50 an hour while service industries will generally pay the Alberta hourly minimum of $1.75.

Saskatchewan will have job opportunities equal to those of last year when 30 per cent of applicants found employment, a manpower spokesman in Regina said.

Saskatoon manpower officials were also optimistic—especially for those who have a trade or who are engineering students.

Manpower spokesmen in Manitoba said job prospects are better than 1972 in that province, although definite trends are still hard to see.

Waitresses, warehousemen, truck drivers and laborers are in demand and so far there has not been much call for engineers or commerce students. However, many opportunities are just beginning to open up.

In Toronto, both manpower centres and the University of Toronto placement service predicted more jobs will be available.

The university listed more than 1,500 jobs recently ranging from furnace cleaners to library assistants. But many employers wait until June before calling manpower centres for students for low-paying and manual jobs.

Wages range from the provincial minimum wage of $1.80 an hour for those over 18 to various union rates.

Quebec said it will create 20,000 student jobs at a cost of $6.5 million.

But the manpower department in Montreal estimated that 105,000 students will be hunting jobs. About 40,000 will be high school students who get low-priority treatment.

The Quebec plans will set aside $2.5 million to encourage private industry and municipalities to hire students. This program is expected to give work to 8,000.

New Brunswick students appear to have good chances with more companies than ever before moving on-campus to seek employees.

But a manpower official in Fredericton said in April it will be another month before an accurate count can be made of job prospects.

In Nova Scotia, there is a shortage of engineering students. Typists, science and commerce students are in demand. The exploration off the East Coast has resulted in calls for geology students.

More provincial government programs dealing with economic, social and environmental problems are expected to provide work for third and fourth year university students.

But the high unemployment figures for the Atlantic region are also reflected in the search for student jobs. There are never enough in the region, a manpower official said.

In Newfoundland, government operations at the federal, provincial and municipal levels are major sources of jobs for the 7,000 students of Memorial University.

The 100th anniversary of Prince Edward Island's entry into Confederation will increase the number of tourist and service industry jobs in that province, although the tourist season does not begin until mid-June.

Huron's Sauble Beach Is Lauderdale of North

SAUBLE BEACH, Ont. (CP) — Carrying tents and sleeping bags, or renting cottages, students will arrive at Sauble Beach this coming Victoria Day weekend May 19-21 as they have in years past.

The small resort town, on Lake Huron 18 miles west of Owen Sound, attracted an estimated 6,000 students last year, turning it into a somewhat improbable Fort Lauderdale of the north.

Seven miles of wide sandy beach probably started the influx and tradition has done the rest.

University students from Kingston, Toronto, Guelph and Waterloo and area high school students all turn up to spend the last holiday before summer begins.

Some residents and cottage owners resent this early invasion, before the tourist season is ripe. They don't like bellowing motorcycles, students sleeping and drinking beer on the beach.

Others warmly defend the students.

"They're not hurting anyone. . . . There's always someone trying to blackball the beach . . . always someone yakking and giving the beach bad publicity," said a cottage renter and Sauble Beach native. "And they don't sleep on the beach in May. It's too cold."

Another cottager and Toronto resident said they do sack out beneath the stars. For warmth, some students burn fences.

One cottager noted that the students dine on the beach.

"They left a terrible mess last year. If they're really supposed to be ecology- and pollution-conscious, there's no evidence of it.

This apparently means some want all the comforts of home—someone else's home when the beach house is closed.

Twice last year one Toronto resident's cottage was entered. On Victoria Day a door was broken and students used the bathroom.

The second time was during the summer when some vacationers helped themselves to food and had a portable feast: two silver bowls were also hit for food and the Toronto resident's dishes were found there.

One resident complained about "an element of the drug situation."

Corp. Ron Love, of the Guelph detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police who has been in charge of Sauble Beach in past vacation periods, said there is some drug use, mostly marijuana and hashish. A few young people who took an overdose of LSD or MDA were treated at hospital in nearby Southampton.

He said an invasion by 6,000 students is a conservative estimate for last Victoria Day weekend's celebrants. When the number gets too high or "if police are required" the 12-man force on duty is increased to 30 or so from area detachments.

He said break-ins are rare. There is considerable beer drinking on the beach and students caught with open beer bottles spend part of their holiday in Southampton for a court hearing.

Motorcycles are allowed in the southern part of the beach, owned by the Chippewa Indians as part of their reserve. The northern end is owned by Amabel Township and the vehicles are forbidden there—as is sleeping on the beach.

Lakes Improved

TORONTO (CP) — The Great Lakes aren't dying, they are on the upswing, says veteran Canadian Coast Guard officer Capt. Archie Hodge. Capt. Hodge who has been in command of the Coast Guard's only research ship, Porte Dauphine, during Great Lakes studies during the last 15 years, said: "The improvement has been dramatic over the last two years because of the newly-installed sewage treatment plants at a number of lake community waters."

Broadcast Pirates Take TV to North

ROSS RIVER, Y.T. (CP) — Contrary to rules and regulations, a band of broadcast pirates in this isolated mountain mining community has kidnapped a television signal from the CBC just in time for the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs.

At the beginning of April, the 300 residents of Ross River began getting live television broadcasts for the first time by erecting a "do-it-yourself" TV relay station to snare a signal from Faro, Y.T. 40 miles away.

And they did it without the approval or prior knowledge of the federal and territorial governments, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission or the CBC. Residents say they're willing to pay the price, which could include possible fines or jail sentences, but they are determined nobody is going to tear down what has come to be known as Radio Free Ross River.

Ross River is about 150 miles north of Whitehorse, the territorial capital, in the heart of the Yukon mining country, and prior to the private TV relay station had no radio or television service.

Its residents have been battling bureaucrats and red tape for years in an effort to get television into their community, but with a marked lack of success. The final straw was when the federal government's multi-million-dollar Anik satellite went into orbit at the New Year, bringing northern communities with more than 500 residents live television for the first time.

Ross River missed the boat because it was 200 people short of the criteria set for construction of legal TV relay facilities, and the CBC wasn't allowed to build a relay station here.

The problem was especially vexing to millionaire mining prospector Al Kulan of Ross River—once the proud owner of the only Rolls-Royce limousine in the Yukon. He's a hockey fan and has had a cole TV set sitting in his living room collecting dust for several years in anticipation of the advent of TV service.

When he learned that Ross River wouldn't be joining the Anik network, he took the matter up with some engineering and electronics experts in Whitehorse.

Although Faro, which has a legal Anik relay station, is only 40 miles away, Ross River is nestled in the Pelly Mountains, which effectively block reception of the Faro signal.

The engineers confirmed it would be possible to pick up the Faro signal by building a mountain-top relay station lined up with the Faro station on one side, Ross River on the other.

They established a company known as, Total North Communications, and bankrolled by Mr. Kulan, started shopping for a suitable peak-mountain-hopping by helicopter.

Armed with a portable TV and a 12-volt battery, they tested the signal from Faro from a number of mountaintops and finally settled on Grey Creek Hill. Mr. Kulan gave the Total North crew the go-ahead to build the giant relay station and work was completed in early April.

Total cost: $6,200. Mr. Kulan has since turned the Yukon-wide operation over to the Ross River Community Club, which plans to repay him by instalment and assume ownership. All club members have signed a statement accepting full legal and financial responsibility for the station.

Ken Shortt, spokesman for the club, said community residents also voluntarily built the access road to the mountain-top—by temporarily expropriating a territorial government bulldozer which happened to be sitting idle in town at the time. The station operates via power with a propane gas generator.

"Everyone in the community signed the statement, except two people who were out in the bush—they were angry because they missed signing it," said Mr. Shortt. "If someone tries to shut it down, there's going to be hell to pay.

"All of the people are going to be behind trees with bows and arrows just waiting for someone to try it."

At last count, Ross River boasted 20 television sets with more coming in almost daily. Mr. Kulan said he has been enjoying the Stanley Cup playoffs in color, and was looking forward to the baseball season.

And Total North Communications thinks it has hit upon a method of providing other small northern communities with television. The company said it has been approached by five other villages that want to obtain the same sort of setup as Ross River.

Total North approached Canadian National Telecommunications to see if the utility would allow the firm to use its microwave relay sites in the Yukon.

The idea would be to build TV relay stations alongside the CNT microwave towers that would utilize the line-of-sight path used for microwave transmissions. CNT officials have not voiced any objections to the proposal.

The big hurdle would be in obtaining CRTC permission.

The four Yukon communities interested in TV service on this basis are Carmacks, Haines Junction, Burwash Landing and Teslin; in addition, the community of Canting in the Northwest Territories 125 miles northeast of Watson Lake, Y.T., wants to join in.

Total North spokesman Austin Dunne estimated it will take the CRTC about five months to get around reviewing the Ross River case.

Meantime the bleary-eyed residents of Ross River are happily soaking up every episode of Fare from Secret Storm to Bugs Bunny. Thanks to an irate millionaire, a territorial bulldozer, and a relay station assembled from scrap metal, plywood and a propane gas generator.

Up In Arms

LONDON (CP) — If the number of armed robberies continues to increase in Britain at the current rate, there will be nine muggings a day by 1980, claims Tory MP Norman Fowler in a Conservative party pamphlet. The rise in the use of firearms is "potentially the most serious criminal development of this decade," says Fowler.

Marmora Personals

On their return home last Friday from a three week visit to Northern Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. Willy Hull report that they were pleasantly surprised to find that damage to buildings was not as great as they had anticipated.

"People are going about their business as usual and the whole country seems to be prospering, although food prices are high", Mrs. Hull said. "Small towns and rural areas have generally escaped bombings by the IRA so there isn't the same feeling of tension as there is in the cities of Belfast and Londonderry.

As a result of many cars being booby - trapped, motorists are required to leave their cars at designated parks away from residential and business areas and walk to their destinations.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull travelled by way of Toronto and New York to Prestwick, Scotland. by a jetliner, then transferred to a smaller plane for the trip to Ireland, landing at an airport near Belfast, then by car to Coleraine, between Belfast and Londonderry.

The trip was taken mainly so Mr. Hull could visit his 87 year old mother in a nursing home. Mrs. Hull's sister Elizabeth flew from England so that the family of six girls and three boys and their mother would be together.

This was Mrs. Hull's fifth visit back to Ireland and Mr. Hull's third since they came to Canada in 1952 with their only son Desmond.

Special services on Good Friday and Easter Day in Marmora churches were well attended.

At St. Andrew's United Church Easter began with a sunrise service at 7 o'clock, followed by a pancake breakfast sponsored by the Young Teen group of the church. At the 11 o'clock service eleven young people were confirmed in an impressive service which had been arranged by the young people themselves. They were: Ian Airhart, Peter Villneff, Randy Villneff, Lisa Maynes, Diane Ellis, Cheryl Smith, Deseree and Evelyn Kotulski, Anita Wisel, Brent Sanderson and Tim Ellis.

Special devotional services were held at Sacred Heart Church on Thursday evening, and Friday afternoon, with the Easter vigil on Saturday morning which included the blessing of the baptismal water. At the 9.30 mass on Easter Day seven children made their first Holy Communion.

At St. Paul's Anglican Church on Friday evening a special film "The World of Illusion" was presented to a large audience. Holy Communion services were held at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. on Easter Day.

Another Truce Halts Fighting In Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — A third ceasefire at dawn today ended two days of savage fighting between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas that threatened this small Mediterranean nation with full-scale war.

Only a few random shots were heard in the streets of Lebanon's shell-torn capital. Calm was also reported in Sidon, 34 miles south of Beirut, after an early-morning show of strength by guerrilla bands shooting into the air and burning tires.

Reports from southeast Lebanon said 3,000 troops of the Palestine Liberation Army that crossed the border from Syria with tanks and artillery Thursday had withdrawn to positions on the border after occupying three villages and besieging two towns along an eight-mile front.

The Palestinians pulled back after President Suleiman Franjieh of Lebanon telephoned President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, a partner of Syria in the Federation of Arab Republics.

In Beirut, the machine-guns were silent. Army roadblocks were still in position throughout the city, but the tanks that had pounded guerrilla machine-gun nests in apartment buildings had withdrawn.

A round-the-clock curfew was still in force, but authorities said it would be lifted later in the day if the ceasefire was maintained.

Premier Amin Hafez announced that he is staking his political future on the ceasefire and will ask Franjieh to call a national conference to work out a formula for Lebanese-guerrilla "coexistence."

Leslie Frost Dies, Age 77

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Leslie Miscampbell Frost, former Progressive Conservative premier of Ontario, died today. He was 77 and held the premiership longer than any other.

The former premier, who retired from office 12 years ago, was reported in "extremely serious condition 10 days ago and relatives and friends were prepared for his death.

"Old Man Ontario," as Mr. Frost once described himself, first was elected to the legislature in 1927 as a Conservative. He served as treasurer and mines minister before becoming premier in 1949.

Mr. Frost, member for Victoria-Haliburton riding, decided to retire as premier in 1961 at the age of 65 and was succeeded by John Robarts.

Following his 1961 retirement, Mr. Frost made only rare public appearances although until recently he occasionally visited his law office, established here in 1921.

His wife, the former Gertrude Carew, whom he married in 1925, died in 1970. They had no children.

In July, 1969, Mr. Frost suffered a broken leg and his wife minor injuries when their chauffeur-driven car was in collision with another auto.

A few days prior to the accident Mr. Frost visited Canadian Forces Base, Borden, Ont.

Fifty-three years earlier he had arrived at the camp as a captain with the 157th Battalion, Simcoe Foresters, the first troops stationed there.

After he retired, the former premier spent much of his time in historical research. In 1967, his book, Fighting Men, was published by Clarke Irwin. It was a reminiscence of the effect of the First World War on his hometown of Orillia.

Mr. Frost was working on a history of the Indian trails and Portages of the Kawartha Lakes area.

His papers and documents go to Trent University, Peterborough, which he served as first chancellor.

In June, 1969, an estimated 6,000 persons gathered at the university to honor Mr. Frost and his wife for his service to the province.

Accepting a purse of $14,000 which he turned over to the university for historical research, Mr. Frost quoted Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister:

"A Canadian I was born and a Canadian I will die."

Giving voice to his innate modesty, he said his public service was "really the sum total of the work of millions of thousands" in the many municipalities of Ontario.

When in 1940, at the age of 70 he was appointed honorary lieutenant-colonel of the Queen's York Rangers, he recalled his eight months in the front lines during the First World War as "undistinguished," although he was wounded.

"I was just a junior lieutenant," he said.

During his only Toronto appearance in the 1961 federal election campaign, Mr. Frost said he favored a strong federal government and always had.

Senators Must Decide Upon Oil Policy Today

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senators reserved today for putting finishing touches on the bill they hope will'solve a simple 1et angle that is immense in its implications.

Involved is one of the most critical domestic situations in the United States—growing energy shortages and impending gasoline shortages.

Basically, they have two choices:

—To call for legislation enabling construction of the trans-Alaska line to go ahead. This $1 billion route would send the oil by 800-mile pipeline southwest across Alaska to the ice-free port of Valdez and south by supertanker.

—To call for special study of alternatives—principally an overland pipeline route south through Edmonton to the U.S. Midwest.

The Alaskan route has the firm support of President Nixon and the administration and of powerful West Coast interests. The main champions of the Canadian route are midwestern senators who fear their home areas will see little of the oil if it reaches West Coast ports first.

Millions of dollars have been spent on studies of the Alaska route, while comparatively little has been done on the all-land line. More millions have been spent in Japan for pipe which lies rusting on the Alaska tundra.

And at least—nine supertankers have been built to carry the ways, and are being used in intercontinental trade while waiting to do the job for which they were designed.

Senate hearings, led by Gov. William Egan, have explained that their state is being battered economically by the delay—that promised royalty payments to state may have to be deferred.

The governor has complained bitterly about Alaska being caught in the middle as western and midwestern interests wrangle.

Natural gas executives, interested in building a gas line down Canada's Mackenzie Valley to the Chicago area, nevertheless have backed the Alaska route as the fastest way to get the oil out.

They argue that "gas follows oil" and that delay is costing them $1 million a day.

The delay results from the 50-year-old General Leasing Act which states in part that pipeline and transmission rights-of-way must be limited to 25 feet on each side of the pipe. The Alaska pipe is 48 inches in diameter—and 34 feet, is not wide enough to build and maintain the line.

So there are two questions facing the senators—which line and how to go about getting it built in the shortest possible time.

There is little doubt the senators will go for the Alaska line. The question remaining, then: is how to break the Mineral Leasing Act's 50-year stranglehold.

Rescue Bring Fortune

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A young bush pilot who rescued four wealthy American businessmen last summer after a canoeing accident will receive a $200,000 gift when he reaches 35.

Randy Dsoust, 19, said early today he signed a series of papers in Edmonton about a month ago.

Last July Randy was flying a single-engined aircraft to pick up a load of fish when he spotted three men on Simpson Island in the Talston River about 200 miles east of Hay River.

They had made it to shore after their aircraft struck a sandbar in the river. A fourth man stayed with the canoe and was grounded on a smaller island about eight miles away.

The insect-bitten men had been stranded without food for about 10 days.

He landed his float-equipped craft on the river and circled close to shore so the three men could board. They searched only a short while before finding the other man.

"They were sure glad to see him, they thought he was dead."

The rescue was "just luck, for them and for me."

Randy said in an interview that Fred McCauley "of Wisconsin" was one of those rescued. He did not give the names of the others.

"They're all big businessmen. They said they'd do something for me when we were flying back, but you don't believe it until it happens."

Satan Served in Florida

Canadian Girl Accused Of Devil's Coven Murder

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 17-year-old change boy in a pinball arcade was strapped to a table and tortured for a day before being murdered by a group of young Satan worshippers as a sacrifice, police say.

Police charged six young beach transients, including a Canadian girl, who are allegedly members of a Devil's coven with first degree murder Wednesday in the death of Ross Michael Cochran of Fresno, Calif.

The youth was a major state witness in a suit to close a nearby private school as a "place of lewdness."

They must have hated this kid like hell because they really tortured him," Police Chief Robert Palmer said.

Palmer said Cochran had been flogged with chains and stabbed with cut glass while tied to a black wooden table in the basement "altar room" of a ramshackle brick rooming house called "Beach Haven" by the students.

His mangled body, trussed with ropes, was found lying in a remote wooded area 15 miles southwest of here. Police said they couldn't determine whether he was killed during the alleged sacrifice or died where his body was found.

The six charged with murder are Cindy Black, 17, of Toronto; Kenneth M. Francis, 17, who gave his address as Pope Air Force Base, N.C.; Charles M. Paige, 17, and John Colbert, 18, who gave the rooming house as their only address; Deborah Ann Shook, 22, of Washington, N.J., and Howard Wachus, 19, of Detroit.

Cochran was among 78 students at the Green Valley School for troubled children in nearby Orange City who were made wards of the state when the institution was raided last February.

Authorities said Cochran had given depositions in the state's suit against the school, where students were allegedly subjected to cruel and unusual punishment and took part in open sexual conduct.

Police said Cochran apparently was lured to the rooming house last Friday morning, overpowered, tied up in a second floor room and beaten for nearly five hours.

"They went to the altar room about 3 p.m. and put him on the table as a sacrifice," Palmer said. "They tortured him some more. He pleaded for his life."

Wage Rate Increases To Be Slow

OTTAWA (CP) — Minimum wage rates hold the spotlight at a conference of labor ministers Thursday as John Munro committed the federal government to gradual rather than rapid wage rises in minimum wages.

Mr. Munro said at the end of the two-day closed meeting that it was "reasonable and logical" that minimum wage rates should be increased in stages.

Mr. Munro, told reporters after the meeting that the federal government will increase the minimum wage to $2.50 from the present $1.90 in stages, but no time period had been set.

The ministry wishes to bring better balance to government and industrial research and development, then to do the same thing on Canadian campuses, he said.

After that, the ministry could turn to national policies for oceans, the Arctic and space.

Co-operation Halts Fighting In Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — A third ceasefire at dawn today ended two days of savage fighting between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas that threatened this small Mediterranean nation with full-scale war.

Only a few random shots were heard in the streets of Lebanon's shell-torn capital. Calm was also reported in Sidon, 34 miles south of Beirut, after an early-morning show of strength by guerrilla bands shooting into the air and burning tires.

Reports from southeast Lebanon said 3,000 troops of the Palestine Liberation Army that crossed the border from Syria with tanks and artillery Thursday had withdrawn to positions on the border after occupying three villages and besieging two towns along an eight-mile front.

The Palestinians pulled back after President Suleiman Franjieh of Lebanon telephoned President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, a partner of Syria in the Federation of Arab Republics.

In Beirut, the machine-guns were silent. Army roadblocks were still in position throughout the city, but the tanks that had pounded guerrilla machine-gun nests in apartment buildings had withdrawn.

A round-the-clock curfew was still in force, but authorities said it would be lifted later in the day if the ceasefire was maintained.

Premier Amin Hafez announced that he is staking his political future on the ceasefire and will ask Franjieh to call a national conference to work out a formula for Lebanese-guerrilla "coexistence."

The fighting climaxed weeks of mounting tension between the SAIGON (CP) — Canada urged the international peace supervisory force today to condemn the Viet Cong for a formal violation of the Vietnam truce agreement if they refuse to grant wider air corridors for observer helicopters.

Lower Trent Authority To Triple Student Help

TRENTON (Staff) — The Lower Trent River Region Conservation Authority meeting here last night was told the authority's plan to clean up its area this year would be increased threefold over the 1972 effort.

Authority chairman A. U. Wartman indicated the operation was already under way and the first of 71 students to do the job had been hired.

Last year the authority engaged seven students on holidays from schools to introduce the project SWEEP (Students Working to Enhance the Environment Program) in the Lower Trent region.

The students are employed for a duration of two months at rates of pay ranging from $2.25 to $2.50 an hour, depending on qualifications and responsibility involved. This year the project SWEEP is provided two trucks, authority secretary treasurer W. T. Lawson reported. Students seeking work on this undertaking are interviewed by authority personnel. Applicants from the region the authority covers have first priority.

This year the authority will be responsible for disbursements amounting to $211,119, chairman Wartman pointed out, in calling for the approval of his recommendations for setting up a finance committee to provide the executive with regular reports. The proposal was adopted with W. G. Carter of Campbellford selected to act as chairman of the committee.

The authority's role as public watchdog in the prevention of pollution of land and water is financed by government grants. Programs include acquisition of land for greenbelts, establishment of recreation areas, flood and water control, fish and wildlife improvement and forestry and land use.

The Machines Have Stopped

Trenton Firm Folded Finally

TRENTON — CAnadian Flight Equipment is no more.

The Trenton plant that has been in receivership since October, has shut down operations and the 33 remaining workers have been let go. Th machinery in the Sidney Street factory has been sold to a Toronto buyer.

A failing international aerospace industry, coupled with failing sales, forced CFE into interim receivership last fall. At that time a shutdown was predicted.

The 43 employees, many with long years of service, began looking elsewhere for jobs.

But in March a reprieve seemed in sight. Word was received the company had been sold to an unnamed Montreal firm, and would be renamed Consolidated Flight Equipment.

The sale was to have gone through by March 30. However, officials continued to refuse comments and speculation began anew.

Thursday, a remaining official clearing up last minute details, confirmed the "company has been sold . . . it's being closed down completely".

Only a caretaking staff remains for security reasons.

Canadian Flight Equipment in the past had manufactured defence products for the Canadian and U.S. aerospace industry. Before it went into receivership — a move considered in the business world as one step away from bankruptcy — it employed 43 workers.

Planes Replace Watchtowers In Tweed Forestry District

Forest fire detection has become airborne in the Quinte district.

Fast planes have replaced watchtowers as the key alert factor in the fire alarm system of the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Aircraft already have been used for several years in Northern Ontario. The move integrates the rest of the province into the new patrol scheme, says an official at the ministry's Tweed district office.

Leased planes flying out of Pembroke, Bracebridge and Muskoka, now are covering 20,000 square miles of forest and bush country. The Tweed district recently reorganized under regionalization of ministry field service — totals about 3,000 square miles from Denbigh to Roslin, east from Marmora to Sharbot Lake.

Aircraft give new flexibility to firewatchers. They are also cheaper to operate than the watchtowers which had to be manned from spring to fall, says Tweed district fire control supervisor, Doug Mumford.

Modern weather forecasting and records of past fires make mobile air vigilance feasible, he adds.

Weather conditions can be pinpointed by sophisticated scanning techniques. From data gathered over the years, a pattern of reliably predictable ground flashpoints has emerged.

The combination makes it possible to deter specific flight plans where weather and ground conditions make for potential hazards.

Poor visibility often reduced the effectiveness of the watchtowers. Aircraft can be moved right up to hazard points often ground vision is restricted.

With the new spotter system has come a more efficient radio reporting method.

Longitude and latitude readings have replaced township and local place names in relaying the location of trouble.

The method is more exact, and, when translated onto a ground map, quickly pinpoints the problem area, says Mr. Mumford.

The planes have also brought restrictions on burning permits issued by district offices. Prime detection hours for the aircraft are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The ministry is curtailing burning of rubbish in that period to cut down on false alarms. Some exceptions will be made where deemed permissible.

Despite the new mobility, the fire protection service still puts the emphasis on public response when fire erupts.

"Whether they know it or not we have a great deal of faith and confidence in the public reporting of fires," says Mr. Mumford.

Ironically, so far this year there have been almost double the number of fires in the Tweed district than in the same area in 1972 — 28 compared to 20.

But eccentric weather which saw early warm spells is blamed.

Officially, the forest fire season doesn't begin until April. But forest fires were breaking out in late March. At one point the number of flash fires and bone-dry bush conditions were classified an extreme hazard in the forest fire ratings.

Although the watchtowers have become obsolescent, two are still being maintained in the Algonquin Park area. The four remaining in the Tweed district will remain as bush landmarks, at least for the present. There are, as yet no plans for scrapping them.

Military Regimes Combine Stability and Prosperity

Capitalism and Socialism in Uneasy Co-Existence

JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Since most of the world is ruled by authoritarian regimes, either through military strongmen, or by oppressively-efficient party systems," how are we to deal with them? Because live with them in a complex world, we must.

If we are leftist, anti-business, afraid of the new power of capitalism in the shape of multi-national companies, we opt for socialist regimes in Chile, Cuba; Syria, Tanzania or Burma.

If we are rightist, believe private enterprise and the state must co-exist, feel multi-national companies are needed but with controls, we opt for Greece, Spain, Portugal, Indonesia or Brazil.

Since the tenor of the times is against strongmen military regimes of the Greek, Brazilian or Spanish varities, the inclination is to see the wave of the future in so-called socialist and Marxist systems.

Discipline, order and control are automatically taken to mean the suppression by the right since these are words used in cool and calculated isolation by reasonable men charged in charge of political systems and national economies.

Yet there is indeed much "discipline" and "order" in socialist systems. How about Cuba or Poland or North Vietnam? How many more freedoms exist here than in Portugal, Brazil or tiny dictatorial Paraguay?

The other day a civilian spokesman for the maligned and largely-disliked Greek military government came out again with the classic statement that stability is good for business, a view which rankles world socialists and liberals.

Alexandros Tsatsos, Greek industrialist and chairman of the planning committee for Greece's new 15 year development plan said this: "a basic prerequisite is the prevalence of security . . . Discipline, order and security create a climate of over-all confidence both at home and abroad."

Now whatever you say about Greek colonels and Brazilian generals and their laissez-faire approach to foreign investment, the Greek and Brazilian economies under Colonel Papadopoulous and General Medici (both of whom have "retired" from the military) have never performed better.

In the case of Greece and at the expense of many Greek freedoms of speech, press and assembly, the average Greek has never been better off. In the case of Brazil, an unwillingness to investigate the success of Brazilian capitalism can be more severe.

Brazil, unlike Greece, is predominantly a socialist, filling up 40 percent of the South American land mass. The way the Brazilian economy is currently moving, again at the cost of personal freedoms, suggest Brazilian model, not those of Marxist Cuba or chaotic Chile, is the wave of the future in that continent.

The structure of Brazilian multi-capitalism, its trans-military-capitalism, its trans-port system pressing hard on the Brazil's neighbors, its diplomatic role expanding Brazilian interests in Africa and even Asia, are signs the Brazilian economy is moving in a direction almost unknown to Canadians.

In democratic states like ours we can still make our choice about "the wave of the future" assuming the developed, liberal-capitalistic countries, do not have it.

In Nyrere's socialism in one country the wave of Africa? Is Brezil's strident capitalism the answer for Latin America? Will communistic regimes ever come to most of the nations facing on the Mediterranean?

But certainly that one has the answer over all others is, in this topsy-turvy world, the worst form of uncertainty.

Ypres Anniversary

"Age shall not weary them nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun we shall remember them." Together with Colonel John McCrae's Flanders Fields, these lines of Laurence Binyon are deeply imprinted on our minds in association with the fallen of two world wars.

They come to mind particularly on Remembrance Day in November, but they remain applicable at any time when memory turns to the sacrifices made in the cause of freedom. In recent days there has been another of such remembrance of this nature — and for the last time at that, for the years are taking their toll. In Edmonton last week 13 survivors of history's first gas attack, at the second battle of Ypres in 1915, assembled at the cenotaph.

Said a report of the occasion: "The small group was scarcely noticed by passers-by. A brief speech by one of the veterans was barely audible over the noise of traffic."

As Ypres veteran 77-year-old Jimmy Dent put it: "There is such a small crowd now and we're getting old in our bones." Even though, as Mr. Dent said, the group lost only three men last year, the once-strong membership of 308 has dwindled to 33.

This formal act of remembrance of Ypres may be ending, but survivors will still be going down to the Cenotaphs of the land in years to come. For as the saying goes, "Old soldiers never die, they just fade away."

A Dangerous Practice

At a time when the incidence of impaired driving and reckless driving, from whatever cause, appear to be on the increase there is concern over a third aspect of what might be termed the car-travel-people symdrome.

We refer to hitchhiking and its hazards — especially, as recent tragedies have emphasized, as it applies to young women.

Two 17-year-old Toronto teenagers who were found shot dead in a North York field in recent days may have hitched a ride the night before after a brief stop at a Keele Street hamburger stand.

The tragedy recalls another one last November when 16-year-old Yvonne Lemux was found beaten to death in King township. The girl was a regular hitchhiker; inship. The girl was a regular hitchhiker; indeed, several days before her death she told her mother of a book she planned writing "about her problems while hitchhiking".

Yet another case is that of 14-year-old Ingrid Bauer of Kleinburg who disappeared after leaving to visit a boy friend five miles away. She too was hitchhiking and has been missing ever since. That is, since last Augmissing ever since. That is, since last Augmissing ever since. That is, since last Augmiss

Richardson to Name Watergate Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General-designate Elliot L. Richardson is reported planning to name an independent Watergate prosecutor by the time his confirmation hearings begin next Wednesday.

Senate sources said Richardson made that pledge to Republican senators after they told him they want the Watergate investigation taken entirely out of the executive branch.

Richardson's choice for the job was not made known, but speculation centres on Philadelphia lawyer William T. Coleman, a former member of the now-defunct Price Commission. Coleman declined comment when asked whether he had been offered the position.

As one group of senators after another demanded a special prosecutor, two recently-resigned White House aides testified before a federal grand jury about Watergate.

John D. Ehrlichman, former chief domestic adviser, and H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, said they answered all questions.

Their lawyer, J. W. Wilson, said that even if his clients are indicted, "they have no fear of being convicted."

Meanwhile, Martha Mitchell swore in a pre-trial statement in New York Thursday that the White House leaked false stories last year that she was in an asylum, The Associated Press learned.

Sources say Mrs. Mitchell, wife of former attorney-general John Mitchell, former director of the Nixon campaign, testified: "I have been at the mercy of the White House for four years, they have treated me abominably, half-crucified me, have sent lies out through the press . . . have started rumors galore about me."

Her statements were made under oath in connection with civil suits filed as a result of the break-in and wiretapping of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office building in Washington.

Sources said Mrs. Mitchell said she has no first-hand information about the Watergate case.

Canada Mentioned By Nixon

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon has linked Canada with transatlantic opportunities this year to produce a healthy world economy and peaceful society.

While placing emphasis on Europe in his annual state of the World message to Congress Thursday, Nixon opened his arms in a wider embrace by saying:

"The United States, Canada, and Western Europe have a decisive contribution to make to a healthy world economy and to a new peaceful international order. These are new creative tasks for our partnership."

President Nixon said North Vietnam risks renewed war with the United States unless it lives up to the Vietnam ceasefire agreement and withdraws its forces from Cambodia and Laos.

Nixon also indicated the chances of improved United States relations with the Soviet Union and China are threatened by what he described continued North Vietnamese aggression by North Vietnam.

Right to Collect Tax Is Disputed

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members charged in the legislature Thursday that the government has no legal right to collect new sales tax revenue until the law is passed.

The government began collecting the additional two-per-cent on the retail sales tax as of May 1 despite the fact that the bill is still being debated in the legislature.

And the increase to seven from five per cent already has netted the government $2 million.

Call Bernier

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's public accounts committee took another step in the investigation into the use of government planes by agreeing Thursday to summon Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, to appear before it.

Mr. Bernier's ministry is responsible for the 40-plane fleet that has been under siege recently in the legislature following the provincial auditor's report which indicated some ministers and their families had used the planes for non-government-out-of-province trips.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said. . .

Treasurer John White was peeved when he charged opposition members with "deliberately filibustering" in order to delay the legislation.

"All of these collections shall be legalized shortly," Mr. White said.

"No taxation without legislation," shouted New Democrat Party Leader Stephen Lewis.

James Breithaupt (L—Kitchener) asked whether the government is prepared to prosecute those who do not collect the revenue or those who are not prepared to pay it.

"These taxes will be collected," Mr. White said.

"You're not a tyrant—you're just a treasurer," Mr. Lewis retorted.

Ian Deans (NDP—Hamilton-Wentworth) estimated that the government would have collected $6 million illegally by the time the legislation received royal assent.

"There is nowhere in the statutes of Canada or Ontario any power to tax retroactively," Mr. Deans said.

He said in a statement that "this arrogant government . . . apparently feels that it can, with its bullying tactics, force vendors to collect taxes and citizens to pay taxes without the benefit of the legislative process."

In the legislature, the opposition suggested to Mr. White that he ask the Supreme Court of Ontario for an opinion on the legality of collecting taxes before legislation.

The treasurer rejected the suggestion, but said any private citizen could do it.

Blast Kills Two People

QUEBEC (CP) — Fire officials hope to be able to question a man as injured man today concerning a fire and explosion which took two lives and injured 19 persons, Thursday, at a rehabilitation centre for handicapped adults here.

Chief Dominique Gonthier of the Quebec City fire department said the severity of the injuries suffered by the 16 survivors, so badly burned no estimate of age could be given and identification has not been possible.

Shulman Says Guelph Convicts Are Running Extortion Racket

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman charged Thursday that convicts at Guelph reformatory were running an extortion racket inside the prison.

He told the legislature that "strongarm inmates" who are members of a special liaison committee are taking 90 cents a week from other prisoners' pay.

The convicts are paid $1.68 weekly.

Mr. Apps said he was unaware of the extortion attempts and promised to investigate it.

Outside the legislature, Dr. Shulman said he received the information about the extortion gang Thursday from a representative of the convicts.

Mr. Apps also told the legislature that his ministry was going to investigate charges that most guards were fed up with the present reformatory administration.

He also said he did not accept published reports that a small and powerful group of prisoners are in full control of cell block and dormitories at the institution.

Potter Says $50 A Month Is Enough 'Pocket Money'

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter said Thursday that $50 a month will provide money for incidentals for senior citizens in nursing homes.

He was responding to James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) who noted that as of May 1, pensioners were charged an extra 50 cents a day.

"You realize that this $15 a month completely wipes out their increase under the old-age security plan of $11 a month," Mr. Bullbrook said in the legislature.

"We are providing the health facility and at the same time we wanted to make sure that they had enough money available to them to provide for any incidentals they wanted," Dr. Potter said.

Dr. Potter said if the pensioner pays $4 a day or $120 a month he still had $50 a month left for incidentals, which the minister said he thought was sufficient.

"In fact, there is a very large percentage of our population in Ontario who have much less than that to provide incidentals," Dr. Potter said.

'Bachelors' Survive Their Own Cooking

Male students at Bayside Secondary School are proving that they CAN cook and sew. Mrs. Brenda Brooks, sewing instructor for a class of 28 "Bachelor Survival" students said she had never taught an all-boy class before and would gladly do it again.

"They have different ways," said Mrs. Brooks. "One student uses discount coupons for a gin cushion. And they all on their sewing machines a lot."

Bill McMahon, 18, said he didn't care about what other students, especially the girls, thought about boys doing so-called girls' stuff". "Brenda (Mrs. Brooks) said that we're better in some things than the girls."

Bachelors choose their own projects. Their teacher said a that first, she started the boys sewing little things: aprons and chef hats. Projects advanced to oven mitts, shirts, jackets and ties.

The workload wasn't heavy according to one student. But, he's spent the past two days in the sewing room preparing for Bayside's Open House, when each student displayed their projects.

The first of its kind in the Belleville area, the course began in September 1971. More than 40 male students have attended the "Bachelor Survival Course".

Mary Thomas, who teaches cooking said the bachelors enjoy eating their cooking 'best', "They're also quite curious," said the cooking teacher. A basic outline is set by Miss Thomas for her nine week cooking classes. She chooses the sections to be taught and the class decide. their topics in that area.

Breakfast, luncheons and dinners including desserts and waiter service make up the basic cooking course outline.

"The students are quite curious about cooking and it's more the survival angle they learn."

Differences noted between Miss Thomas's male and female cooking class were: the boys knew less theory than the girls and it takes a bit longer for the boys to adjust to the kitchen."

Bachelors with long hair wear their hair in a ponytail. Its the first rule of the kitchen.

This semester, when weather permits, an outdoor barbecue will be prepared by members of the "Bachelor Survival Course".

Like any course, said Miss Thomas, there are failures. Grades are based on the student's (whether male or female) attitude; participation and projects completed.

Women's Status Depicted Rednersvile W.I. Meet

What members are leaving their successors was the topic at Rednersville Women's Institute Answers included the training for the 4-H Girls' clubs; the skills in cooking and sewing learned by members; The Tweedsmuir History and the communication among W.I members.

The new slate of officers for the group for 1973-74 is: Mrs. Earle Onderdonk, president; Mrs. Harold Bonter, 1st. vice-president; Mrs. Alfred Cairns, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Hubert Townsend, district director and Mrs. Wilson Pulver, alternate district director. Mrs. Gerald Trounce is the press secretary and in charge of public relations.

Mrs. George Vincent, district director, attended the meeting and read news clippings pertaining to the status of women. She gave unusual occupations held by some. Mrs. Vincent suggested that a discussion meeting be held on legal rights and laws that affect women. She said that a widow could lose her and her deceased husband's good credit rating after his death.

Rednersville women will prepare a report on their plans for the future for the District Annual meeting.

Educated Women Have Impact On Conservative Sudan

KHARTOUM (Reuter) — A tiny fraction of educated women are beginning to make an impact on the conservative society of the Sudan, where 91 per cent of women are officially said to be illiterate.

The women include one who holds full ministerial rank and another who is a deputy minister. But generally speaking, the women of the Sudan, as in many other Arab countries, concentrate on home and household duties, although they have the vote.

"They have been emancipated politically but not socially," said Mrs. Mahassin Saad, a leader in the campaign for a greater measure of emancipation for Sudanese women. She said there is no official job-discrimination against women in the Sudan but that they are prisoners of tradition and customs.

Mrs. Saad has a master of arts degree from London University and is currently doing research at the University of Khartoum with the aim of gaining a doctorate of philosophy.

She has six children, the eldest a student at Khartoum University. She is active in the Sudanese Women's Union and is chairman of the Middle East and North Africa region of the International Planned Parenthood Federation.

Two of Sudan's most emancipated women were actively concerned with arrangements for the visit to Khartoum in February of Princess Anne.

They are Dr. Fatima Abdel Mahmoud, deputy minister of youth, sports and social affairs, and Sayeda Nafeisa Ahmed el Amin.

Miss Nafeisa, an eloquent and persuasive speaker, is a member of the Political Bureau of the ruling Sudanese Socialist Union and president of the Sudanese Women's Union. She has the personal rank of minister.

Dr. Mahmoud, who is married to the dean of the faculty of law in Khartoum University, studied medicine in Moscow in the 1950s.

At Khartoum University, where the proportion of women students has been increasing, there are more than 600 girls in the student body

Women are rarely seen without male escorts in restaurants or public places. Sudanese women seldom smoke in public.

Women are active as teachers and nurses, but only a small number have entered the professions and few have taken to business, apart from street trading.

In dress, Sudanese women tend to be conservative. In the Arab and Moslem north, most women still wear the "toba" — a robe which covers them from head to ankle, but their faces are unveiled.

Fashion-conscious women prefer elaborate robes, sometimes of nylon and increasingly of the see-through type. Under them, some wear European clothes.

Minskirts are seen in Khartoum, but they are more frequently worn in southern Sudan, where the dress fashions as well as the mode of life tend to be African rather than Arab.

Ann Landers

Most Effective Putdown: Dead Silence

Dear Ann Landers: Since a great many people unload their pet peeves on you I think I'll give you mine.

What should I say to people who telephone me and start off on the attack because they had been trying to get my line for awhile and it was busy? Usually, it goes something like this: "I've been trying to reach you for an hour . . . Then some snide remark about how grabby I am, etc.

What bothers me is that I allow myself to be put on the defensive, when it is really none of their business how long I talk. I sometimes find myself apologizing and even killing these clods the nature of the call. I know this is stupid and I hate myself for it.

Will you please supply me with a good put-down?—Bell's Love Child

Dear Love Child: Try silence. Just sixty seconds of dead air can be very effective. Especially when you come back with a subject completely unrelated to the comment. Pause, preferably when the most devastating response can be no response at all.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our 70s. We have been almost back a good relationship. We enjoy each other's company, both in and out of the bedroom.

We looked forward to the day when we would be free of the problem of raising children, so we could travel and be "honeymoners" again. Well, now that the time is here I am deeply disturbed. Our sex life suddenly dwindled and there is nothing. And I do mean nothing.

About six months ago I began to think perhaps he was seeing some other lady, but I'm too old to be completely faithful and I'm ashamed of myself for having thought otherwise.

Last year he began to take medication for high blood pressure. Is there any possibility that the medication is interfering with his ability to function sexually? Please check with medical authorities and let me know. Thanks. Ann.—The Big G

Dear G: There is indeed a possibility that the hypertension medication is responsible for your husband's impotence. He should discuss this with his doctor so he will have a good understanding of what has happened to him—and to you—and in turn explain it to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married homosexual (male) but have not been involved in any homosexual activity since my marriage. My wife does not know the faintest idea of the conflicts I am going through. The desire for a male friend is becoming overwhelming. I can't desperately to keep my marriage intact. The anguish and torture is more than I can bear.

We live in a small town where there are no psychiatrists. Time off from my job to go to the nearest city (150 miles away) is out of the question. Can you suggest anything? There is no one else I can trust or turn to.—Desperate in N. Carolina

Dear N.C.: You must discuss this problem with a doctor, clergyman or counselor—someone who can serve as a safety valve and offer sound counsel, support, and get going.

Not Doris' Specialty

In his new book "Think Yourself Thin", Dr. Frank J. Bruno recommends that overweights practise these exercises regularly:

(1) Eat a favorite food in front of a mirror.

(2) Eat a meal with your eyes closed.

(3) Time yourself at mealtime, then deliberately double that time at the next meal and thereafter.

(4) When you feel like a snack, set a timer for five minutes. When the timer rings, if you still want the snack, have it. If you don't want it, pass it up and next time set the timer for a longer period.

(5) Make a favorite goodie and give it all away.

(6) Analyze your food sensations by rating foods from zero to 10 as sweet, sour, bitter or salty.

(7) Put a favorite food on a plate and look at it for five minutes.

Dear Doris: That's how many my husband and I picked ourselves on our natural trust. He is a salesman and is away from home a good deal.

I never had any reason to doubt him until, in a period of unemployment, he went drinking with his friends evening nights every week. One night he phoned and said he had a chance to work all night in a restaurant. So I later found out that he did not work that night.

He is working now but I find myself resenting him and wondering how many times he's been out when were home all in those trips.

Once I received an answer from phone call when I was and a woman. If he slept with another woman I would certainly leave him. Do I bring all this into the open? — Two Years Married.

Dear Two Years: Your feelings are human, and a good marriage is surely based on mutual trust.

Unemployment does things to a man; ruins morale. You didn't mention whether you'd be willing to bet he is still drinking more growing up. If he is now in a steady job and you are over that first hump, I'd let sleeping dogs lie. You need more evidence than you've got, before rocking the boat with accusations of second cheating.

(Doris has studied human behavior and can shed light on your problem. Write Ann, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MAY 4, 1973

10-Speed Bicycles Thieves' Favorites

It's specifically aimed at owners of 10-speed machines which a policeman described as "the Cadillacs" of the 2-wheeled bicycling boom.

Yesterday, two 10-speed bicycles — valued at about $100 each — were stolen from Moira and Centennial secondary schools. At Centennial, a chain securing the bicycle to a tree was cut.

The thefts were the latest in a series in recent weeks. In at least one case, a 10-speeder was stolen from a garage as its owner slept overhead.

Indications are such thefts are widespread. City police have recovered bicycles stolen from as far away as Oakville.

Water Still Rising

PICTON — The road leading to Sandbanks Provincial Park has been closed owing to flooding caused by this year's high water levels.

The parking area at the Sandbanks is completely under water in many places and it is impossible to stroll among the dunes without wading through pools two to three feet in depth.

At Outlet Provincial Park, the beach has been washed away and change houses have been removed to protect them from the rising water. Park superintendent Robert Davison has suggested that sunbathers this summer may find it necessary to lie on the dunes on the opposite side of the road running through the park.

A Salmon Point resident, Mrs. W. S. Rankin yesterday started a breakwater of logs built to prevent damage by the lapping waves. Converted as a summer home, the old lighthouse now has water lying beneath it.

A spokesman for the Glenora ferry said water has risen two-tenths of a foot in the slips there since early this week. Men are at work extending and raising ferry ramps to facilitate docking. The ferry, Quinte Loyalist, was taken out of service last week when high water made it impossible to land the boat without difficulty.

The causeway leading to Big Island lies partially under water and a week-related "flooded area" here has been posted.

Agricultural representative for the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Foods in Prince Edward County, Larry Matheson yesterday said heavy rainfalls and high water levels have not yet proved serious for the farmer.

Favorable weather in the latter part of April made it possible for many farmers to have their spring grain. The planting schedule this season has been recorded as earlier than the seeding operations in 1972.

Mr. Matheson said that not all the land now lying under water is farmed in any event and what is under water because of the high lake level is "not generally serious." He added, however, that corn planting has been delayed this week because of continued rainfalls.

Radio Appeal Successful

TRENTON (Staff) — The response of police communications with the public was demonstrated here this morning of a station wagon reported stolen Thursday in Trenton.

The vehicle was reported missing by land developer Austin Scott about 12:30 p.m. yesterday.

This morning a Brighton resident, Dennis Beckett heard the Quinte Police Advisory broadcast about the theft and remembered seeing a vehicle resembling the missing wagon's description on the Cooney parking lot in Brighton.

He passed the information along to provincial police who later confirmed the vehicle on the Cooney premises was the one they were looking for.

Social Workers To Meet Here

More than 75 delegates are expected to attend the FOCAS conference in Belleville Saturday.

FOCAS (Federation of Children's Aid Staffs) was spearheaded by Belleville Children's Aid employees three years ago. The intent of the federation is to promote improvement in the treatment of children.

Professor Brian Wharf of the McMaster University School of Social Work will be keynote speaker for the one-day conference to begin in the Four Seasons Hotel at 10 a.m.

Belleville one of the strongest units of the provincial federation, will be sending as many as 25 delegates to the session.

Golden Runs Print Shop

Jack Golden, former owner of the Marmora Herald weekly newspaper and job printing shop is again back in the printing business.

Mr. Golden sold the newspaper and job printing business to D. W. Mullan on January 1. He since purchased the Norwood Register. But purchase of the Norwood paper taxed plant capacity to the point where it couldn't handle all the job printing and get out the newspapers.

With the business separated, the print shop will be operated by Mr. Golden out of the Palmer Herald premises while the newspaper will be self-contained in its new location across the street.

..Then There's Music

Known for its social work, Salvation Army also is renowned for its music. The fact is not overlooked by Belleville corps commander Major Ray Nelson as he arranges Front Street store window display publicizing Army's Red Shield campaign.

Crops Not Likely To Be Frostbitten

Overnight temperatures ranging down to 35 degrees at Trenton and 30 degrees in the Madoc - Tweed area are forecast for tonight but local agricultural representatives doubt if any crops are far enough advanced to be damaged by light frost.

"I can't see that anything is out far enough to be hurt," said Hastings county Ag-Rep Douglas Tipper.

Mr. Tipper said no tomatoes were in and he doubted that any blossoms were far enough advanced to be in danger.

The same was true of Prince Edward County agricultural representative Larry Matheson.

Mr. Matheson doubted if strawberry plants were far enough advanced to be hurt, while he said tomato plants were still in the greenhouses.

Mr. Tipper said that oats and barley were starting to show through the ground but were not high enough to be hurt by slight frost.

He said farmers got to work early on high land and about 40 per cent of the total oats and barley crop was already in the ground.

"But on low-lying ground it will still be a long time before farmers get to work," he said.

Also, most corn on high land is already in but is still not out of the ground

Ancient Art Revived For Queen Alex Pupils

By HARRY MULHALL

There's more to stories than words can tell.

And Jack Clayborne is the expressive proof.

For nearly an hour yesterday, Mr. Clayborne involved more than 100 students at Queen Alexandra public school in the ancient skill of storytelling.

The school setting was appropriate. While his program may be lively entertainment, it is essentially educational, says Mr. Clayborne.

Action and group participation are the keys. Billed as Uncle Jack, Mr. Clayborne goes before an audience and leads it in acting out the stories he relates. Gestures, mime, facial expressions, vocal inflections are woven around the framework of words.

"What I'm teaching is the art of communication. This way the youngsters learn how to communicate in every way — physically, vocally, mentally and artistically," says Mr. Clayborne.

Teachers also can learn some pointers from his act, he believes. In fact, many classroom subjects in lower grades could be more effectively taught in storytelling style.

In fact, he's even written a book about it. But like other works he's penned, most of his stories are originals, the rest adaptations from various sources — it's never been presented a publisher.

Storytelling is probably the most ancient of the arts, originating with human communication. In the age of mass media it's become almost extinct.

Although he's had a way with words since his Toronto schooldays — he won medals for composition — his storytelling career dates seriously back about 20 years.

After overseas service in World War II he went to New York and took up acting, getting fitful employment in off-Broadway shows. One night he went to a children's party with a magician — and my rights were out. He jumped on stage and began telling stories to hold the turned audience. It launched a calling in which he has since played to million youngsters, Mr. Clayborne estimates, in Canada, the United States and Europe.

It's a career that continues uninterrupted despite what could have been a crippling development — a voice breakdown. In 1964, after volunteering his services to a retarded children's school in the United States, his continued storytelling affected his vocal chords. Despite repeated visits to doctors and throat specialists the cause remains a mystery, he says.

Now he keeps his voice for narrations, speaking in a whisper from the diaphragm between appearances.

He charges little sometimes nothing, for his appearances (when the storyteller says, he is not interested in his money. In many cases he just wants an honorarium to cover expenses.

In a way this often affects the train of his career since the impression often is he shows can't be worth much, since they cost little, he says.

He divests older cars which can easily be replaced if there is a costly breakdown. He'd opening bank accounts in without towns. If he needs money he writes for it.

His brief Belleville program coincided with a visit to a nephew now living in the city — Basil LaVoie. He'll be back later and is hopeful of getting involved with more school appearances.

Betting on the races is not considered a good foundation for a steady dollar income. You can bet that the weekly N - 0 - will raise your sense supply.

Putting Action to Words

With exuberant leap, professional storyteller Jack Clayborne puts action into words for Queen Alexandra public school youngsters. Intent on reviving ancient art, he also believes classroom teaching can effectively use storytelling style that involves group participation.

Planning Board Dropouts Likely to Stay Out

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Recent provincial and local planning developments have not created an optimistic picture for the return of three municipalities who broke from the Quinte Planning Board more than a year ago.

The municipalities of Brighton, Brighton Township and Murray Township left a planning meeting calling for changes in financial arrangements. Since that time meetings between the three municipalities and the planning board have shown that a planning region to the west of the trio is leaning their backs, reinforcing their decision to stay out of the Quinte board.

Hanging in the balance was the decision of the province whether to include Cobourg and Port Hope in a planning area with Oshawa and the heavy urban-industrial area around that municipality.

Since the decision was made to leave Cobourg and Port Hope with eastern Ont., the three stray municipalities are enticed further to hook up with the west.

Several times senior municipal officials for the three have said they didn't want to be included in an area with Belleville.

The three municipalities felt Belleville was responsible for them fix fair share of the planning services and they were getting nothing for the money they were supplying.

Anticipating lengthy negotiation which perhaps might not be resolved before the year's end, the Quinte Planning Board has passed and had approved a budget that does not include the trio.

Board chairman Arnold Orr was asked last night if it was not apparent that the board was not placing much hope in the return of the trio.

"It is quite possible they will not return," he said. "We have to face the possibility that there will be five rather than eight in the planning board area for now," said the Belleville city alderman.

In the meantime a special committee of the board will continue to investigate a brief submitted by the three municipalities outlining the changes they would like to see in the board financial arrangements.

"We are making an earnest effort to get them back again," he said.

While the discussions continue, Ald. Orr said it was imperative for the board to have a workable budget they could count on to get to some of the business that has been lagging and start out on a program for the coming year.

Australian Group To Visit City

The Belleville Rotary Club will play hosts next week to an Australian study group, members of which will be billeted in the city during a four-day Quinte area visit.

The six member group composed of Dr. K. Archer, group leader, Neville Creed, Edwin Stanford, Kerry Herron, Milham Wheatley, will arrive in the city Tuesday evening.

Wednesday morning they will visit city hall where they will be officially welcomed by Mayor Robin Jeffrey. After the city hall visit they will visit the Bell Engineering and Management School in the Four Seasons Hotel and also the Ontario School for the Deaf.

For a noon luncehon the group will be joined by two Australian exchange students, Debby Charters and Rosemary Downs, who have been studying in Belleville for the past year.

The Australian study exchange group membership is made up of men from various walks of life and includes a priest, a college principal, civil engineer and industrial officer.

During their stay in Belleville, the visitors will visit Trenton, Picton and other Quinte - area centres.

Car Rolls

TWEED — Michael Price, 26, Carleton Place, was uninjured after his car crashed off Highway 37 near Thomasburg, seven miles south of here early Thursday.

Damage to the 1968 vehicle, which rolled on its roof, was estimated at $1,200. There were no passengers in the car.

Deseronto Will Push Arena Fund

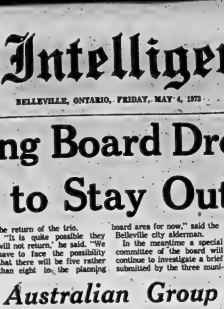
The committee, under the chairmanship of Peter Marriott has raised approximately $15,750 and a public meeting has been called for Saturday at the arena building to plan the intensified campaign.

Former residents of Deseronto have contributed $5,000, with the understanding the money will be refunded if the project does not go ahead.



Building Will Replace These Premises

New Bank for Trenton

TRENTON — The commercial face of downtown Trenton is rapidly changing with the announcement that construction will soon start on a new Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Ernie Trueman, manager of the local branch bank, says demolition of the former Axis Specialty Shop next to Woolworth's will begin shortly, now that legal entanglements over property rights at the rear of the site, have been settled.

Mr. Trueman says the new bank building will closely resemble the Commerce's new facility near completion in downtown Brighton. "We'll have more than twice the space we have now," he said.

The old bank building, next to the new municipal building - parking garage complex nearing completion, is not owned by the company. No word has been received regarding its future.

The present bank building has much important historical significance. The old gray stone structure dates back to the 1880s when it was the Standard Bank.

Three company amalgamations over the years kept it in the same house firm, but with three different names.

The new bank building will feature an open glass and brick front, with one storey at street edge, and two storeys at the rear.

Red Shield Blitz Near

Belleville Salvation Army Corps has launched its 1973 Red Shield campaign.

The objective is $12,600, about the same as last year.

This week city business and special canvassing is being canvassed as the drive for funds for Salvation Army work begins.

For three hours, starting at 6 p.m. an expected 275 canvassers will go door to door in an all-out drive to wrap up the appeal.

Kelly Chooses The Simple Life

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Pittsburgh Penguins coach Red Kelly says he has decided that instead of coaching he will live the simple life on his Ontario farm for the next three years while the National Hockey League club which fired him pays his salary.

Kelly was bounced by the Penguins on Jan. 13 with 3½ years remaining on a five-year contract.

Because he will continue to be paid his estimated annual salary of between $40,000 and $50,000 Kelly said Thursday night that he has turned down at least six coaching offers, including two which he termed "solid" from Toronto Maple Leafs and another unnamed club.

He said had the Penguins agreed to a financial settlement on his contract he probably would have taken another coaching job.

His contract with the Penguins holds that he could be signed a contract with another team, he would receive from the Penguins only the difference in the two salaries.

"What should I stick my neck out and go through all the troubles of coaching or managing when I can get paid three years for doing nothing?" he asked. "I can't see where I would gain anything by it.

"I tried to make a reasonable settlement with the Penguins," he added, "at least what I thought was reasonable.

RED KELLY

"But they said they were content to pay the three years remaining on the contract, so I said 'fine.'"

Kelly, 45, had coached the Penguins for three full seasons before he was dismissed in mid-season.

The Penguin owners said they were not satisfied with the club's progress under Kelly, and believed a coaching change was needed to reach the Stanley Cup playoffs this season. Under new coach Ken Schinkel, the Penguins finished in fifth place, out of the playoffs.

Leafs Wooing Parent

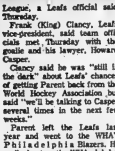
CHICAGO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs are making a bid to lure goalie Bernie Parent back to the National Hockey



BERNIE PARENT

League, a Leafs official said Thursday.

Frank (Ring) Clancy, Leafs vice-president, said team officials met Thursday with the goalie and his lawyer, Howard Casper.

Clancy said he was "still in the dark" about Leafs' chances of getting Parent back from the World Hockey Association but said "we'll be talking to Casper several times in the next few weeks."

Parent left the Leafs last year and went to the WHA's Philadelphia Blazers. He walked out on the WHA club before the season ended, claiming the Blazers had withdrawn his salary guarantees.

"We want him," said Clancy. "He's the best goalie in the NHL, barring only Ken Dryden (of Montreal Canadiens)."

"He'd put us in the playoffs next year."

Clancy said Casper maintains the Blazers broke Parent's contract but said the Philadelphia lawyer had disclosed "nothing about a settlement" of Parent's contract.

Orillia In Final

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Orillia Terriers posted period scores of 1-0 and 4-0 en route to a 7-0 shutout over Thunder Bay Twins in the deciding game of their best-of-five Eastern Allan Cup series Thursday night.

Orillia now will host the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series against St. Boniface Mohawks beginning Saturday in Orillia Ont.

Hawks Hang on to Win

Habs' Late Flurry Almost Pulls It Out

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago's injury-plagued Black Hawks rebounded Thursday night to nail Montreal with a 7-4 setback that left the Canadiens with a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

Stan Mikita, who missed the second game of the series at Montreal with a cut middle finger on his right hand, scored once and assisted on two other goals.

And defenceman Doug Jarrett, who suffered a broken rib in a collision with Montreal's Rejean Houle in the second game, came back strong while taking a regular shift.

"It didn't surprise me," Montreal coach Scotty Bowman said of the appearances by the two veterans in the Chicago lineup although they had been listed as doubtful starters. "I expected them to play."

Jarrett, who had his back heavily taped for the contest, said later as he stripped it off: "I feel great."

Asked if he took a jolt in the sore spot during the game, he said he had tried to avoid contact on that side of his body.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled for here Sunday. Starting time is 3 p.m. EDT and the game will be televised nationally by the CBC.

Chicago took advantage of early power play opportunities Thursday for goals by Dennis Hull, Jean-Pierre Bordeleau. Short-handed goals a minute apart by defenceman Bill White and Mikita—both with Hull in the penalty box—pushed the Hawks into a 4-0 first-period lead.

John Marks got another power play goal early in the second period to make it 5-0.

Frank Mahovlich started a Montreal rally with his seventh goal of the playoff season in the second period and the Canadiens pulled to within one goal of the Hawks with third-period scores by Yvan Cournoyer, Guy Lapointe and Jacques Lemaire.

The Canadiens threatened to tie the game up in the last few minutes but the Hawks held on and added the victory with an empty-net goal by Hull and Jim Pappin.

The two short-handed goals by Chicago marked the second time in as many National Hockey League championships that a team has scored twice while killing off one penalty.

While surprised himself as well as the 17,600 Chicago Stadium fans with his scoring shot from a bad angle, he seemed to be well in check and made a move as if to round the blocked net when he lifted the puck toward the front of the goal.

"I think it went between his arm and the post," said White, "Lemaire wasn't leaning on me too heavily."

Bowman, whose juggling of lines in the past has left his colleagues shaking their heads, either in wonder or admiration, used about 15 different line combinations in the last half of the game to shake up his offence.

"Why not when you're behind," he said later in the Montreal dressing room when asked about the juggling of lines.

The Canadiens were pressing right to the final whistle, missing several good scoring opportunities that might have changed the final outcome had they been able to score earlier.

Bowman removed Dryden with about a minute to go and Hull almost immediately put the game out of reach with a rink-length shot into the ungarded goal. Dryden was still on the bench in favor of an extra attacker when the second empty-net score, by Pappin, connected with 11 seconds to go.

New Line Sets Tempo As Jets Nip Whalers

WINNIPEG (CP) — A speedy winger who missed most of the regular season with injuries, a pickup defenceman-turned-forward and the sentimental home town favorite sparked Winnipeg Jets to a 4-3 win Thursday night over New England Whalers.

The victory left Winnipeg trailing New England 2-1 in the best-of-seven World Hockey Association final series, which now moves into Boston for games Saturday and Sunday.

Playing coach Bobby Hull fired two goals, including the winner at 18:38 of the final period. The goal stopped a New England rally after the Whalers bounced back from a 3-0 deficit to tie the contest.

Other Winnipeg goal-getters were Ab McDonald and Danny Johnson.

New England replied with goals from defencemen Rick Ley and Ted Green and right-winger Tim Sweeney.

Hull knew something drastic had to be done to salvage a home-town win over the bigger, faster Whalers, and called on Garth Rimmitt, John Shmyr, a defenceman picked up for the playoffs, and Brian Cadle to start things rolling.

Cadle, perhaps the least likely Jet to gain the starting centreman's spot, was greeted with a tremendous roar from the crowd of 7,200 fans who made him their hero during the regular season.

It was the first playoff appearance for both Cadle, a lanky, hard-hitting bone-rack of about 185 pounds, and Shmyr, brother to Cleveland defenceman Paul.

Backed by Joe Aumiat and Larry Hornung on the Rimmitt line, they immediately starting hitting and forechecking. Zamuel sent John French heavily into the boards and Hornung caught Larry Pleau solidly behind the Winnipeg net and the pattern was established.

"I made up that new line and they went out and set the tempo," said Hull after the game.

"We weren't winning with the combinations we had. They played well, all three of them."

In the final minute of the period, McDonald stretched his limit to defeat a Beaudin pass through goalie Al Smith's pads.

Lety cut the margin to 3 — after the Jets were forced into sloppy play in their own end by New England forechecking.

East Teams Cleaned Up

The East wrapped up no fewer than seven Ontario Minor Hockey Association major playoff titles this year to make it a great season for teams in the area supervised by executive director Bill Mullholland of Campbellford.

OMHA secretary-manager Vern McCallum of Scarborough terms the accomplishment a tremendous effort, especially in the juvenile division where four championships were won by teams in the association's eastern section."

Two peewee titles and one bantam crown were included in the list.

In Marmora, the villagers celebrated their first ever OMHA championship after their youngsters captured Peewee D honors, winning out over Odessa in a series that went the full seven games.

Coach Wil Terrion and manager Tom Hanley led the team to the title and the Fred Norman Trophy.

In Bantam D, Colborne went all the way to win the Ken G. Walkers Trophy by defeating Odessa in the final.

It was a first for the Village of Wartworth when that community's Juvenile E entry topped Alvinston for the championship and the Albert Watkins Trophy.

At the Juvenile D level, Havelock prevailed over Lakefront, the defending champion, to take top honors and the O. J. Hardwick Memorial Trophy.

Napanee made it two Juvenile A championships in a row by knocking off Danville to take the Mitchell Hepburn Trophy.

Trenton rounds out the list with its Juvenile AA championship team. The squad got by Stratford in the final series for the G. M. Weichel Trophy.

Marmora Girls Hockey Champions

MARMORA — The Junior C Championship of the Dominion Ladies Hockey Tournament was won by Marmora in competition at Toronto on the weekend. The Marmora girls won the championship game over Beachcomber 3-0 after defeating Peterborough 19-1 and Woodbridge 5-0.

Tom Paranuik is team manager, and the coach is Glen Acorn. Members of the team are Lynn Deering, Ellen Gollick, Janet Maloney, Vicki Stewart, Diane Doyle, Irene Booth, Anne Marie Doyle, Penny Neal, Karen Paranuik, Patty O'Connor, Colleen O'Connor, Charlene Deering and Judy, Betty and Barbara McGregor.

On their arrival home with the championship trophy, the girls were paraded through the village behind the fire truck and were given a reception at the Legion Park. Congratulations were extended by Reeve Jack Reynolds of Marmora, Reeve Graham Bell of Marmora and Lake Townships and Reeve Doug Lynch of Deloro Village.

Knights Jousting Are Alive,

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Knights of the Round Table are alive and jousting at their own private Camelot in suburban Surrey municipality.

Actually, the knights are members of the Canadian Jousting Association, which is the creation of Terry Davis, a tough-as-nails Irishman with a fondness for damsels, dragons and those fabled days of yore.

Mr. Davis fights under the name of Sir Terence Barnsley during the association's weekend jousting tournaments, staged at a 17-acre farm in Surrey. He is the association's Grand Knight Marshal.

The association has a "court" of approximately 50 knights, squires, ladies, wenches, pages and lackeys, and all of them are authentically costumed and equipped.

"We don't want any Mickey Mouse costumes or weaponry — we want the real thing," quoth Sir Terence, who noted that the well-dressed knight replete with chain mail, steed and wood lance runs a mean $700.

And the fights are for real — to a point. Various knights are unhorsed by the point of a lance, there are sword battles and the tilted gentlemen are frequently bruised and bashed. But no one ever gets killed, which helps, because there just aren't that many chain-mail-equipped knights around to fill any vacancies at the round table.

An Uphill Battle But Stirling Does it

Stirling Ken Sine Fuels completed a long uphill battle to the playoff championship of the Quinte Ladies' Hockey League, defeating Kingston Red Barons 4-2 Wednesday at Dick Ellis Arena.

The Stirling team trailed 2-0 in the best-of-five series, losing the first two outings to the Red Barons by scores of 4-3 and 5-2. BUT COACH Greg Dafoe's squad rebounded to square the set on the strength of a pair of shutout wins, 5-0 and 2-0.

The fifth game in the playoff ended in a 4-4 tie, setting the stage for the deciding match Wednesday.

Stirling never trailed in the sixth game. Urged on by a large crowd of supporters, the Fuels team got two goals from captain Sue Wright and one each by Georgia Morrison and Sharon Leonard.

Mel Barriage Team Makes Good Showing

Coached by Bob Dafoe, and with Bernie Coughlin handling the manager's duties, the Belleville girls lost their first tournament start by a close 3-2 score to Michigan Tom Kitts.

That loss put the team in the consolation series and Belleville promptly knocked off Brampton 4-2 to move to the semi-final. It was Campbellford, 3, Belleville 1 in the win-or-else game.

Centre Sue Morton was the top performer for Belleville in the three tournament games. She came through with five goals and two assists. Other Barriage scorers were Sandy Claus and Judy Rappelle.

Already, the team is planning for next season and in an effort to raise funds, the girls are holding a dance at the Roundup Club on St. Paul St., May 11.

Belleville Team Gets Second Win

Forward Ernie Brown scored two goals to lead Belleville to a 4-3 win against Trenton in the second trial game for the under - 21 junior soccer team slated to represent this area against Peterborough May 27.

With Wednesday's win, the Belleville aspirants hold a record of two wins. The Quinte Fund Rovers fell to the under-21-year-olds 2-0.

Joe Iaszcza, coach of the Belleville area representative team, said there were about six Trenton players that looked good enough to make the club.

The two teams will be on the soccer pitch again Monday night at the Quinte Exhibition Park at 6 p.m. for a rematch.

Reid Signs With Trenton

Scotty Reid, a right-hander who did his Commercial Softball League pitching in 1972, for the now defunct Quinte Hotel team, is the latest player signed by the Trenton Auger Men's Wear team.

Trenton coach Wayne Drake who also serves as the team spokesman, rates the signing of Reid as a real boost for the club.

"We figure Scotty is one of the three top pitchers in Belleville and we're glad he's going to be on our side," said Drake.

The Trenton team is a new entry in the league this season, replacing the Quinte Hotel Club.

Drake hopes to sign Jim Whyte as a player-coach in the near future. Whyte coached senior baseball in Belleville a few seasons back.

Full BMBA Executive Elected

Through the legality of the election was called into question again at the Belleville Minor Baseball Association general meeting Thursday, a full executive was at long last elected to run the minor ball program in Belleville. And proceedings were run according to the BMBA constitution.

Mike Bradshaw, who had been moved up the ladder from the second vice - presidency, to the presidency after Jim Crouchman and John Emerson resigned, was confirmed as president.

Despite his involvement in other sports, Bob Dafoe accepted the nomination for the first vice - presidency. Dafoe also holds down the same position at the Ladies' Softball League executive as well as serving as coach of the league's Red Barn — Bob's Sports entry. The Independents of the Industrial Softball League claim him as a member of their team.

"Being in the big league now," said Dafoe jokingly, "I'm a little bit nervous. I'll have to talk to the president and make sure he's here at all the meetings, that way I won't have to be chairman too often."

Jean Reid remains in her originally elected position as third vice president while the second has been left open. Charlie Bartlett continues to hold down the responsibilities of equipment manager.

Jim Crouchman volunteered his services as the umpire-in-chief and was accepted in that position by the 30 BMBA members at the meeting. Vi Christopher remains at bat appointed position as secretary - treasurer.

Ron Lapensky, the originator of the Golden Ball Tournament resigned his position as chairman after an association with the banam tourney for the past four years. Lapensky cited personal obligations as the reason for his desire to leave the position.

Moro Traded

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference Saturday they traded end Tony Moro to Edmonton Eskimos for college ary Wayne Allison and "a future considerations."

Moro, who said earlier this week he feels "99 per cent done" from the Argos because of a contract dispute, caught 23 passes for 364 yards in the Canadian Football League last season.

Originally a fullback from University of Dayton, the 25-year-old Moro was 11th-round choice of Washington Redskins in the 1970 National Football League college draft.

His best CFL year was in 1970 when the 5-11, 218-pounder got 22 passes for 452 yards and three touchdowns.

Allison, 23, was selected the most valuable player in the 1972 Atlantic Bowl in which he was the quarterback for the University of Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks. He was the second choice by the Western Football Conference team in the 1973 Canadian college draft.

Allison, six feet and 190 pounds, has been praised by Edmonton coach Ray Jauch, who said the Petferlaw, Ont., native has "speed, toughness and good blocking ability." He also can be used as a defensive halfback.

Hill Keeps His Cool

Mike Hill, a one-time beer truck driver, was talking about his mastery of the bumpy greens on the 6,905-yard Quail Valley Golf Club course.

"If you get hot and let these greens get under your skin, well, you're going to shoot some funny numbers.

"You've got to keep your cool, have patience. You've got to reconcile yourself to making some short putts, take it in stride and figure that everyone else is going to do the same thing."

The 34-year-old Hill followed that difficult formula to a hard-won 67 and the first-round lead Thursday in the $100,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

His five-under-par effort gave him a two-stroke margin over Steve Melnyk and amateur Ben Crenshaw, tied at 69.

Scores were relatively high despite good playing conditions—warm sunshine and light winds. Masters champ Tommy Aaron, for example, had an 80, and Tom Weiskopf a 79. Dave Hill, Mike's controversial older brother, had a 78 and said he was going to withdraw.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had a 75 and Ben Kern of Toronto shot 79.

Most of the trouble was on the greens, made patchy, spotty and bumpy by a wet winter.

"Awful," said Jim Colbert, "the worst I've ever played on."

"You could stump your toe on

Norton, Ali In Rematch

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Norton, who broke Muhammad Ali's jaw in winning a stunning 12-round split decision at San Diego March 31, signed Thursday for a rematch against the former world heavyweight champion.

The 12-round fight is scheduled for Sept. 10 in Inglewood, Calif.

Ali, still recovering from his broken jaw, will receive $275,000 or 20 per cent of the gate. Norton, who burst from obscurity with his upset triumph over Ali, will get $200,000 against 30 per cent of the gate receipts. He was given an advance of $50,000.

It will be the biggest pay day for Norton, former sparring partner of Joe Frazier.

He collected $50,000 for his fight with Ali in March.

Chuvalo Seeks Postponement

CLEVELAND (AP) — Canadian heavyweight boxer George Chuvalo has asked Cleveland promoters to postpone a scheduled May 9 bout with Ernie Shavers because of a back injury.

Chuvalo asked that the match be moved to June 12. Promoters of the fight said Wednesday they will go ahead with the May 9 card if they can find another opponent for Shavers. If no substitute is found, the bout could be postponed.

Producer Drops Apes After Five Films

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arthur Jacobs, who has made millions with talking apes, is saying farewell to the creatures with a mixture of relief and regret.

Relief, because his five Planet of the Apes movies have been complicated productions requiring more ingenuity with each one, Regret, because the films have been the producer's biggest successes.

"Naturally, I'm fond of the apes," said Jacobs, 51, "but it has become harder to find new plots that will work."

"Besides, I have other films I want to make. I don't want to keep turning out apes pictures like Charlie Chans or Tarzans.

"In both those cases, the first five or so of the series were excellent. Then, as the series fell into other hands, they became a routine and not so good. I'd like to avoid that while we're ahead."

The producer has been finishing up The Battle for the Planets of the Apes, which will be in theatres this summer. That doesn't mean the end of the "apes." They'll be re-released in theatres for years to come. And Jacobs has given 20th Century-Fox rights to develop a television series.

Jacobs, who was press agent for Marilyn Monroe, Gregory Peck and other stars before turning producer, said the ape movies started in Paris in 1963.

"Literary agents asked me what I was looking for, and I said 'I wish King Kong hadn't been made so I could make it."

One of the agents told him of a new book by Pierre Boulle, who wrote Bridge Over the River Kwai. It was a story of a futuristic planet occupied by intelligent apes.

After a series of talks by studio heads the producer decided he needed a star to sell the package. He sent a script to Marlon Brando, who said he didn't understand it.

Charlton Heston did, but Richard Zanuck, then production boss at 20th Century-Fox, said: "Nobody will believe Charlton Heston talking to an ape."

Jacobs had Franklin Schaffner direct a 10-minute scene of Heston talking to Edward G. Robinson in ape makeup. Zanuck was sold. The film was made for $3.8 million—without Robinson. The makeup gave him claustrophobia, and he withdrew from the cast.

Sackville Sole Fleet Survivor

HALIFAX (CP) — The role of the military is changing. The fight now is for peace, say newspaper and magazine ads.

But how has the change affected the old sailor? Extremely well, thank you, if it happens to be the war veteran Sackville.

With two U-boat or so-called German submarine kills to her credit, the corvette Sackville is the only survivor of Canada's wartime fleet. Now, however, she is described by Canadian Armed Forces officials as "more intellectual than military."

The Sackville was built at Saint John, N.B., in 1941 when the submarine crisis threatened to strangle Britain into submission.

She soon sailed to St. John's, Nfld., where she joined the famous Barber Pole Brigade, so named because of the configuration of their camouflage.

It was with this sub-hunting squadron that the Sackville registered her two kills. But that didn't prevent the infirmity of a temperamental boiler leading to an early retirement from active wartime duty.

Almost two decades of relatively inglorious cable-laying duty off the coast of Nova Scotia followed. But in the late 1950s the Sackville was finally rescued from obscurity.

With new boilers installed in Montreal, she began a new career in oceanography. Since then she has logged thousands of miles from the Labrador Sea to the Carribean, all in the cause of science.

Researchers from the Defence Research Establishment, the Bedford Institute of Oceanography, earth sciences departments, the Nova Scotia Research Foundation, the Fisheries Research Board and Dalhousie, McGill and Laval universities, have all walked her deck.

Projects have included ice surveys, gravity measurement and seismic studies, bottom profiling, sonar experiments and the development and proving of electro-mechanical devices for marine studies.

On one cruise to Bermuda a number of species of fish were boated and examined, including 41 sharks. Twenty of the sharks were tagged and released. One of them later turned up in waters off the coast of Norway.

Yet it isn't all the heady pursuit of science. The proud corvette still sees the occasional bit of action. Back in 1967 the Sackville was credited with rendering invaluable service in the rescue of several people whose lives were endangered in the Green Island area off the southern coast of Nova Scotia.

In fact, while at sea the Sackville is always part of Maritime Command's air-sea rescue service. The ship is still ready for action at a moment's notice.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, May 5

Aries (March 21-April 19): Mark this as a day for insight, successful solution of intellectual puzzles, productive study in your chosen field.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Short-term money may be a nuisance depending on what you've done lately. Early hours are one way, later hours are altogether different.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your sales capability is again at a peak. Seek success, personal independence, feeling the eternal light of the soul shining.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be alert, willing to enter fresh contacts on an even, give-and-take basis, and not overly serious.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Pursue business dealings that you can perform easily during the week. A bit of luck on financial details may add to your resources.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spending for its own sake defeats its purposes. Career and commercial activity must not encroach on the tender care you offer loved ones.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Once you get the day's early chores out of the way it's a picnic of a day, for any sort of fun. Make time for your favorite sport.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Speaking your true feelings brings an agreeable echo, comforting companionship. While co-operative moods abound, enter a plot phase.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Open your eyes to the beauty of your surroundings—there is something great, even in the dreary days, and many you are not there.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Go it alone, in pursuit of your own creative projects. Your unbridled side shows, and for the moment leads more to talk than co-operation.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Take a deliberate pace with routines, so there's a thorough job with time for odds and ends to be handled.

BROUGHT TEA

Tea was first brought to Europe from the Orient in the 17th century by the Dutch East India

Blood Pressures Are Explained

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me why is a blood pressure reading the diastolic is more important than the systolic.—M.L.

That isn't quite as true as you appear to believe. Let's say, rather, that the diastolic pressure may be more portentous than the systolic.

To get our signals straight, I trust you understand that the systolic pressure (that would be the 140 in a reading of 140-90) is the "pumping pressure" in the arteries. It's the higher pressure that occurs when the heart is in process of a heart beat.

The diastolic pressure is the lower figure—the point to which pressure declines between systolic pressure—the resistance against which the heart works.

Just about all of the hard brainsies in somewhat the same direction—circles of strain and tension, interspersed with periods of relative rest.

Too high a diastolic pressure means that the arterial system (and the heart) is not getting much "resting time," so in that sense the diastolic pressure can be more important than the systolic pressure—if the systolic pressure is not too high.

While both figures are important, in certain instances the ratio between them is of more significance than the figures when judged alone.

But trying to go into all the subtleties and ramifications of reading blood pressures would be something like a football quarterback being asked, "which is more important—running game or the passing game?"

There isn't any fixed answer to that. Both need to be right for best results—and you need the correct balance between them, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had a ringing noise in my left ear about six weeks. I have no pain. When this noise started it was gradual, for a short period at a time. Now I have it all the time, sometimes real noisy and times when it isn't too bad. Can anything be done for this condition?—Mrs. S.C.

Maybe. Could be impacted wax pressing on the eardrum. Defects in the ear (usually with gradual loss of hearing as well) sometimes are involved. Sometimes high blood pressure is a factor, and this is amenable to treatment, although not necessarily instantly. Medications (aspirin is one) of some types can cause ear noises. And sometimes no cause can be ascertained. Since it is one ear only, have it checked for wax.

The most common complaint as we grow older, 'tis an annoyance rather than a danger.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes the white streaks or marks that are found on so many people's nails? I have heard they are calcium deposits or a deranged part of the nail. What is the answer?—C.S.

Some injury at the base of the nail below the cuticle can cause this. Too vigorous manicuring is a common cause.

Note to L.S.: No, bile not unusual for one breast to be larger than the other. Some people, for example, find that one foot is larger than the other; more frequently, the difference is moderate but it is still enough to mean that when buying shoes you have to make sure that the larger foot is fitted. Same with other parts of the body—virtually none of us are entirely symmetrical.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Bidding Quiz

Your right-hand opponent bids One Notrump, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ KJ982 ♥ 10 ♦ AJ83 ♣ KJ5
2. ♠ AJ9 ♥ AQ83 ♦ KJ5 ♣ Q97
3. ♠ AJ1085 ♥ 6 ♦ 7 ♣ AQ943
4. ♠ QJ83 ♥ KQJ984 ♦ AJ ♣ 6
5. ♠ AQ84 ♥ 9 ♦ AJ76 ♣ KJ96

1. Pass. It is much too dangerous to compete with a hollow suit and only moderate high-card strength against a player who has 16 to 18 points and strength in all suits. An overcall of two spades could spark a heavy penalty if the next player had equally length and strength and most of the missing high cards. A takeout double is equally risky to cause partner might respond in hearts.

It is true that the hand has the values for an opening bid, but once your opponent bids a notrump it is best to take your medicine and remain silent.

Double. Here you have a notrump bid of your own, fortified by substantial values that you may all firmly be sconced over the opening bidder. Those values can best be described by a double. There are not many high cards left for the next two players, but you hope partner will have most of them and pass for penalties. If he bids two anything, you must pass, as there will be virtually no chance for game.

3. Two spades. Though you have only 11 high-card points, the powerful distribution suggests not only a part score but also a chance for game. A suit overcall of a notrump always implies good distribution and reasonable safety. It invites partner to go forward towards game, despite opener's known high-card strength.

4. Double. The choice lies between two hearts and double, and there are two telling factors in favor of the double. First, you have the advantage of the position in that partner passes. Second, if partner responds in a minor, you can still bid four hearts.

5. Pass. Again the safety principle applies, as in the first, hand. A double could evoke a four heart response from partner and a king-size headache with it.

It is sometimes best to pass as a matter of prudence, even though inaction may result in missing the best contract. So, while it is right to feel that a game can be made in one of your suits, it is too dangerous to investigate that possibility by a double or an overcall. Partner might respond two hearts and then what would you do?

The chances of a game is remote, and it is unwise to risk a large penalty when only a small one is at stake.

Tomorrow: Publicity ploy.

GAME FISH

The tarpon, a large herring-like fish, is a favorite game fish which may reach a weight of 400 pounds and a length of eight feet.

BIG FISH

The tuna may reach a length of 10 feet and a weight of 900 pounds.

SHRIMP VARIETIES

There are about 25 types of shrimp or shrimp-like animals in Canadian waters.

CP News Roundup

Want Lake Lowered

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Lake Ontario shoreline residents attacked the International Joint Commission Thursday for failing to take action that would have avoided this spring's costly shore erosion on the lake.

Several contended at a hearing that the U.S.-Canadian body should have increased the lake's outflow into the St. Lawrence system soon after last year's tropical storm Agnes, instead of waiting until this winter.

When commission members said the outflow was limited by an international treaty the audience of more than 400 cried "change the treaty."

The exchange occurred as the IJC solicited public opinion on a plan for slightly increasing the level of Lake Superior.

Bids Fail

LONDON (CP) — Rolls-Royce Motors is to remain an independent British firm with the decision Thursday to reject all the takeover bids submitted earlier this week in a secret auction.

A public share offering will be made instead.

Kierans Glum

CALGARY (CP) — Canada's continuing role as a supplier of raw materials will result in high unemployment, increased foreign ownership, and an overvalued dollar, says Eric Kierans, economics professor at McGill University.

The three major economic blocs in the world—the United States, Japan and the European Common Market—want to see Canada continue in this role, he told a Canadian Club meeting Wednesday.

It was the aero-engine operation which caused the 1923 bankruptcy when it ran into difficulties with its RB-211 jet engine, produced for the all-American Lockheed Tri-Star airliner.

The stock sale involves 36 million shares in Rolls-Royce Motor Holdings Ltd. at 90 pence each and a further 6 million of eight-per-cent loan stock.

Baby Chokes

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — An inquest was ordered Thursday for a baby boy who died Sunday after being found choking on a restraining strap in a crib at the Cobourg District General Hospital here.

Danny Tandam, 18 months old, of nearby Port Hope died after being taken to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Pot Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Linda Harris denied a report Thursday that her sister, Wendy Telford, and Donna Searo had set out to buy marijuana the evening before their bodies were discovered in a North York field.

Kay Tedford, Wendy's mother Thursday night acknowledged that both girls had been known to smoke marijuana, but she insisted they were both responsible girls.

Marijuana is plentiful in the area where the girls live, Steve Harris, Wendy's brother-in-law, said Thursday.

Free on Bail

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Ernest Barker, 41, of Moncton and Saint John, one of three men charged in connection with the theft of $800,000 from Brink's Canada Ltd. offices here, was released on $10,000 bail Thursday.

Barker was released after being charged with assisting with Melvin Edward Downs and Leslie James Dominey, both of Saint John, in the April 21 robbery. He was remanded to May 7 without plea.

Downs and Dominey appeared in court Wednesday on the same charge. Downs was remanded to the provincial hospital for a mental examination and Dominey was released on bail.

Gets Testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon papers trial judge today considers a Watergate conspirator's secret grand jury testimony about the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Sealed testimony from E. Howard Hunt, Jr. was ordered released to Judge Matt Byrne of the U.S. district court Thursday and was to be delivered before today's court session. Byrne has publicly revealed all discoveries about the burglary and said he will continue to do so in an effort "to protect the constitutional rights" of Ellsberg and co-defendant Anthony J. Russo.

John J. Sirica, heading the Watergate investigation in Washington, D.C., Thursday ordered the transcript of Hunt's testimony released to Byrne when Byrne demanded to know what Hunt had said about the Pentagon papers case.

Talked to Nixon

Ex Aide Admits He Set Up Theft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Egil (Bud) Krogh has admitted he supervised the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, two reliable sources say.

Krogh signed an affidavit Friday and sent two copies to U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, presiding in the Pentagon papers trial in Los Angeles, the sources say.

One source said neither President Nixon nor Krogh's immediate boss, John D. Ehrlichman, knew in advance of the break-in.

This source, who has seen Krogh's affidavit, quotes him as saying president Nixon expressed concern to Krogh in August, 1971, that news leaks were endangering chances of success in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union.

The source says Krogh didn't link this conversation with the decision to break into the offices of Ellsberg's psychiatrist the following month. The other source did not comment on this aspect of the affair.

Ellsberg and co-defendant Anthony Russo are on trial on charges of espionage, conspiracy and theft for copying the Pentagon's secret history of the Vietnam war, documents with no direct relationship to SALT. The Pentagon papers were published in newspapers in June, 1971.

One of the sources said the White House tried to suppress Krogh's confession. The second source said there was some legal question about whether Byrne would make the affidavit public but insisted there was no White House pressure on Krogh to keep quiet.

One of the sources said the latest White House guidelines on executive privilege were designed to keep Krogh's lawyer before he made out the affidavit Friday.

These guidelines say current or former White House aides shouldn't answer questions about personal conversations with the president. They also say witnesses are restricted by laws prohibiting the disclosure of classified information concerning national security.

Krogh, now on leave at the No. 2 man in the transportation department, was boss of the White House group set up by Ehrlichman to plug news leaks and the publication of the Pentagon papers.

Republicans Charged In Election Smear

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Donald H. Segretti, alleged head of a Republican political sabotage ring, has been indicted on federal charges of conspiring to disrupt the 1972 Florida Democratic presidential primary campaigns of Senators Edmund S. Muskie and Henry M. Jackson.

In a two-count federal grand jury indictment announced Friday, Segretti, lawyer from Marina Del Ray, Calif., and George A. Hearing, Tampa, Fla., accountant, were accused of mailing a phoney campaign letter on "Citizens for Muskie" stationary accusing Jackson of sexual misconduct.

The unsigned letter, mailed just before the Florida primary last March, also named Senator Hubert Humphrey, but the indictment did not accuse the two of attempting to sabotage the Minnesota Democrat's campaign.

U.S. Attorney John Briggs said the investigation in the case was continuing but hedged on questions about whether the alleged disruption effort involved any figures within the Committee to Re-Elect the president.

The bogus letter accused Jackson of fathering an illegitimate daughter in 1929 and being arrested twice on charges of homosexuality in 1955 and 1957.

It also said Humphrey was arrested on a drunk-driving charge in Washington in 1967 while in the company of a call girl.

The indictment charged Segretti, 28, and Hearing, 40, with "publishing and distributing a letter . . . which did not contain the names of those responsible" and with conspiracy to distribute it.

Robert Benz, 25, of Odessa, Fla., a former Tampa Young Republicans president, was named as a co-conspirator but was not charged.

The indictment said Segretti paid Benz $50 on Dec. 1, 1971, for the work to be done "in the disruption of the said campaigns."

Segretti, who has been named by President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, as the recipient of between $30,000 and $40,000 from a secret fund to operate a campaign intelligence ring, turned himself in to federal marshals in Los Angeles. He was released on $10,000 personal surety bond after waiving his right to have the case moved to California.

Hearing, who was subpoenaed to appear before the jury but arrived only to find he was about to be indicted, surrendered to marshals in Tampa and was released on $5,000 recognizance bond.

Meanwhile, Jackson asked the U.S. Senate select watergate committee to investigate the government's handling of the Florida case.

Jackson criticized Briggs, saying he "did nothing, absolutely nothing" when Jackson first complained of the letter.

Briggs said the investigation took a long time because of efforts to get immunity for a witness, whom Briggs would not name.

Dean Fears For Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted presidential counsel John Dean told Senator Lowell Weicker at a secret meeting that he fears for his life, a qualified source says.

Weicker said he met secretly with Dean for two hours and 45 minutes Thursday but refused to disclose the substance of the talks.

The Connecticut Republican said that Dean gave him "no grounds to go ahead and implicate the president" in connection with the Watergate scandal.

Dean turned over the key to a safe deposit box Friday to Judge John Sirica of U.S. district court and said the box contained confidential documents to be removed from the White House for fear they would be destroyed after Nixon fired him.

Lebanese Ceasefire Violated

BEIRUT (AP) — A ceasefire between Palestinian guerrillas and the Lebanese army entered its second day today with two violations reported outside the capital. Both sides said they had captured members of a "third force" involved in the fighting.

Police informants said four Arabs—not Palestinians and not Lebanese—were apprehended firing at both guerrillas and army troops from a speeding car. Their nationality was not disclosed.

Church Leaders Trade Apologies

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of the United Church of Canada and B'nai B'rith apologized to each other Friday for apparent conflict over the plight of refugees in the Middle East.

The groups said in a statement:

"We in the United Church deeply regret and disavow the insensitivity and the inaccuracies contained in an article by John Nicholls Booth, in the United Church Observer.

"We of the B'nai B'rith deeply regret and repudiate invective as a form of expression and communication."

The dispute centered on United Church charges that Israel mistreated Palestinian refugees and B'nai B'rith counter-charges of anti-semitism.

"We recognize and appreciate the interests of Jews everywhere and of the United Church of Canada in the events in the Middle East and in the survival of Israel," the statement said.

Soldiers Killed In Blast

BELFAST (AP) — Three British soldiers were killed during an explosion and subsequent investigation on a country road in Northern Ireland today, army headquarters said.

The circumstances of the deaths were not immediately known, said a military command spokesman.

Earlier, headquarters had reported one soldier killed when an explosion erupted as a patrol examined a suspicious mound at the side of a road near Crossmaglen, county Armagh. The spokesman said several other soldiers were slightly wounded.

Little more than an hour later came word of the other two deaths.

The incident occurred only a few yards from Northern Ireland's border with the Irish Republic, less than a month after Ulster's known death toll to 103 this year. Thirty-two soldiers have died since January.

Boys Burn Cripple

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Two boys set a crippled shoe shine boy on fire and he burned to death, police in this northeastern Brazilian city said Friday. The victim was Jose Dos Santos, 16. Two boys were in custody in connection with the death.

Consul Kidnapped

GUADALAJARA (AP) — Three leftist terrorists kidnapped U.S. Consul General Terrence G. Leonhardy Friday night and said they will kill him unless the Mexican government frees 30 prisoners and flies them safely to Cuba.

Longest Session Ends

REGINA (CP) — The longest legislative session in Saskatchewan history ended Friday night. The 72 sitting days surpassed by 10 a record that had stood since 1939. The third session of the 17th legislature prorogued after 120 bills had been introduced, many of them controversial. The Liberal party's reaction to most of the legislation was that the NDP government is seeking to grab unprecedented power for itself.

Cancer Study Launched

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Cancer Institute announced Friday it is financing a study on about 100,000 Canadians to determine the possibility of cancer incidents following fluoroscopic examinations for tuberculosis between 1930 and 1952. Dr. A. B. Miller, director of the epidemiology unit of the institute, said the study is of major scientific importance, will take four years to complete and is budgeted for about $200,000. He said one of the reasons for the study was to follow up on a Nova Scotia study which linked fluoroscopic examinations with breast cancer.

It's Open Again

ANGLESEY, Wales (AP) — Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrn Drobwll Antysiliogogogoch is open again. The little railway station with the longest name in the world had been closed in a nationwide economy move by British Rail. But the local town council campaigned successfully for its resurrection on ground of its uniqueness. British Rail said at the reopening ceremony Friday that it sold 50,000 of the station's six inch long tickets last year, despite no one being able to travel there.

Crests Continue

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The Mississippi River is to crest again at Hannibal, Mo., today, the 35th consecutive day of flooding in the river valley. But with pleasant weather holding over much of the flood area from Minnesota to Mississippi, today's river crests and the ones that will follow to the south in the next week are not expected to make matters much worse.

Engineers Sued For Flood Damage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has been accused of causing "hundreds of millions of dollars" damage along the Lake Erie shoreline by not controlling the level of the lake.

A suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court by John E. Goulet of suburban Shaker Heights said the high lake levels are producing an accelerated erosion rate" but that the property damage in future years could reach "catastrophic dimensions."

The suit said that the corps of engineers could control the lake level at the outflow from the Hudson Bay Basin into Lake Superior, at the St. Clair and Detroit River, at the Welland canal, at the Niagara River, the Black Lock and several other places on the Great Lakes.

Goulet, who owns property along the lake, said that the corps of engineers "has expressed some regulation of the flow" of water out of Lake Erie, causing an even higher water level.

Goulet said he wants the court to determine to what extent the army engineers can control or affect the level of the lake.

Trudeau Appears For Election Conscious

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau looked every inch a campaigner yet touched on everything but an election Friday as he opened a two-day meet-the-people swing through four Ontario centres.

Tanned and relaxed after a two-week vacation in Hawaii and Vancouver, he spoke of the work ahead for his minority Liberal government but, at the same time, blasted the Conservatives and New Democrats as if he were on the hustings.

He also appealed to about 700 supporters at a Toronto and District Liberal Association reception to renew their faith in Liberalism and build the party anew as they did in the early 1960s "when we had to get rid of Diefenbaker."

He attributed Liberal election losses to a hasty attitude on the part of his government and said it was a lesson that came close to destroying the spirit of Liberalism in Canada.

As a result, he said, the government has concentrated since last fall on "correcting the application" of reforms it has made in unemployment insurance, immigration, taxation, bilingualism and justice.

Margaret Trudeau, who attended the reception with her husband and mingled and shook hands with guests, left the room suddenly midway through his 20-minute speech.

She stood on the podium behind him when he started his speech but moved later to a nearby table and was escorted out of the room shortly afterward by two aides.

Mr. Trudeau appeared annoyed when asked later in the evening if his wife was ill and said only that he hoped she was all right.

Martin O'Connell, principal secretary to the prime minister, said as far as he knew Mrs. Trudeau merely became uncomfortable under the glare of television lights and nothing serious was wrong.

She is not scheduled to take part in any of the events on Mr. Trudeau's long schedule today, which includes a three-mile walk in the Miles for Millions charity march, a steel mill tour at Hamilton, Ont., a father-and-son hockey banquet at Richmond Hill, north of Toronto, and an evening town meeting at North Bay, Ont.

Mr. Trudeau, his face peeling from a sunburn, said his government is returning to Parliament, which reconvenes Monday, with great expectations.

He said the opposition has provided his minority government since Parliament opened Jan. 4 but hasn't been able to exploit it out of office.

"Everything is in place now, . . . We hope to bring in a substantial part of the remaining legislation that was announced in the speech from the throne."

He did not indicate what measures will not be introduced but Mr. O'Connell said later the statement did not refer to the contentious corporate tax reductions that are opposed by the NDP and have been questioned by the Conservatives.

Two of Six Charged

Described by police as members of a devil's coven, Cindy Black (right) of Toronto and Howard Waellus of Detroit, two of six persons held in connection with the death of 17-year-old Ross Michael Cochran, are escorted to jail in Daytona Beach, Fla., Thursday after preliminary hearings. Cochrane was described by officers as having been strapped to a table and tortured for a day before he was killed. (AP Wirephoto)

Efficiency Cuts Council Debate

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

Efficiency has streamlined lively debate once heard in Prince Edward County's council chambers at Shire Hall to expanse comments forwarded at mini-meetings.

Seasons that in recent years ran for two hours or more have been cut in half through "extended and more thorough committee meetings" closed to press and public.

County Warden Russell Thompson has said, "It's all done in committee and passed by county council. The county council meeting is the wind-up of the month's work."

Committee meetings, according to him, could stretch from two to three hours and minutes of each are forwarded to all councillors prior to general monthly sessions.

Warden Thompson did not consider this year's meetings necessarily shorter than those in former years since a 60-minute session is recorded for 1972.

Council's inaugural meeting in January, 1973, has been reviewed by press and citizens, two of them lasting approximately an hour. The county budget was approved without open debate in March following a caucus meeting where councillors discussed it.

Bloomfield reeve and county warden in 1971, Allan Anderson has observed there is now less debate in council and suggests it could be improved. There are many rookie councillors this term.

He also notes that more comment in past years could be attributable to the fact that "lots of people in our business want to get their names in the paper".

As county warden, reeve Anderson said he opened each meeting with a short address emphasizing matters under discussion. This served to lengthen sessions from 10 to 15 minutes.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce, also a past warden, said committees are "extended and more thorough" and council goes into committee of the whole to discuss points in their reports. This stress on committee activity explains the brevity of general council meetings.

"I think myself we get more actual work done in these committees," he says.

Reeve Boyce comments that this system does reduce discussion for press reports of meetings and adds he would be in full support of any feasible plan to provide reporters with more information stemming from committees meetings when possible.

Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster, warden in 1969, says a great deal of work is done more thoroughly and properly in committees". He notes the Municipal Act makes provision for barring the press from committee meetings but comments that perhaps certain revisions now are needed in this legislation.

Adding that the system of working largely in committees began in 1969, he says agenda adopted in Prince Edward County council the fact it realizes that each committee represents only a small segment of the whole council. Other councillors may find it difficult to debate or discuss committee reports unless they have access to complete background information. Committee reports to council frequently offer only conclusions from the meetings; not all points of view or alternatives are mentioned.

The taxpayer might ask "Are all councillors fully informed when the committee system is emphasized or are they simply rubber stamping committee reports without fully understanding their backgrounds?"

Destined For Disposal

Don Radden, environment ministry employee, paints identification on barrels of nicotine sulphate, salvaged from fire that gutted Brighton's Mac-Pac chemical Work foreman Ralph Jones waits to dispatch sealed chemicals at dump sites in Oshawa and Sarnia for permanent disposal. A ministry official was present to ensure all chemicals — decomposition of which would pose a pollution hazard — were removed.

New Move In Dumping of Ice

Belleville environmentalist Clarence Young who earlier this year charged that the city works department acted against the law when it caused garbage laden ice to be dumped in the inner harbor says he still intends to seek an injunction preventing repeat of the practice.

Mr. Young made this known Friday following a letter from L. G. Smith, engineer with the Ontario Ministry of the Environment.

The claimed depositing of garbage laden ice into the inner harbor resulted late last winter during flood prevention measures taken by the works department.

Ice was channelled from the mouth of the river and was shoved across the entrance to Victoria Park and into the inner harbor.

At the time of his original complaint to city council Mr. Young was assured the city works department had not deliberately dumped garbage on the harbor ice.

It was stated that any garbage which might have ended in the harbor was the result of it having been imbedded in the ice which was channelled from the river.

But Mr. Young carried his complaint to the ministry of wastes branch which resulted in the reply from Mr. Smith.

In his reply however, Mr. South suggested that some of the garbage referred to could have been left by a fisherman. (Generally, however, there are no ice fishermen at that particular spot.)

"It should be appreciated that if the city allowed the ice to remain (in the rivers) and accepted the problems created by subsequent flooding, the refuse on the Moira River ice would eventually be carried to Lake Ontario," wrote south.

Such a course of action, he noted, would not resolve the alleged water pollution and would cause flooding hardship to some individuals.

At the same time Mr. South said his department was not condoning the practice of depositing refuse on the ice and the city was being requested to "take appropriate practical measures" to segregate and satisfactorily dispose of refuse from such removed ice.

He went on to say, however that the department appreciated there would likely be limitations to the amount of refuse which could be segregated.

"A better method of correcting this problem is likely an education of the public and local ice fishermen," the letter said.

Mr. Young feels the department letter substantiates his claim that the city's action in dumping the garbage laden ice was illegal.

"I was definitely right," he said. "They (the city) are against the law. I will intend getting an injunction against the city . . . I fully intend to go through with it."

Mr. Young said he had already been in touch with a Kingston lawyer through an association which provides free legal advice on environmental issues.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey Friday afternoon said she hadn't seen the copy of Mr. South's letter but it has been forwarded to city hall.

"When the letter is received it will be placed on the agenda to be dealt with at the next council meeting," she said.

Will Poll Indians On Reserve Police

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Indians will be asked if they want an all-Indian police force with powers to enforce all provincial, federal and band laws on reserves.

Carl Braet of the Tyendinaga Reserve near Lonon, Ont., told a special two day seminar on Indian policing here Friday that if the response is favorable, a formally written position paper will be presented to the federal Indian affairs department asking for funding for such a force.

Robert Connelly, director of community services with the Indian affairs department, hinted that his department might be willing to consider such a police force.

The Tyendinaga reserve has had its own police officer to act as liason with other local provincial police. Some time ago, a two-man force was created under RCMP supervision and given training at the Ontario Police College.

The Brantford seminar was sponsored by the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians, which represents 20,000 Indians in southern Ontario.

Fire Guts Madoc Barn

TWEED (Special) A tenant farmer's barn near the intersection of highways 7 and 62 just north of Madoc was destroyed by fire about 2:30 Saturday morning.

The barn, owned by area motel operators Clayton and Kenneth Jackson, was a total loss but was insured at the time of the fire.

The Madoc fire department under Lindsay Empey answered the alarm but were unable to save the structure.

Firemen suspected the blaze was caused by a hitchhiker taking shelter in the barn for the night.

London Strike Hits Northern

In a legal strike position since midnight Thursday, 1,700 production and office employees at Northern Electric Co. Ltd.'s London plant walked off the job Friday, three days before the strike deadline that also affects the Belleville plant.

Rene Montagne, acting union plant chairman at London, said hourly rated and salaried employees walked out in support of their bargaining committee, involved in contract negotiations in Toronto.

Earlier, a strike deadline had been set for noon Monday, May 7. Both production and office workers at plants in Belleville, Brantford, Kingston and London were subject to the strike deadline. At that time Tom Freeburn, president of the Belleville plant's office workers Local 1530 of Workers Local 1530, said: "We are looking at a realistic time period to arrive at a settlement based on the number of items outstanding."

Today he said simply "we are still in negotiations."

Mr. Freeburn added that as far as he knew negotiations would continue Saturday and Sunday.

"You will understand it's a very sensitive position at this time," he added, declining further comment.

Local 1530 represents about 150 office workers at the Belleville plant. The 700 production workers are represented at the plant by Local 414 of the Canadian Union of Communication Workers. Certified, they have the exclusive a local number.

The Monday strike deadline was established after receiving the conciliation officer's report following strike votes at the four plants. April 1 saw Local 1530 ask for strike action and the following week, April 8, production workers at Belleville voted over 2-to-1 for strike.

Negotiations have been under way with Northern Electric Co. Ltd. since Jan. 9. The main issues are salary, vacations, job security, job evaluation and pensions.

Regardless of the outcome of the weekend's continuing negotiations, Mr. Freeburn said he would be returning to Belleville from Toronto shortly after the strike deadline at noon, Monday.

Remembrance Service at Synagogue

Members of the Belleville Jewish community on Sunday will recall two epochal events in Jewish history — that of the Holocaust and the founding of the state of Israel.

The event at the Sons of Jacob Synagogue includes a memorial service dedicated to the memory of millions who perished in the Nazi genocide.

Vivid recollections of Nazi concentration camps are instantly recalled when survivors involvement of the Jews is remembered. Millions of European Jews were exterminated. Few of the many interned survived.

Of those who did, six are living in the Belleville area and will light candles in the memory of the dead. Also which also includes many who served with the Allied forces and their role in the Warsaw uprisings in Warsaw and elsewhere.

Sunday's events also include an assembly dedicated to the 25th anniversary of Israeli independence.

Trenton Bureau Plant Water Bill Buried in Words

By IAN ROBERTSON

Picture this if you will.

After months of preparation and official red tape, a new fruit juice processing plant is going up on the edge of Carry-Pail Place Road.

By 1977, FBI will have generated at least 75 jobs' will be produced between 27-28 million worth of juice using 40 giles from the orchards of some of the 250-400 local growers; and will be using supplies of water so generously provided by the town.

But — unless the pretext mire of political wallowing and buck passing stops, the $700-000 bill for these water services may become buried in the bureaucratic red tape and has been labelled "backward" and dark-ness thinking that would not allow any progress in the town.

These statements came from junior Councillor Jonn Bonn, and Councillor Councillor George Greer applauded his colleague's stand. "This is the kind of thing we have had to listen to for years." Councillor Greer said after Dr. Bonn's April 4 objections to Mr. Hilton's views.

Since then the fur has flown thick and furiously. Mr. Hilton has defended his position, Dr. Bonn has found fault with it, and Councillor Jonn's expressed disgust over Mr. Hilton's attitude would seem justified.

Municipalities across Ontario are fighting tooth and nail these days to attract new industry, both for job and tax purposes.

Residents of Trenton, of all people, should know the importance of new industrial blood in the economic lifeblood of the community. In the course of three years in 1972. The closures didn't exploit the economy, but it must more than 150 out of pocs.

If it is within local boundaries, any pioneering of a helping hand should be welcomed — and the hand held aside using as a device that it would be a burden to the ratepayers.

As John Bonn so eloquently put it last month: "Where's no progress without the community pigging."

When Mr. Hilton some time ago predicted there would be increases of up to 50 per cent by 1974, he used as a defence the future cost of the Bayshore Brothers Incorporated water service line. He shot down the argument, that such a service would provide for future developments at that end of the town.

But it was town treasurer Brian Fagan who set things straight during a council meeting. He said even without service to FWI, the PUC would have to raise rates by at least 20 per cent to meet expenses.

He forecast an annual deficit for the PUC tangible from $20,000 to $30,000 by 1977. Work will go ahead on the line, but so far as one has accepted the responsibility of paying.

Picton Decorator Recalls Early Days with A Laugh

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Paperhanger Glendon Minaker has been doing fine in 1928 when he decided to switch specialties.

Employed at Knox Jewellery store in Picton he rejected a suggested trade as a watchmaker in favor of working with his father, a Prince Edward County decorator.

As a young apprentice Mr. Minaker "worked at the board" when on wall papering jobs matching paper. He also gained considerable experience in graining and cracking.

Minaker Decorators worked in homes throughout the county with their busy season starting in early March and running through to December. Most redecorating jobs began when the indoor stores were taken down for the summer.

Glendon Minaker and his father, the late Archibald Minaker, worked for the going wage of the day which was approximately 50 cents an hour. Transportation for out of town jobs usually was provided by the employer.

The in - town transportation system for the decorators' equipment was explained by Mr. Minaker as "my only embarrassment."

Paper boards, ladders and other paraphernalia were loaded on a two-wheeled cart that the young workman was required to drive through the streets from job to job.

Mr. Minaker chuckled as he recalled his next vehicle for conveying the tools of his trade, he purchased an old trailer that in his opinion resembled a fish box which depicted that his embarrassment was at an end. This assumption was contradicted, however when a man on the street stopped him to ask, in all sincerity if he had any fish for sale.

The decorator's life is forever dull and Glendon Minaker can recall amusing anecdotes from his early days in the trade. He and his father were greeted at the door one morning by a sleepy housewife who said she had stayed up half the night trimming the paper to be used by the decorators. As work progressed the paper hangers discovered the edges of the rolls were "haggled" and it was necessary to employ some fancy scissorwork to remedy the woman's blunders.

Another good woman, I with you had gone to bed last night and left your work," said Mr. Minaker's father in exasperation.

Another of one of Picton's early-day paper hangers is effected by Glendon Minaker as an example of "the easy buck". An elderly tradesman who papered by the roll battled his employer by continued requests for additional magenta paper. When the job was finished, the bill, of course, was substantial and the householder in the establishment discovered he had cistern water after the most magnificent magenta hue imaginable.

A decorator's trade is laced with bad times as well as good and Mr. Minaker has recall long trips to Batawa where he and his father painted new houses in early December during the Depression in 1930. The cost for painting each home was $22.

When Archie Minaker died in 1961, his son continued in the family business and with only a few exceptions work-ed alone on each job.

The fish box was replaced with the Minaker mobile, a van that readily accommodated the decorator's tools and ended his embarrassment.

Although Mr. Minaker has worked as a paper hanger and painter for 45 years, he observes that what paper patterns have not changed drastically. There are still flowers and stripes and festoons of flowers as well as other traditional designs. What paper pastes have improved greatly and the decorator is no longer required to stir a paste pot.

He comments that frequently the painter is regaled by passersby as "I wish I could paint as long as I live" or "I'm quitting my mail boxes in Picton one day he prepared a reply for the first "wisecrack" and when asked if he was painting up answered that what Ben Carroll had done for the American female he is doing for the Canadian mail. The wise guy happened to be a reporter and Mr. Minaker's observation appeared in print the next day.

The decorator says women are very easy to work for and he reports he has never had "a serious difference" with a female employer. He defines the tradesman must regard the housewife as an intelligent person who knows her own mind and should avoid "talking down to her". Women know what they want and appreciate communication "on an even keel".

Asked if he is considering retirement in the near future, Mr. Minaker said he feels his work is part of his life and continued employment is an ideal way to keep in the pink mentally and physically.

His philosophy on work often a word of advice to women with fears of marital problems. He observes that most women automatically consider other women the competition for their spouses' attentions, failing to realize that their greatest rivals are their husband's jobs.

A familiar figure in Picton, perhaps Mr. Minaker's best advertisement is the fact that he does not advertise. Work is in demand for his competent workmanship, he travels from job to job in a station wagon bearing no resemblance to the early day vehicles he now recalls with humor.

Ratio Question Tied to Renny

By JENNY WILLIAMSON

The question of pupil-teacher ratio is going to be fore with staff cutbacks occurring all over Ontario.

Every time a writer mentions ratio, he ducks. He knows he will be caught in the crossfire of volleys from both sides — from the teacher and the administrator on one hand and from school boards and their administrators on the other.

For the ratio is an artificial figure, teachers love to argue; it is a statistic and statistics can be manipulated to lie.

It is also an essential formula without which administrators could not plan school staff requirements. It is a rough rule of thumb for comparison purposes. It has a relative value, but is NOT, the total number of students in each teacher's class.

A recent reader-writer took this newspaper to task on the ratio issue and asked for an explanation of how it is determined.

So, here goes:

First, a bit of history.

The ratio simply means the number of students in a given system compared with the number of teachers. Until recently, every school board calculated its ratio in a different way. So a table or province-wide ratio figures was misleading — it compared apples with oranges.

The Ontario Trustees' Council stepped in and worked out a standard formula. This is the one you see quoted when one board's teacher strength is compared with another's.

The total enrolment in secondary and elementary sections is taken on Sept. 30 of a given year. It is compared with the total number of all personnel certificated as teachers in the employment of the given board, again separated into elementary and secondary sections. Also, certain holders of teaching certificates are exempt from inclusion in the total. Some of these (the entire list is too complicated for anyone but an administrator to understand) are: directors of education, superintendents, psychological service personnel and social welfare workers on school staffs. All paraprofessionals such as teachers' aides and audio-visual technicians count as a half teacher.

So far, so good. It is easily seen that many people who never face a classroom are included in the ratio. That's what bothers teachers. Principals, vice - principals, librarians, guidance personnel, some paraprofessionals and a scattering of others count in the ratio. On this basis, the pupil - teacher ratio in Hastings county secondary schools this academic year was 16.98 to 1.

Every classroom teacher knows he has more than 16.99 kids in each of his classes. The true ratio is more like 27.5, often merely depending on the contingencies of timetabling. But do parents and ratepayers realize this? That's what gets teachers' dander up when ratios are mentioned.

Just to complicate the issue further, Hastings county calculates its ratio on an individual school basis. Its 17 to 1 ratio, to be upped to 18 to 1 next year, counts principals, regular classroom teachers, special education teachers, co-ordinators, department heads (who teach fewer periods than do regular teachers) library and guidance personnel and some paraprofessionals. Excluded are the director, superintendents, consultants and co-ordinators of special programs, all of whom are qualified teachers.

In other words, pupil-teacher ratio and average class size are two different things. When this newspaper reports, as it did this week, that the ratio in Cloyne is 11 to 1, compared to Hastings' 17 to 1, the obvious Cloyne must have fewer pupils in each class than does Hastings.

This discussion has involved only secondary schools. Elementary school teachers like to point out that their ratio is higher — 23.5 to 1 here.

The most significant figure is average class size. In grades 1 to 8 it is 23.5 in regular elementary school classes. In special education classes the average size is 20 and in kindergarten the average class is 20 pupils, each attending a half day, so each teacher has 40 pupils. Elementary school teachers like to point out that they spend 100 per cent of their teaching day with pupils. Secondary school teachers, with their spare periods, average 80 per cent of the day teaching.

Although the secondary teacher of academic subjects has 27.5 or more pupils in each class, the technical teacher will have 20 next year (up from the 18 of this year) and the special education teacher will have 18.

Two more statistics will finish off the ratio question once and for all.

The Hastings county is would be necessary to hire 32 additional secondary teachers to drop the ratio one point, say from 18 to 1 to 17 to 1. Hiring an additional 32 elementary school teachers would reduce that ratio by one point.

Travel Advisors To Visit

A tour of eastern Ontario by about 50 senior travel counsellors will include a brief visit to Belleville, and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce has been asked to sponsor a request that the city provide a luncheon for them.

In a letter to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the Ministry of Industry and Tourism asked for the financial participation of the City of Belleville. The letter, signed by J. G. Reid of the ministry, said that the counsellors would include representatives from the major oil company touring services, the Ontario Motor League, the Canadian Automobile Association, the New York State Thruway Association, the City of Montreal, the Province of Quebec, the Canadian Government Travel Bureau and the Ministry's own Travel Information Centres from head office and border crossing points.

The tour is limited to the Ottawa-St. Lawrence - Lake Ontario area and municipalities are being asked to assume the local costs of looking after the counsellors. After touring Ottawa, Upper Canada Village and Kingston, the group would arrive in Belleville from Picton on June 5.

Wednesday's board meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce referred the letter to City Council for consideration.

Spring is cleanup time. Like homemakers, cities house clean in the spring. Our Public Works Department has been busy for a number of weeks, cleaning streets, sidewalks and picking up debris collected by residents during the winter.

Generally, I think our city looks great! But there are always a few places which sometimes are neglected. On Sunday I drove on Great St. James — an old attractive secluded residential street. I was shocked by the litter that has collected once again on the tree-lined side hill. Last year a group of cadets worked several weeks cleaning up part of this area. Classes of students from Queen Victoria School who took such an interest in this escarpment gave many volunteer hours picking up paper and glass. Today, the same area is littered again and what "could be a beauty spot" is not preserved in the centre of our city with its natural setting, birds and wild flowers is once again covered with debris. Your city's many dedicated staff and volunteer citizens can only do so much. Children, youths and adults have to do their share too. The Board of Parks Management and City Council have indicated their wish to preserve this area in its natural state as a habitat for wild life. Someone is responsible for the litter! I ask who and why? Surely it is not asking too much to expect people to dispose of litter in waste receptacles.

So let's clean up and by working together make our city the cleanest little city in Eastern Ontario.

The Ontario Government through its Ontario Development Corporation has made it possible for Belleville to acquire a few acres of factory in Standard Paper Box. The $500,000 performance bond which the corporation will be used in the construction and equipping the plant. Durable Ltd. will also open a plants here. Mr. Bernis, Industrial Commission, and Council are delighted that these two new industries will be establishing in Belleville and will employ some 50 people.

Dogs barking and running at large continues to cause complaints. Dogs must be licensed and cannot run at large. Dogs barking and left tied outside while their owners are away can cause considerable nuisance to those adjoining hooks. Respect for the rights and wishes of others could solve this problem very quickly.

Detailed engineering plans are now proceeding on the Cannifton Road overpass and the Pinnacle Street bridge and road extension. The detailed plans will be ready by fall. Those, whose lands may be needed for these projects will know then, exactly, what properties will have to be acquired. Property purchases will begin in early 1974 for the Pinnacle Street bridge project.

Several weeks ago I attended the Annual National Prayer Breakfast in Ottawa. It was an inspiring experience to join many federal members of Parliament and other civic leaders from across Canada at the prayer breakfast and the workshop session where we discussed how we can use religious beliefs and faith and the important part it plays in our lives. I hope with the assistance of Mrs. Donally, the deputy-reeve of Tudor and Cashel, to arrange a similar event here for the civic leaders of this area when County Council meets in session this fall.

Thoughts of Travel

Getting away from it all for members of the Canadian cabinet does not often embrace the scenic attractions of their own and our own vast land. Almost to a man, over the Easter recess, they have been jetting off to faraway places, from Bermuda to Spain, not to mention south to Florida and even Peru, while a couple of ministers also made selling trips to Moscow and Peking.

Possibly there are extenuating circumstances for the men in Government. After all, how can you shed your public image and the cares of office if even in some remote hamlet in darkest Saskatchewan or B.C. you run the risk of being recognized, and being either lionized or given the old heave-ho, according to what sort of a job you have been doing in Ottawa.

One at least may have regarded his vacation as a busman's holiday of sorts, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien being the minister who went to Peru where of course the population has a strong Indian strain.

Anyway, here we have Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie off to England and Belgium for talks with his counterparts there — and this after a recent week in Bermuda. Mr. Gillespie, while off in the wild blue yonder nevertheless must make a show at least of extolling Canada as a vacation land, for on his return he will be piloting the increased holiday-in-Canada budget (some $17 million) through the Commons.

Indeed recently he was quoted as saying that a concerted effort must be made to utilize the great attractions the country offers the year round.

And get this: "We have some of the best winter sports in the world, lovely fall scenery and a spring that can be outdone by no other country . . . "

Spring, which Mr. Gillespie admits is a "shoulder season," along with autumn, to our way of thinking is our least engaging seasonal attraction. Sure it is good to know winter is past and there is better to come, but what can we point to right now in our own area that might give a lift to the spirit? Some years ago there was a heat wave with sunny skies in April, but today all we see is rain and swamped beaches.

Britain and Europe are the places to be in spring when cherry blossoms and all the other signs of growth that are so generous and swift of appearance over there may be enjoyed. We are not knocking our spring, only suggesting it is a little late and cruel, and that the other seasons are this country's best trumps when it comes to attracting folks here.

Seasonal Gloom

There has been something profoundly depressing about the prolonged spell of bad weather this spring. We say "has been" because after all conditions have nowhere to go but up (improve, that is) and, indeed, the forecast as we write is for better things to come. And even if that is false we can always think about the heatwave that hit this area at the end of April a few years ago.

It is tough on our fashion-conscious young women who must be in a dilemma what to wear and even harder on girl-watchers jaded by long months of sombre winter garb. Maybe this is the inspiration for a Toronto bank's decision to have all its young female tellers wear miniskirts at work. Here is an outfit that has never completely lost its appeal since British designer Mary Quant first ventured it nearly a decade ago. It remains as aesthetically attractive as any conceived down the fashion years.

Legality Questioned

So it has happened, as inevitably it would when someone decided to stand up for his rights. Or, as in this case, "their" rights.

The decision in London to extend its have refused to pay the new 7 per cent sales tax because it has not yet been passed by the Ontario legislature. She also refused to accept the sales office's offer to reduce the cost of her purchase to offset the extra tax.

It is surely an unsatisfactory situation when a Government requires stores to collect the tax even though its legality remains suspect. Final approval is seen as a matter of course, but nevertheless the feeling remains that the Government's action, aside from its questionable legality, has the stamp also of wanting its cake and eating it.

And . . . An Olympic Stamp for 10 Cents

"Humanization" of the UIC Will Cost Extra $14 Million

By HENRY F. HEALD

OTTAWA — Parliament Hill does not just die when the MPs go home for a vacation, but the pace becomes a little more sedate. The government usually manages to give the impression of some housework to do while fence-mending in their constituencies; and throws in a few post-session news conferences to keep the pot boiling for the press gallery.

On the basis of what has happened since the Commons recessed for Easter, there should be some lively question period when the session resumes next week.

Both Manpower Minister Robert Andras and Postmaster General Andre Ouellet chose the first day of the recess to announce major plans for their department. That in itself is usually enough to raise the hackles of the Opposition and bring charges of bypassing Parliament.

Mr. Andras' announcement that the Unemployment Insurance Commission was being reorganized was something of a victory for humanity. It was a confession that the electronic brain has some limitations and that in dealing with human problems, another human is still the best way.

Part of the reorganization is the establishment of more offices so that the unemployed, who need personal attention, don't have to travel to large centrally - located impersonal offices — some of which have been handling 40,000 applicants at a time. There will also be a specific contact person with whom each unemployed applicant will deal.

If it works as Mr. Andras says it is supposed to work, it should eliminate a lot of complaints coming into MPs offices, for which they no doubt will be grateful. But the catch is that it is going to cost the taxpayer another $14-million a year.

The other part of the re-organization was not mentioned by Mr. Andras. That came the next day when the prime minister's office announced that J. M. Desroches, deputy minister of manpower and immigration, was to become deputy minister of supply and services. The move was described as a lateral shift of personnel, but it is clearly a move to get rid of the author of that controversial memo which instructed manpower offices to give job preference to those drawing benefits.

His replacement, Allan Gotlieb, former deputy minister of communications, has a reputation as a good administrator with a background in law and human rights.

Mr. Ouellet's announcement got buried by the coverage given to the unemployment insurance plan, but when the messages seeps through, the poor old post office department will get it in the neck again.

When Prime Minister Trudeau announced that the government had agreed to help finance the 1976 Olympics through special stamps, most people assumed that the post office would bring out Olympic commemorative stamps and the profit from the sales — instead of going to the federal treasury — would go to the Olympics. And since the stamps would be popular with collectors, many would be sold that would never be used for postage.

But no, nothing as simple as that. We are to be asked, apparently to pay 10 cents for an 8-cent stamp if mail is better. The extra two cents is our contribution to the Olympics. Of course the prime minister is hoping in two cents for the Olympics, we can bet on another eight-cent stamp with a picture of the Queen on it. Or we may even be able to buy an Olympic stamp without the two-cent surcharge.

Mr. Ouellet said he was sure the stamps will raise the expected $4-million for the Olympics. But how much will the selling surcharged stamps cost the post office department; and what effect will it have on an already shaky mail service?

Mr. Ouellet better have good answers ready when the opposition MPs open fire on that one.

Other cabinet ministers too, should be briefing themselves for opposition questions. Editor - General Warren Allmand can expect a blast over the Canadian prisoners in the economic Expansion Minister Don Jamieson may get some questions about a science council report that argues that industry can not solve the regional development problem on its own. And another private research firm has come up with yet another view on how the North should be developed.

That should be enough to keep until the new consumer price index and the unemployment figures come out.

Quebec Press View of Social Welfare Conference

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Devoir: Marc Lalonde, federal health and welfare minister, said in his social opening speech at the social welfare ministers' conference in Ottawa that everyone must think first of improving the living conditions of their citizens before laying too much stress on the extension of their respective empires.

Indeed this spirit should inspire the work of the ministers. However, pleasant generalities must be put aside quickly to tackle concrete questions. We should, as Claude Castonguay noted, come back to the sharing of responsibilities between the two levels of government.

Then we will be able to establish whether the new spirit which seems to be blowing over the federal capital is something other than a mirage.

The federal government . . . advocates two measures, for example, which would undoubtedly be capital elements of the new social security system: A general revenue supplement for persons with an insufficient revenue and a guaranteed income for those incapable of working.

Neither the general income guaranteed revenue mentioned by Mr. Lalonde will be universal or automatic. By their very nature such systems would be selective, not universal.

The benefits derived from these systems would be accessible only to citizens capable of proving they have a right to them.

Now, as soon as we think of the concrete administration of selective guaranteed income programs, it falls under the provinces' direction as they are more competent than the central government to assure its efficient and economic progression, being much closer to citizens and families.

Will the federal government be prepared to recognize this?

Should the social welfare ministers' conference result only in endorsing the federal plan of family allowance increases, it would win much praise for thousands of Canadian families.

However, we will have dodged the fundamental problems which should have been tackled by a conference called to give way to a complete revision of all social security in Canada.

Before consenting to concessions on any one issue, in particular family allowances, Claude Castonguay first of all should verify the true spirit of his federal interlocutors. . . .

Ottawa Le Droit: In French Canada, we complain with reason about the small number of French-Canadian firms.

We become justifiably indignant when a business industry owned by French-Canadians passes into the hands of English-Canadians or Americans.

All commercial and industrial firms must live if we want French Canada to own more and more of its industry and commerce. Unfortunately, each time a business prospers foreign capital desires it and often takes it over.

The opposite also is true. If a firm is in danger, foreigners buy it at low cost and make it a success.

The commercial or industrial failure of French-Canadian businessmen is to be admitted, often occurs because they are not supported by the French-speaking community.

We all know of many examples and collectively we are all guilty.

In Hull, for example, for several months three theaters under one roof have been showing international masterpieces and the best films of the French repertory . . . and the halls are never filled.

Yet there is not one nationalist, especially not one separatist, who does not wish to see Quebec prosper.

How many Hull nationalists, how many patriots in the region, visit these French-Canadian theatres? Very few, as the regular customers can testify. . . . Our good customers go elsewhere.

They probably will support the establishment when it passes into the hands of large American companies who control almost all the theatres in Canada including Quebec.

Faced with such indifference, we say that true nationalism is not running about the streets.

What we say for this establishment goes for all French-Canadian businesses in Hull.

Sherbrooke La Tribune: The Canadian population for many years has been accustomed to federal-provincial controversies in all the fields of public administration.

In this horde of conflicts . . . one appears a glimmer of hope: "A debate under the sign of reason and cordiality" in the words of Mr. Lalonde.

The ministers' discussion on social security can well be a cornerstone in the drawing up of a new form of Canadian unity, in the context of a less uncompromising central government.

The meeting was the prelude to a study on the possibilities of applying a system of guaranteed minimum income in Canada. . . . The thrust to be analysed form a remarkable synthesis of many of the opinions uttered on the subject and add to Quebecers' satisfaction.

Indeed, the identity of outsiders in so serious [illegible] might believe this study had been ordered by Claude Castonguay himself.

This was the chief element which led Quebec's social welfare minister to modify his attitude towards the federal government.

For the first time, before leaving for Ottawa Mr. Castonguay spoke of a possible climate of conlvicnce and understanding between the provinces and the central government.

This meeting that becomes a true easing of federal-provincial relations because of the absence of cursor, but especially because of the truly positive attitudes that each wants to show.

It probably would be in the interests of the other fields of governmental administration, communications, Indian affairs, natural resources, etc., to draw inspiration from Mr. Lalonde's ideology.

Then maybe we could speak of a real renewal in Canadian federalism.

For the moment, we can draw satisfaction from this meeting and state that it is still possible to advance and construct the future in a relaxed climate between the federal and the provincial.

Granby La Voix de l'Est: Judging by the goodwill animating the provincial health and welfare ministers, Claude Castonguay, the federal health minister will be able to present his proposed legislation increasing family allowances . . . to the Commons before the holiday season.

The federal-provincial conference called to study Mr. Lalonde's important working paper took place in perfect harmony. . . . There are certainly other aspects of the social security program which will not be dealt with in the mail, but because this document is far more positive than previous ones, no serious opposition is foreseen.

From Mr. Castonguay we cannot hide his satisfaction. Now, for him to be satisfied, the document must surely answer Quebec's needs in the field of social security.

These new allowances will contribute to improving the situation of the Canadian family, even if they are taxable.

The federal minister says it may be possible to get the proposed legislation adopted in the fall so that Canadians can benefit from the allowances next Jan. 1. Let's hope Mr. Lalonde succeeds.

Log Book Questions

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The members of the Opposition is the provincial legislature have a check asking to see such sensitive documents as Lake log books.

Such trivialities do not sit well with Premier William Davis. Both he and his cabinet colleagues are very flight-minded men as far as their log stories we read.

His tactfulness in producing the log books may be attributed to his respect for public feelings. After all the Premier was elected on a platform promising to "do things for people". I suspect he is only bowing to his promise. It just isn't nice to upset the voters with revelations of tails of trips to Cuba and other such tourist traps.

Premier Bill and his "boys" really don't have it so bad. What with all these pipe line conflict of interest issues, the ignance Workmen's Compensation Board matter, the party donations and now, drat it, the awkward log book affair, they're entitled to a little relaxation. But with all this worries, the voters ought to forgive the fellows a junket here and there away from it all. What if they do use the Government aircraft these days? When you run out of money just pick up some more, or so they tell. Mike the sales tax another two percent. There is plenty more where that came from.

Church-select Movies Not Overtly Religious

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the major religious organizations pick their movie fare, it usually is not overtly religious.

What we're looking for are films that, from the standpoint of the Judeo-Christian perspective, illuminate the human condition," says Rev. Dr. William Fore, head of an interdenominational film commission.

"It is through man's response to other men that we see God's action in life."

By such criteria, the three branches of faith joined in making their 1972 Intercollegiate Film Awards to two motion pictures, The Emigrants, a story of a family newly come to the United States, and Sounder, a portrayal of a poor black youngster's achievement of dignity through his parent's love.

"Our primary concern is not for consciously religious films, but for those that bring out authentic human values," says Richard Hirsch, associate director of the Film and Broadcasting Division of the United States Catholic Conference.

Hirsch said the movie industry's efforts at ostensibly religious movies ordinarily distort the point.

"The end of the problem is that they try to visualize profound qualities that are not easily visualized, and the effect usually ends up in the disaster area."

Catholicism and the major Protestant and Orthodox denominations of the National Council of Churches have jointly picked movies since 1966. The Synagogue Council of America, representing all three branches of Judaism, began participating in 1972.

Hirsch said religious distinctions cause no problems in selecting the film choices representatives of the different groups all make their evaluations with a Judeo-Christian framework on kindred premises.

Dr. Fore, head of the Protestant-Orthodox agency, says in his part, there are not considerable complaints from some church people about honoring certain films without mentioning God. Another bypassing those that were specifically religious.

This was particularly the case in the mid-1960s when religious groups singled out Bonnie and Clyde and What's Afraid of Virginia Woolf as depicting harsh truths about life, while bypassing Hollywood spectacles such as The Bible and The Greatest Story Ever Told.

"But I think it now has become clear that the churches don't see faith as compartmentalized in an insular 'religious' category," Dr. Fore adds. "What we want are films that offer insights into the whole society, that say something seriously to it."

Sikhs Gather to Clean Golden Temple's Pond

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Devout Sikhs from around the world have converged on Amritsar City for what is described as the largest sacred operations in Sikh history."

This is the renovation of the sacred Golden Temple which has been a centre of Sikh culture and religion for years. The major part of the renovation work pertains to the desilting of the shrine's holy pond.

While a helicopter showered rose petals on the devotees, Sikh priests started removing the silt with spades made of gold. Among the elected operators including Giani Zail Singh, the president of Punjab State, lent a helping hand.

The city of Amritsar in North India wears a festive appearance with the streets decorated, and hundreds of modern vehicles decked with flowers and school children dancing in the streets throughout the day.

Slogans such as "We will make our Golden Temple a place of joy" and "Let us be worthy of Sikh traditions" are written on banners in the city.

At least a dozen Sikh families who have made fortunes in United States are taking part in the temple renovation ceremony which is being performed for several weeks.

Sardar Harbans Singh has come from British Columbia with his wife and three children. He immigrated to Canada more than 20 years ago.

Many Canadian, American and British tourists including at least 30 hippies have arrived in Amritsar to witness the operation. Some of the hippies are also taking part in the desilting work.

Sikh religious circles expect about 300,000 volunteers to participate in the project by turns. It is the ambition of every Sikh family to send at least one family member to help in the work which is supposed to be a great act of piety.

A report received by the Sikh community in Bombay said at least 50 Sikh families are to arrive in Bombay en route to Amritsar from Canada, the United States and Britain in the next few weeks.

Sikhs in Britain seem to be the most enthusiastic among members of the community selected abroad. This is because of close and continuing ties they have with their home country.

Sikhs in Canada and the United States appear to be less in touch with their religious compatriots in India.

As Sardar Harbans Singh put it: "There are thousands of Sikhs in Britain and this makes it easy for them to maintain their cultural identity and their connection with the home country. But the Sikhs in Canada and California are not so numerous. Occasions like the convocation of the Golden Temple help to remind us of our cultural heritage but the young people in our community are rapidly becoming Canadianized and Americanized."

Church Hall Is Used For Roller Skating

By The Canadian Press

At the Slovak Roman Catholic Church of Saints Cyril and Methodius in Toronto, weekly entertainment in the church hall is somewhat more active than praising Allah on a number-bred card.

Since January it has been the scene of Sunday afternoon roller-skating parties, which have attracted youngsters and their parents from suburban Scarborough and as far away as Oakville, Ont., 35 miles distant.

The concept of a roller arena in the church hall was the inspiration of Ed Chmayer, 41, parish organist for 15 years.

Mr. Chmayer, an insurance agent, says his highly-successful promotion is "one way of making sure our kids stay off the streets and out of trouble."

The men as well are decided to start roller skating every Sunday for the whole family," he said.

Attitude of Inspiration Product of Adoration

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

The opening two chapters of the Book of Ezekiel describe in picturesque language attitudes of mind that occur in the experience of religion. The first is the attitude of adoration. The second is the attitude of inspiration.

First a person bows in worship before the glory of the Lord; then God says "Stand upon your feet and I will speak with you." First there is preparation, receptivity, prayer; then there is expectancy, alertness, obedience. First the eyes are closed before the splendor of God's glory; then they are opened to do God's will. The passage is a picture of the complete religious life.

Many people fancy, on the other hand, that religion is merely passively expressed in conduct. To work is to pray," they say. "Why waste time in worship when we need our energies for the real job? Of course a change to equip us for work has been done!" Here also the prophet's example recognizes truth, for it had not stood upon his feet to undertake a challenging mission to the nation, he would have been in vain.

But in this ancient picture the full disclosure of God to man is made only when adoration and inspiration are blended and worship quickens the conscience. Revelation reaches us. Opportunities are preceded by visions. Service is upheld by worship. David S. H. MacDonald, a Tory, and T. C. Douglas, a Socialist, ever clash in debate in the House of Commons. But, as clergymen, they are in pulpit mood. Sunday proclaiming the same gospel, even motivates them to serve him differently on week days, according to their particular convictions.

An individual enters church, consciously weak and seeking guidance. He bows before the glory of the Lord. In an act of homage he is raised for action. A voice says, as in a mystery, "Son of man, stand upon your feet, and I will speak with you." In a call to worship he responded to what is deepest inside the human soul. Now he is ready for some such commissioning as the People's Service Book includes:

The one that personally stirs me most of all is as follows, "Christ within you, the hope of glory to come. Go into the world with a daring and tender love. The world is waiting. Go in peace. And all that you do, do it for love, and by the Spirit of Jesus who is the Lord."

Anglicans Will Be More Democratic

REGINA (CP) — The 26th general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada will be "more democratic than ever before," says Most Rev. Edward Scott of Toronto, primate of the church.

He told a news conference Thursday night that even before he became primate he and 2 million Anglicans he promised himself to work for "greater inputs from all levels of the church."

But there must be some "boundaries rules" and certain issues should be dealt with by those "who are better trained to deal with them."

Archbishop Scott said this synod is "unique" in that only minimum of resolutions will come from the national church.

"We have set up group sessions which will discuss the issues before the synod and present resolutions to the plenary sessions."

The governing policy for the conference is grassroots involvement, he said.

The primate amplified his call for democratic processes in church work in his opening address later to more than 300 delegates attending the nine-day synod.

"We do not have the right nor the responsibility to plan for other levels, although we need the assurance that the decisions we make will have an influence upon other levels of the church."

He asked delegates to "talk openly and frankly" in discussing issues, including possible priesthood for women, proposed church union with two other churches to form the Church of Christ in Canada, abortion, church work in the north and better pensions for the clergy.

The service was also attended by Anglican bishops from Puerto Rico and England, and representatives of the other MAJOR Christian faiths.

Betty Grafton of Toronto, prolocutor, presented an address to the Queen, and Lt.-Gov. Stephen Worobetz of Saskatchewan replied that he hoped this first Anglican general synod held in Saskatchewan will be able to find some answers to today's church problems.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

OUR CITY ON THE BAY: 1909.

"But times do change and move continually."
— Edmund Spenser.

* * *

Are there any industrial plants or factories in Belleville today which were in operation back in 1909?

A reference to The Daily Intelligencer's Special Industrial Souvenir which gives "a comprehensive review of the Natural Advantages and resources of Belleville, together with historical reviews of those representative concerns and biographical sketches of prominent men that have materially assisted in placing this community in a high position in the Industrial commercial and social world," reveals:

"When men of enterprise, up-to-date business methods and integrity undertake to establish a business, they are pretty sure to succeed, and when these characteristics are coupled with an aptitude for hard work and stickativeness, success is bound to crown their efforts.

"The Deacon Shirt Company of Belleville, established in 1903 by the present proprietors, Mr. W. B. Deacon, president, and Mrs. F. S. Deacon, secretary treasurer, is an example of this. In less than six years, they have gained a reputation for excellence of work, which brings practical and satisfactory results in the way of orders from all over the Dominion.

"This company guarantees prompt and careful attention to every order, whether large or small. They manufacture men's and boys' shirts of all kinds, as well as boys' shirtwaists.

"The large factory of brick and stone occupying ground spaces of 70 by 85 feet on Coleman Street, affords employment for 70 skilled workers, as well as a number of outside employees.

"Both Mr. W. B. Deacon and Mr. F. S. Deacon were born in Belleville, and have grown up with the city, taking always a lively interest in its welfare.

"Mr. F. S. Deacon is Secretary of the Belleville Board of Trade and an active worker on that body.

Messrs. John W. and Fred H. respective sons of Messrs. W. B. Deacon and F. S. Deacon assumed responsibility of the company over the ensuing years. Today the Deacon Brothers Sportswear, Ltd. located at 121 Dundas East, is operated by Mr. Fred B. Deacon, President, and Mr. Don Deacon, Vice President and Eric J. Deacon, designer, sons of the late Mr. Fred H. Deacon.

Vera Morphy has represented the area on the Ontario Government's Women's Advisory Committee. Last week she was retired at a Toronto conference after serving for a customary term of office. Speakers at the conference included Ontario Minister Margaret Birch and businesswoman Marguerite Hale.

Advisory Committee 'Could Do More'

Vera Morphy retired from the Ontario government's Women's Advisory Committee last week with mixed feelings about the agency and its function in the communities.

Mrs. Morphy, who represented this region for a customary appointed term, found her experiences with the committee rewarding in several ways.

"One of the most interesting things is meeting women from across the province. Each woman is so uniquely proud of her own area. The members are extremely concerned and active women in their own community."

Like other members of the committee, Mrs. Morphy was appointed largely because of her active role in the community. She conducts the local Ability Fund campaign, is a member of the Task Force supervising the nursing school changeover to Loyalist College and is deeply involved in the local Cheshire Home project.

Last year, Mrs. Morphy conducted a day-long women's conference in Belleville. It was, as in other areas, the major activity of the Advisory Committee at the local level.

And like other conferences, a highlight of the conference was a showing of the Reeve Award - winning fashions.

"It's a marvelous chance to see Ontario fashions," Mrs. Morphy points out, "but there is more to a conference than a fashion show."

"When we held our conference I felt the speakers left their mark," she says, "but I like to feel we did more locally."

While Mrs. Morphy stresses the organization "is certainly not a women's liberation-type movement" she would like to see the Committee function more as an educator, particularly in consumerism.

"At this level, I'd like to see more women involved. The Committee could function quite effectively as a clearinghouse for consumer information and it could handle consumer complaints."

Mrs. Morphy says she would like to see members of the Committee used in their own areas as speakers to disseminate information to women's organizations.

As it is, the Advisory Committee's budget is largely spent on conferences around the province. What the budget is, exactly, however, has never been made known to the members.

There are questions that haven't been asked — or answered," Mrs. Morphy says.

She stresses the committee does perform good services, but adds, "I don't think it does enough."

Consumerism Costly, Conference Told

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers should consider their demands in the light of their effects on prices and choice, Marguerite Hale of Ottawa said Wednesday.

As an example, she said whenever a new regulation or a change in formula calls for a change in the list of ingredients on a bread bag, it costs her firm $495 for the new printing plates.

"We have had to spend $15,000 in printing-plate changes just in this past year."

Mrs. Hale is director of consumer services for Alcrison-Lamothe Foods Ltd., in Ottawa. She was one of several speakers discussing women's responsibility in a changing world at the annual provincial conference for women.

The conference is sponsored by the ministry of industry and tourism.

Mrs. Hale said if small pastry shops have to seal products and list ingredients, the cost would force them out of business.

"The question needs to be asked, does the listing of ingredients on the package serve a purpose that warrants the extra costs?

"Why not have the government approve the formula but police it? They do this in the drug industry."

Hayes Smith, chairman of the American Farm Bureau Federation, defended food costs in the United States and said:

"Now, belatedly, our consumers are learning that, during the last 20 years (in the U.S.), farm prices have gone up only six per cent, while average wages have gone up 194 per cent, farm taxes up 227 per cent, housing costs up 79 per cent."

Margaret Birch, Ontario minister without portfolio responsible for the youth secretariat, said women now have an opportunity to widen the range of their influences and activities and must do so.

"Use that influence and you will find that younger women will become interested and will join you."

Licence to Bear Children Predicted for Canadians

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto psychiatrist predicts that married couples of the future will require a licence to raise children.

Speaking to a group of housewives, Dr. Daniel Capon, professor of environmental studies at York University, said the day is coming when parents will be restricted to two children—one from their first marriage and one from a subsequent marriage.

"Marriage as we have known it is on the way out," he said, adding that fidelity among husbands and wives is becoming increasingly ignored.

Dr. Capon said a marriage licence is no deterrent to infidelity, as the new morality "demands freedom and openness."

But he further predicted that the age of "the new morality" will evolve—possibly by the next generation—into an age of puritanism.

Those people will be "squarer than Victorians," he said, and will oppose drugs, smoking, drinking and "sins of all kind."

He said this new generation will favor marriage, stability, judicial killing, law and order and corporal punishment."

Ann Landers

Kids A Handicap For Parents' Trip Abroad

Dear Ann Landers: Who would have dreamed that after nearly 30 years of raising children I would need help, but I do here goes:

My husband is a professor. We are both nearly 50 and have three teen-agers. My husband has a chance next year to enjoy a sabbatical abroad. He has been accepted to work and study in a distinguished institute. It is an honor and an opportunity to advance his career.

We cannot afford to take all three children, but we expected the two older ones to be in college, which would have been ideal. Now—the problem. Our number one son's grades just dropped below the required level and he has lost his free tuition privilege. The next child refuses even to consider college. Both tried drugs last year but claim they have quit.

By next fall both will be 18, which is the legal majority in our state. Tact, maturity is another thing. So is parental concern. What should we do?—Graying Mom

Dear G.M.: Your husband should not allow the kids to loose up a wonderful opportunity. I have a hunch that if he sacrificed the year abroad for them, nothing would be gained by it. Moreover, he'd harbor the resentment for a long time to come. And so would you. My advice is to borrow the money and take them all.

Dear Ann Landers: I married this man eight years ago. Our first mates died a few years ago. I had no children. My husband has four—all married.

We are so happy together. Ann. He's a kind and loving person and treats me beautifully. The problem is something I am ashamed to speak of, but I must. His children milk him for everything they can get. Of course he doesn't see this, but I do. Naturally, I have never said a word. I'm afraid if he goes first I would not have enough to live on. He refuses to make a will. I'm sure his children would not be kindly disposed toward looking after me.

I have always been a housewife and don't know what I could do to support myself. I've mentioned this to him but he refuses to budge. What shall I do? —Lost

Dear S.: This problem calls for drastic measures. My advice is to tell him you must find yourself employment—any kind of a job—so you will not be on the street if he should die before you. Then do it. My guess is that he won't let you work long before he goes to a lawyer and does what should have been done years ago.

Dear Ann Landers: I am upset with that letter signed "Don't Call Me." It's about "yakking housewives" who call up their friends who work all day and keep them on the phone for hours.

I'm a "yakking housewife" who spends a good part of my day "doing things" for women who work—like taking care of their dry cleaning, accepting packages, walking dogs, picking up children at school.

I am the only woman on this block who is home all day and I have to yak on the phone at least an hour every night to relay messages and tell them what went on in their homes all day. Please sign me—Mrs. Had It in Urbana

Dear Had: Take that and that and that—you jogwise! Now are you sorry you complained?

The Experts Say

We Like Opera—Especially Warhorses

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians have a definite taste for opera—"and damn good ones they do," says Peter Symcox, producer-director for the CBC French-language network.

"Their taste for opera is increasing yearly and there is a tremendous interest out west as shown by the success of the Manitoba, Edmonton and Vancouver opera companies," he said in an interview.

Mr. Symcox also used the example of the Canadian Opera Company in Toronto which has expanded its season to six productions next year and the success of the Opera du Quebec, founded in 1971.

For television, "I'm afraid we have to stick with the old 'warhorses' such as operas by Puccini and Verdi," he said.

Even the stage companies build their seasons around the old favorites and seem reluctant to try such modern operas as those by composer Benjamin Britten.

"New York audiences, on the other hand, are more sophisticated and more willing to see more modern material," said Mr. Symcox, who also produces and directs productions for stage companies in Canada and the United States.

For those opera buffs who are a little weary of the old "warhorses" such as Puccini's Madame Butterfly, Mr. Symcox recommended they turn to the Britten operas.

"He's probably one of the greatest modern opera composers," said Mr. Symcox, who is currently involved in a production of Britten's The Burning, Fiery Furnace for the CBC.

For those who appreciate home-grown talent, Mr. Symcox suggested a few Canadian opera stars to watch for: Joseph Rouleau, bass; Claude Corbeil, bass; Bernard Turgeon, baritone; Louis Quilico, baritone, and Heather Thompson, soprano.

There's a great deal of difference between producing an opera for the stage and staging one for television, he said.

"It takes me about an hour to 'block' or plan one page of opera music for television—and when you consider there are between 295 and 395 pages in an opera score, that's a lot of hard work."

He explained that singers and cameras have to be co-ordinated along with lights and microphones so that if a singer moves, he doesn't stray from the microphones or move into shadow.

Successful Living

Make Time to Make Friends

Make Time To Make Friends

Modern life has such a busy pace! Often, there just doesn't seem to be time for the social contacts we would like. We time to give that dinner party, have another couple in for an evening, or even to ask a neighbor over for a cup of coffee.

Then the day comes when the busy ones realize they have made very few friends! They've been so wrapped up in every-day living. Suddenly they have reason to ask themselves about the value of a successful career, or a beautifully kept home, when there are no friends to share it with.

Let's face it: Friends come and go in life. Some move away. Some just change their orbits. That's why it is important to keep making new friends, while cherishing the old ones. — Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: Could you give me an autographed picture of you and of your boy friend if you have one? And if you make up any of your recipes do you think you could send me one or two?

I also have a problem in reading. I try to read but I just get interested, then something good comes on TV and I have to watch it, then I have to start reading from the beginning again.

Do you know any jokes? — Wendy.

Dear Wendy: Look, honey, I am not in show business. I don't have a public relations department handing out photographs.

But if you'll cut out my picture from the column when it appears there - and send me a copy, I will be glad to slip my name to it and send it back. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Recipes? The main ones I make up have to do with how to help people eat without getting into hot water.

And your reading problem! TV has stolen the attention of many thousands of youngsters who would otherwise be learning to enjoy good books. Take your favorite book, shut yourself in a room where there is no TV, and stuff your ears if necessary.

Jokes? (1) "To ensure the education of teen-agers, today's parents need to pull a few wires: TV, telephone, legislation . . ."

(2) "When the family station wagon pulled into the service station, a little girl jumped out and gasped to the attendant, 'My hands are so dirty I'm about to pop! . . .'

Oh, about the boy friends. I have many friends, both ladies and gentlemen; but I haven't quite gotten around to picking a special one for myself yet.

Dear Doris: Would you have in your collection of poems some that would be good for elocution for children at elementary level or at high level?

I think it is pathetic that children are no longer required to memorize poems — Mother of a Budding Reader.

Dear Mother: My "Collection of Six Old Favorites" includes, among others, a narrative poem about "A Week With a Woman" and a very warm-hearted one about "My Mother's Apron". I'll send you the Collection for the usual 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you would also like a copy of "Albert and The Lion", send another 10 cents and ask for it. It can be hilarious. And there are others.

With this note I am sending you a complete list of poems we have available for all readers sending in the usual 20 cents and an eight-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

The bidding:

Opening lead--nine of hearts.

If you look at all four hands, it is clear that declarer must finish with either nine tricks or ten, depending on whether he loses one trump trick or two.

But when the hand was played in the national men's pair championship, declarer made only seven tricks and wound up going down two for a loss of 200 points.

This extraordinary result came about in a perfectly logical manner after West (Marshall Miles, California star) chose the irregular opening lead of the suit of hearts. Generally speaking, it is unwise to underlead an ace on opening lead against a suit contract. But Miles has never been a stickler for rules, and on this occasion he exercised his God-given right to do as he pleased.

His timing proved to be absolutely perfect when declarer covered the nine with the ten, which lost to the jack. East shifted to a club and West, upon taking the ace, returned a club to South's jack.

Declarer--proceeding under the delusion that East had the A-Q-J of hearts and that West had to have the K-J of diamonds for his opening no-trump bid -- led the queen of diamonds and confidently finessed when Miles (followed low.

At this point the roof caved in. East won the queen with the king and returned a heart, to partner's ace. West returned a club, ruffed by East to produce the fifth trick for the defense, and East returned a heart which West ruffed with the jack to put South down two.

Underlocking aces on opening lead is a distinctly precarious practice but if you pick the right time and place to test your luck, and forewarned you too may wind up with your name in the paper.

Budget to Be Heavy, Grants Will Cut Taxes

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville's 1973 municipal budget will exceed the $10-million mark for the first time in city history.

That is the prediction of City Manager James R. Reynolds now preparing what is his final budget for the city — the administration he has headed for 13 years.

Mr. Reynolds will retire from his city hall post at the end of June and will be succeeded by Albert Elliott, now clerk-administrator for Sidney, Nova Scotia.

"It appears that the current city budget will be over $10-million for the first time," Mr. Reynolds said. By way of contrast the city budget took in 1969 was "around" $6-million.

The $10-million-plus budget estimate includes the local levy for educational purposes.

Mr. Reynolds said this year's city budget — exclusive of education costs — will approach $8 million.

Without revealing any budgetary secrets, Mr. Reynolds said as a result of the additional provincial grants recently announced by the Ontario government, the city's overall tax rate would be down from the 48.1 mills levied in 1972.

Last years total city levy was made up of 33 mills general rate, with the remaining 15.1 mills for education.

Earlier city hall estimates indicated the city would benefit by approximately $1,000,000 as the result of the additional provincial grants. But Mr. Reynolds said this tax relief extent would be eaten up by this year's increased educational costs. Salary costs for city employees, fire and police budgets will also be up this year.

Referring to the new municipal grants, the city manager said the government "was given a great formula which encourages municipalities to make an effort to hold the spending line. The municipal support grant is tied to last year's net municipal levy.

In other words, if municipalities go over last year's levy they get less grant. If the line is held on gross expenditures they will be eligible for maximum grants.

Looking back over his 27 years as a municipal official, Belleville's soon - to - be-retired city manager says he has no regrets that he switched to municipal administration from banking.

"It has been a rewarding experience over the years," he assured.

Mr. Reynolds came to Belleville just over 13 years ago. Before then, he was clerk-administrator for Hamilton township in Western Ontario for 13 years — from 1947 to 1960.

A native of the Bowmanville area where he was born of a high school family, Mr. Reynolds first went to work with the Bank of Montreal. He later to be taken over by the then Canadian Bank of Commerce.

He had advanced to the level of assistant accountant and relieving manager at Bowmanville, in Ottawa, when he decided to make the switch from banking to municipal administration.

As he readies to retire from his city hall post early this summer, Mr. Reynolds says the city is in good financial shape with a capital debt to taxable assessment well below the limits suggested by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Indicative of the city's sound financial position is the fact that the city's proposed current expense budget quota receives OMB approval each year almost without question, he said.

Mr. Reynolds prophesied that the city would continue to grow and prosper as long as good budgetary control was maintained.

Mr. Reynolds said the new provincial grants should have the effect of reducing the heavy tax burden on residential property owners.

"But this will only be achieved if elected councils and school boards remain within reasonable budgetary limits."

For the city's present good financial position the city manager paid tribute to the calibre of council members over the years and to an efficient city hall staff.

"We have always been able to fill top positions with good men," he said.

Having enjoyed his 13 years in Belleville Mr. Reynolds expects to continue living in the city after retirement.

The Reynold's family of three sons are all grown with Robert, the youngest this year completing his second year in law school.

Their eldest son is head of the mathematics department at the Aldershot Secondary School at Burlington, while a second son, John, just recently joined a Montreal firm of consulting engineers after being employed with the Newfoundland — Labrador Power Commission.

"Belleville will still be sort of central and we've gotten to know a lot of people here," Mr. Reynolds said.

The new city administrative head, Albert Elliott, will come to Belleville at the end of May and will have a month at city hall before Mr. Reynolds retires.

The First - - And Last

Mayor Robin Jeffrey and City Manager J. R. Reynolds check department estimates prior to preparation of the 1973 current budget and its submission to city Council. For Mr. Reynolds it will be his final budget before retiring in June after 27 years in municipal administration. For Mayor Jeffrey, this will be her first budget as head of council.

A Showcase of Leisure Trends

The outdoors moved indoors for the weekend in Belleville last night.

The result, at the city's Memorial Arena, is the Leisure Time Exhibition — a centralized showcase of what's new in recreational life styles.

It also gives a hometown hint of what's happening in a society increasingly seeking — and able to afford — more and more leisure.

The exhibition puts the emphasis on the outdoors. And, quality and quantity are clues that people today surrender into the open spaces are complemented with an array of sophisticated belongings. The most informative of the past is making way for more luxurious modes.

The outdoors can be backyard or bush country — or any space in between. And the industry — as the exhibition revealed — recognizes the diversity in personal tastes.

From canoes to campers, stereophonic sound to swimming pools, bikes and boats the displays are a big bazaar reflecting today's broad and varied involvement with leisure.

As the opening night flow of showgoers was still mounting, some exhibitors reported orders already placed on the floor.

This is seen as one of the big benefits of the display. It provides a single marketplace where both customers and merchants can come together — a facility all the more significant with the outdoors boom, which increases the number of outlets and goods available. A shopping or viewing spree for a family with varying tastes can be a time eater.

Another, operator of one of the district's biggest marine enterprises, said new value of his store sales this year were way up over last — proof not only of increased demand but a desire for more, higher-priced, quality products, he said.

Like Lake Ontario's rising water level, he added, business now "is like the water — higher than ever this year."

Leisure time and the water may still come in the lively economic shape of a canoe or aluminum boat. But there's a satisfactory response to polish and quality — and the 15-foot craft he leaned against, seating eight on hand-tyried leather, with a 105-horsepower motor, Cost: $3,300.

For leisure time on land, getting there now seems more than half the fun for many.

In fact, one of the dominant features at this year's exhibition is the sizeable space given over to mobile living accommodation. The "time of the trailer is arriving' said one exhibitor.

Camping trailer canvas has taken a backseat in mobilization for the outdoors, bypassed by the hardtop trailer and mobile home.

The impact being made on recreation living is evident in the wide choice on show. They range all the way from a camper unit, costing $1,000, ready for mounting on a half-ton truck, to the latest in single-unit, totally - equipped driveyourself mobile home at $12,-000.

Popular for some time in the United States, then boom in self-contained, travelling leisure is just coming into its own in Ontario, said the salesman for one city enterprise which sells and rents mobile units.

Both sales and rentals now are running "about five times as much volume as last year" he said.

In fact, to meet rental demand, more units had to be found, Cost for the biggest mobile home — carpeted, with electric generator, forced-air thermostat-controlled furnace — runs $220 a week plus eight cents a mile in the peak July-August period. Other months the charge is $155.

Rental requests have come in from as far away as Sudbury and Brockville. In Toronto one company has 43 units which are on the road all the time, he said.

A woman member of a district camper's club agreed with the rapid increase in popularity of trailer leisure over the years ago if you passed another one on the highway you waved. Now, there are so many you don't bother," she said.

Today is expected to be a peak time for exhibition attendance. It's open until 9 p.m. and Sunday 1.30 p.m. — 6 p.m.

Free Trees At Picton

PICTON — Nicknamed "Mr. Prince Edward," horticulturist Philip Dodds yesterday helped 6,500 beautiful citizens take root.

The secretary of the Prince Edward Horticultural Society, assisted by president Victor Lord and Sam Dodds distributed free trees to all persons buying a $1 membership. Each new member was entitled to select 50 seedlings as his premium for joining the movement to beautify the county.

The giveaway continued today with dozens of gardeners flocking to the Armory Mall to take advantage of the society's offer. Spruce, Colorado pine and Carolina Poplars were available.

PUC Veteran Is Honored

A total of 43 years service to the city of Belleville as an employee of the city's Public Utilities Commission has been officially recorded for Thomas Hiles, 248 Foster Ave., retired utilities lineman.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiles were guests of honor at a retirement banquet party recently at the Oddfellows Hall attended by more than 100 PUC workers and their wives and city officials.

A native of England, Mr. Hiles came to Canada as a boy and initially worked on a Belleville area farm.

Industrial Beat

Tourism Lacks A Good Guide

By MIKE PATERSON

Last year more than 40 million visits were made to Canada. Canada was left with better than $1,000-million. Canadians themselves spent another $1-billion travelling their own country.

Just 120 miles away, Metropolitan Toronto attracted more than 192-million through tourism and conventioneering.

Claude F. Bennett, Minister of Industry and Tourism said recently in Belleville he doesn't buy it a community can attract two dozen more tourists a day throughout the year, that will be economically comparable to acquiring a new manufacturing industry with an annual payroll of $100,-000." Ministry statistics for 1971 show that in that year the Bay of Quinte attracted 1.6 per cent of visits to Ontario from the United States and 1.4 per cent of the money spent. The figures are quoted as approximate estimations.

With dollar devaluation cutting back overseas travel, with Kingston's tercentenary promotions drawing a bonus influx, with Toronto's continued seeking of tourist dollars, 1973 is likely to see a lot of tourists and a lot of money within the reach of the Quinte region. Active promotions nearby could whittle this area's share. On the other hand, the visitors will be around.

If they get the message, the small slice of the tourist cake the Quinte Region has enjoyed in the past could well be licked, filled and possibly tiered.

For the first time, Belleville has its own permanent tourist information booth courtesy of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and a number of others who have seen the potential worth of tourist promotion.

But the area's publicity materials are a sad apology. There is no tour map of area theatre factories, though southeast Ontario cheddars enjoy a world-wide reputation. There is no guide booklet to the many attractive churches, the museum, the old gold mining sites or Tyendinaga. There is no fairly unimaginative, updated little brochure on Belleville that overlooks many of the area's potential attractions. It is sin forlornly on the shelves of Chambers of Commerce among more colorful, more interesting brochures from smaller, lesser but more aggressive areas with fewer and attractions.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce can give you more than a Belleville plan or a trip virtually anywhere in Canada. Yet you will have to take what you want information on many of the Quinte area's attractions.

Belleville Chamber of Commerce manager, Don Sutton, noted in his survey delegates at the upcoming Association of Canadian Travel Writers (Ontario) Vehicle and Equipment Show that is expected to bring 1,500 delegates to Belleville. One of the statistics he hopes to compile is the way they spend their money.

The figures are quoted as approximate estimations.

June 25 — July 1 is Welcome A Visitor Week throughout Canada and the United States. Sponsored in Canada by the Canadian Tourist and Convention Commission and the Canadian Chapter of the Society of American Travel Writers. Welcome a Visitor Week will give everyone the chance to be a "sidewalk ambassador" to greet visitors, help them with directions, answer their questions, know about local events and attractions and be friendly. The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is planning its own promotions. But the chamber will need your help and participation.

And there is no good reason why the Friendly City should not practice Welcome a Visitor Week every day. It pays off.

Two Hurt In Crash

Alan Shorter, 20, and James Maracle, 20, passengers in a car driven by Manley Maracle, 20, of East Street, Belleville, are reported in good condition.

Both men were injured when the car collided with a parked vehicle owned by Edward Bailey of Main Street, Wellington, said police.

Napoleonic Era Recreated By Belleville Craftsman

By HARRY MUIRHEAD
Staff reporter

Stephen Rashotte is a young Bellevillian with a consuming interest in history's Napoleonic age.

He also is an art teacher.

Because of this, much of his recent time has been happily consumed immortalizing history into artistic shapes and forms.

The result to date is a striking array of figures modelled on one of history's most spectacular martial eras.

The assembly of model military men is the more generous's version of toy soldiers.

What he has created — a handcrafted replicas, painstakingly researched and reproduced in exacting detail.

For Stephen — going on 25 and just married to another local teacher in Peterborough — it really started about eight years ago. That was when a movie impressed Napoleon on his imagination. Since then he has become an avid student of the French emperor, his personality; achievements, failures — in fact, the entire Napoleonic era.

Books, magazines, newspaper articles, movies — any medium dealing with the man and his times — have been turning grounds for Stephen's fascination. He has seen movies like War and Peace and Battle of Waterloo repeatedly.

Such enthusiastic seeding of information had to manifest shoots in some fashion. It did — two years ago. By that time Stephen was a University of Toronto fine arts graduate.

He decided to try giving his skills and personal interest a mutual ventilating — by reproducing scale models of certain Napoleonic soldiery.

For anyone with artistic flair, the period abounds in color. Napoleon, a constant male politician, appreciated the impact of spectacle and pageantry. The uniforms of his armies set a peak in splendor which Stephen sought to recapture.

He wasn't thoroughly satisfied.

"I destroyed them — but they were only experimental, really," he says.

Then, last summer vacation at home he set to work in earnest — with wood, metal and felt.

Working 10 hours a day for two months he carved figures from pine, gave them wire limbs, cut and decorated their uniforms. Weapons were shaped from tubing and steel.

To produce bridges and models he was given an assist by city jeweler Gerrard O'Connor who permitted Stephen the use of engraving equipment.

Then the summer's end he had assembled a small battalion of 54 men and three troops — led by a model Napoleon on horseback — all meticulously reproduced to the scale of data Stephen had assembled over the years.

Stephen still isn't completely satisfied. He'd like to construct newer figures, using a different art style not so exactly modelled to scale. He must also recall flags — Napoleonic banners were among the most intricate.

He's so interested in correct reproduction Stephen says he might even be willing to learn the basics of embroidery.

Recently, Mr. O'Connor placed several of the figures in his Front St. store window.

Although he hasn't any positive plans to date, Stephen has been pondering putting his collection on view at some future Leisure Time Exhibition — when he's satisfied with their detailed correctness. Then he will serve as models for paintings he's planning.

Meantime, making his fascination manifest hasn't meant a drain on it out of his system. Stephen's interest in Napoleonic times and events is unabated.

A main ambition still remains: To visit Europe and make personal contact with the scenery and arenas where Napoleon himself carved and created history to his satisfaction.

School Bus Exhaust Makes 15 Pupils Ill

BLOOMFIELD — Carbon monoxide released through a faulty exhaust system in a school bus enroute from Picton to Bloomfield caused 15 youngsters to become ill yesterday. The bus carried 70 students.

A doctor was contacted by authorities at Prescott Memorial elementary school after the children complained of nausea after getting off the bus. The students' parents were called to take them home and all youngsters were reported improving after treatment.

E. A. Shortt, board of education business administrator, said an inspector from the Ministry of Transportation and Communications will arrive from Peterborough to investigate the vehicle owned by the McGinnis Coach Lines.

The bus fleet was inspected last month by ministry personnel from Peterborough. The buses are inspected twice each year.

Bowman Rethinks Habs' Strategy vs Chicago

By IAN MacLAINE

CHICAGO (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman is having some second thoughts about the hockey game his Montreal Canadiens lost Thursday which could have an influence on his future strategy.

The Canadiens lead Chicago Black Hawks two games to one in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals with the fourth game here Sunday afternoon.

The Canadiens could have had a 3-0 lead in games, says Bowman, if they had opened up earlier.

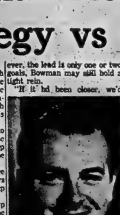
"I think if we had opened up when we were down 5-1 in the second period we might have made it," Bowman said Friday.

"We didn't decide to have everyone attack until the third period. Then we almost pulled it out. We missed some good scoring opportunities."

The Canadiens rebounded from a five-goal deficit and pulled to within one before giving up a 7-4 loss after two empty-net goals by the Hawks.

But should Chicago manage to even the issue at two apiece by sending another such commanding lead in Sunday's game, they can look for Montreal to open up earlier. If, how-ever, the lead is only one or two goals, Bowman may call back a tight rein.

"If it had been closer, we'd have played it tighter," the Montreal coach said. "But because we were down four goals going into the last period, it was a obvious we had to open up."



SCOTTY BOWMAN

Chicago coach Billy Reay suggested there might have been a letdown with his players after their 5-1 victory Tuesday and that the free-wheeling Montrealers took his players by surprise.

"They just threw caution to the wind," the Chicago coach said. "It worked for them in the first game (an 8-3 Montreal victory) and again Thursday.

"Fortunately we didn't fold all together. But we could just as easily work against them."

Bowman agreed, saying goaltender Ken Dryden made several key saves in the third period as the Hawks roared in with two-on-one and three-on-two breaks at the Canadiens to record their earlier pattern of defensive play.

"Ken had to make some big saves in that period," Bowman said. "But if we were going to make a game of it, this was the way we had to play."

In his second year with Canadiens, runaway East Division champions this season with only 10 losses in the 78-game sched-

Kelley Worries Over Injuries

By JOHN KOROBANIK

BOSTON (CP) — New England Whalers go into tonight's fourth game of the World Hockey Association finals with a definite advantage over Winnipeg Jets but Whalers coach Jack Kelley admits he is beginning to worry about his clubs injuries.

The Whalers lead the best-of-seven World Trophy final 2-1 with the fourth and fifth games in Boston. If the series goes beyond that, the sixth game will be in Toronto and the seventh back in Boston. The Jets have no more home games because the Winnipeg Arena is not available.

"I would have to say the fact we have a one-game edge with two home games . . . and three of the last four here if we r-r-r them . . . gives us a decided advantage, Kelley said Friday.

But the New England coach expressed concern for the mounting injuries. Right winger Brit Selby suffered a head injury and spent Thursday night in a Winnipeg hospital for observation and it wont be known until late this afternoon if he will be able to play the fourth game.

"The doctors tell there was no concussion . . . our doctors will examine Brit Saturday and hopefully we'll have him back.

The Whalers have been without centre Terry Caffery, a 100-point man during the regular season, and John Danby since midway through the semi-finals.

"If we dont have Brit, we will have only one player left on our most productive line, Kelley said, explaining that the unit of Caffery, Selby and Tom Webster was one of the three highest scoring lines in the WHA with both Caffery and Webster collecting more than 100 points.

"It would be a tough loss and mean we'd have to go with a player, Guy Smith, who has played in only one playoff game and was used only sparingly during the season.

Webster, the lines only remaining healthy forward in the clubs leading scorer during the season with 103 points and in the playoffs with 22 points but is also hurting. He hurt his elbow Thursday but is a definite starter.

"Were still in pretty good shape but were not taking anything for granted, said Kelley.

Swords Take Lead

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Gould scored three goals and Randy Wyrnuh had four assists as Friday night as Cincinnati Swords took a 1-3 series-opening win over Nova Scotia Voyageurs in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup finals.

The Cincinnati win, its fourth straight on home ice over Nova Scotia this season, snapped an eight-game playoff victory string by the Voyageurs.

The Swords grabbed a 2-0 lead after seven minutes against Nova Scotia goalie Michel LaRocque, who had allowed an average of 1.5 goals in eight playoff games.

Nova Scotia was playing its first game in 10 days. Gould, who ended a month-long slump with two goals in Tuesday's clinching win over Virginia, scored a goal in each period. He has scored seven in the last three games.

Rick Dudley, Jim Robertson, Doug Ronsbaugh and Jake Rathwell were the other scorers for the winners.

The next game is set Sunday.

Marlies Take Lead

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros scored twice within a minute and seven seconds in the second period, then hung on for a 5-4 win over Peterborough Petes to take the lead in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff final Friday night.

The win before 5,939 fans gave the Marlboros a 7-5 edge in the eight-point series which they could wrap up with a tie tonight.

The winner advances to the Memorial Cup final in a round-robin series with Quebec Remparts and Medicine Hat Tigers which starts Monday at Montreal.

Doug Gibson's second goal of the game left his Petes down 3-2 in the second period but the Marlboros' Dick Declos scored 11 seconds later and Marty Howe followed up with what proved to be the game-winner.

Kevin Devine and Bruce Boudreau gave the Marlboros a 2-1 lead after the first 20 minutes and Dennis Owchar made it 3-1 early in the second.

The Marlboros reverted to a defensive shell but failed to protect their 5-2 lead as Jim Johnston tapped in a rebound of a Neil Komack shot and Gibson scored after picking up a loose puck from a faceoff in the Toronto end.

The two Peterborough goals within 73 seconds ended the scoring for the game at 13:30 of the second period. Both clubs managed only four shots on goal each in the final 20 minutes.

He noted the Petes missed two three-on-one breaks in final two minutes.

Kwasnitza Will Quit

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gary Kwasnitza, captain of St. Boniface Mohawks, says he's ready to call it quits as a player after the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series that opens tonight in Orillia against the Terriers.

The 32-year-old defenceman is returning to a rink where he skated seven years ago with the now-defunct Orillia Pepsis of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Kwasnitza has been with the Mohawks from the clubs beginning, when they lost a best-of-five Canadian senior hockey final 3-1 to Victoriaville, Que., Tigers in 1967—the only Mohawk who goes back that far with the team.

The Mohawks, whose second game with the Terriers of the OHA is Sunday night, gained entry to the finals by defeating Spokane Jets of the Western International—Hockey League 4-3 in a best-of-seven series.

The Mohawks, paced by the high-scoring line of Dave Richardson, George Watson and Harry Bueckert, had little trouble gaining the Canadian Central Hckey League title this season.

Bob Rogers, starting goaltender for St. Boniface, stood up to some heavy shooting in the first three games of the western finals played in Spokane. The Mohawks came home with a 1-2 record.

The pressure shifted to goalie Don Mason in games six and seven when business commitments kept Rogers out of action. Mason shook off early jitters and, in the series-ended 10-4 victory, blocked 36 shots.

The Richardson-Watson-Bueckert line accounted for 18 points in goals and assists in the crucial seventh game against the Jets, 1972 Allen Cup champions.

The Mohawks are fast and rugged.

Mohawks have been in the Western Canada finals four times in the last six years. They entered this years finals in straight games.

All games in this years Canadian finals will be played in Ontario.

Phillies Outlast Braves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies usually try to give fans their money's worth, but Friday's performance was ridiculous.

Sometimes hitting a high-wire act or a daredevil who flies through the air, the Phillies just decided to play baseball . . . and play . . . and play.

By the time they were finished playing, the Phillies had a 5-4 decision over Montreal, victory in 20 innings, but five hours and 18 minutes had elapsed and there weren't too many fans left to appreciate it.

And, if Atlanta manager Eddie Mathews had anything to do with it, they'd still be playing. He claimed that home plate umpire John McSherry missed the call on the game's deciding run.

"There's no question that he was out," said Mathews after Denny Doyle came home with the 20th-inning run under catcher Johnny Oates' tag. "Oates was up on the plate, not behind it. McSherry blew it."

Doyle, who scored the big run on pinch-hitter Jose Pagan's fly to Oscar Brown, surprisingly came in standing up. He admitted it was a mistake, but he wouldn't admit he was out.

"I'm the first to admit that it was not good coming in standing up," said Doyle.

"You have to slide. It was instinct that was aiding. I saw the catcher go up and I thought I was in. It wasn't the smartest thing to do."

Doyle triggered the Phillies' rally by leading off the 20th with a triple. After Greg Luzinski and Larry Bowa were intentionally walked, Pagan came through with his game-winner.

Sharpening up her serve for the upcoming World Games for the Deaf in Malmo, Sweden, is Belleville's Gayle Gaudreau. A 21-year-old graduate of OSD, Gayle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaudreau, Village Drive, Belleville.

Armstrong At Shoot For Standing Date

The first time Carol Armstrong pulled back the arrow at the Circle Archery Club outdoor shoot, she met Bob Skelton, a 65-year-old gentleman who still fired the odd shaft through the trees at targets.

CAROL ARMSTRONG

The women's division of the field shooting four of the five years a he entered the competition. In 1970, she failed to take the title, but said a he "wasn't shooting that much that year".

In preparation for her sixth entry in the tourney, Carol has been sighting her recently acquired steel takedown bow in a corn field across the street from her home.

As a result of the change from the British to the metric system of measurement in archery competitions this year, Carol must sight the cream colored bow in intervals of five metres.

To this end, her husband, and the owner of the corn field, an OPP officer, have set papa butt along with distance measurements. However, the rainy weather has limited her work with the tedious, but necessary task of "poking the arrow into the mud" as she aptly quipped.

The Kingston field course will be the scene Sunday of the reunion of the two archers in what has become a a tanding date over the five years Carol has attended the competition.

"I wouldn't miss the Kingston shoot", said Carol. "he's a really good friend now and I enjoy seeing him. And all he ever does is buy me a coffee.

"The shoot gives me a chance to get out and socialize anyone alter the winter and the same time get some shooting in. It's the first outdoor tournament of the season."

With some of the best archers from eastern Ontario and New York State among the 50 to 60 bow pullers present, the competition is by no means mild according to the Belleville marksman.

Despite this, Carol has won

Students Compete In World Game

When the World Games for the Deaf are held in Malmo, Sweden in July, three students from the Ontario School for Deaf, Belleville will be competing in track and field events.

June Reilley, Merry Lee McCuaig and Paul Landry, who will be coached by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kosti of OSD, Milton, while at the games, are well known in the Bay of Quinte area for their athletic ability. Merry Lee is no a stranger to these competitions. She was a member of the Canadian team at B e l g r a d e, Yugoslavia in 1969.

She taking part from Belleville is 21-year-old Gayle Gaudreau who graduated from OSD in 1971. Gayle will be a member of Canada's women's volleyball team at the Games.

Gayle is the youngest of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaudreau, Village Dr., Belleville. The family came to Belleville f r o m Kenora, in 1960.

Frances is a registered nurse at Belleville General Hospital while Denis is a metallurgist at Deloro Stellite. An older brother, Larry, resides in British Columbia.

According to Mr. Godreau, the original owner of the Avalon Motel in Belleville and retired now, says Gayle has always been interested in sports.

"I guess she gets her athletic ability from her brother Larry. He was quite a football and hockey player. In fact he played Intermediate hockey, teamed on defence with Detroit Red Wings' Gary Bergman, at home in Kenora.

"Gayle is really looking forward to the trip to Sweden for the games," said Mr. Gaudreau.

While she's busy preparing for the volley-ball competition, Gayle is getting plenty of help from OSD Physical education instructor Betty Lalonde and students like Rudy Bishop.

Thursday, while Miss Lalonde was occupied with matters pertaining to track and field, Rudy was there to give Gayle some assistance as she worked at her game.

Miss Lalonde, who is national chairman of women's volleyball, along with William Conley who is a residence counsellor at OSD will be attending the Games. Mr. Conley will coach the men's volleyball team.

In the 1969 Games, Canada won four gold medals, two silver and two bronze, all in the swimming events. In track and field, the team picked up a pair of fourth place finishes.

Hawthorn Sires 5 Winners

In the fourth race, Fred Jarrell was knocked out of the sulky when the wheel hit the hubrail. The mishap sent Debonair Pierre partway round the oval and into the infield before the horse was caught.

Ed Weeks drove Tyus to her third straight win in the featured seventh race to earn the money for owner Albert DeFosse of Trenton while Margie's Lad took the sweet share of the night's richest purse in the ninth. The 3-year-old gelding paced the oval in 2:11.1.

SWITCHES TO COWHIDE

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball, which has relied exclusively on horsehide-covered baseballs since the turn of the century, is turning to cowhide, commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Friday. The reason for the switch, he said, is the shortage of quality horsehide in the United States.

Athletics Club Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The designated hitter used to be known as the designated pinch hitter. Now, it's just designated hitter in American League baseball and there's no more designated pinch hitter.

At least there wasn't until Friday night when manager Dick Williams of Oakland Athletics produced a line-up that included a designated hitter and a designated pinch hitter.

If you're confused, ask how Cleveland Indians must feel after surrendering 11 hits and eight walks and committing four errors in dropping an 11-4 decision to an Oakland club that went through the two first basemen, two third basemen, three shortstops and three second basemen.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels edged Baltimore Orioles 1-0, Kansas City Royals beat Milwaukee Brewers 5-3, Chicago White Sox blanked New York Yankees 5-0, Detroit Tigers whipped Texas Rangers 5-1 and Minnesota Twins outslugged Boston Red Sox 9-8.

Oakland's original line-up listed newly-acquired Deron Johnson as the designated hitter, batting fifth, and Gonzalo Marquez who throws left-handed, at second base, batting second.

As it turned out, Marquez was really a designated pinch hitter. He sacrificed and reached safely on an error as the Athletics scored three times in the lord Perry in the first inning, two coming on the first of three singles by Johnson. But when the Athletics took the field, there was Dick Green at second base and Marquez in the dugout.

"If you're going to use a pinch hitter, you may as well use him in the first inning," said Williams. "Of course, if you do it, you have to bat him first, second or third. We use pinch hitter when the situation calls for it and there's no reason for not doing it in the first inning."

Johnson also delivered run-scoring singles in the seventh and the seven-run eighth.

In Baltimore, former hero Frank Robinson, now with the Angels, was presented with...his old No. 20 uniform, in which he helped the Orioles win four pennants. Then he went out and doubled with two out in the seventh inning and scored the only run of the game on Bob Oliver's double. Rudy May pitched a six-hitter for his third straight shutout.

The high spot for the Orioles, who have lost four in a row, came when their rerookie Robinson, Brooks singled in the second inning for his 2,417th career hit, most ever by a third baseman.

Kansas City's Steve Busby, bidding to become the second pitcher in history to hurl back-to-back no-hitters, went 3 1-3 hitless innings against Milwaukee before Dave May, homered. Busby left after walking four of the next five batters.

The White Sox posted their seventh consecutive victory by trimming New York behind the combined seven-hit pitching of ex-Yankee Stan Bahnsen and Terry Forster. Ken Henderson's three singles and a double led a 10-hit Chicago attack.

The White Sox scored a pair of unearned runs in the first inning on an error by New York shortstop Gene Michael, singles by Dick Allen, Henderson and Mike Andrews and an infield out. They added two more in the fourth on Ed Herrmann's triple, Jorge Orta s sacrifice fly, Eddie Leon's double and another error by Michael.

The White Sox won for the 11th time in their last 13 games.

Willie Horton drove in three runs with a homer and single as Detroit downed Texas and shot from fifth place to first in the tightly bunched East Division.

Bob Darwin drove in three runs and Tony Oliva two as Minnesota snapped a five-game losing streak by defeating Boston.

Darwin, batting .200 at game time, drove in a run in Minnesota's five-run fourth with a single, brought in another in the fifth with a groundout and delivered another RBI single in the seventh. Jim Perry recorded a three-run homer for the Red Sox.

Crampton Cautious

HOUSTO N(AP) — Australian Bruce Crampton held a two-stroke lead at his usual cautious altitude today going into the third round of the $200,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

"I won't see any cheque until Sunday," the Australian said Friday when asked if he was confident of holding his advantage in the chase for a $41,000 first prize.

With two victories, five other finishes of seventh or better and more than $112,000 in winnings already this season, the 37-year-old Crampton has been one of the constant figures on the pro tour this year.

His six-under-par 66 was the best round of the warm, sunny day and his 138 total on the 6,905-yard Quail Valley Golf Club course gave him a two-stroke margin over amateur Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins and Bill Massengale, tied at 140.

Crenshaw had a 71, Wadkins took a 69 and Massengale churned into contention with a 68.

The group at 141 included Dave Stockton, Charles Coody, Joe Ehler, Bobby Mitchell and Bob Eastwood. Mitchell put together a 68, Stockton scrambled for 71 while Coody, Elder and Eastwood had 69s.

Ben Kern of Toronto and Will Homenuik of Winnipeg missed the cutoff. Homenuik shot another 75 for 150 and Kern had a 73 for 151.

Jerry Heard worked his way into a position among the leaders with a 143, then failed to sign his scorecard and was disqualified. Billy Casper and Masters champion Tommy Aaron matched 146 totals and just survived the cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday.

Secretariat In For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Meadow Stable's Secretariat, the 1972 Horse of the Year, went after a Kentucky Derby victory today against a field that ranged from Sham, the Santa Anita Derby winner, to Twice a Prince, a lightly raced non-stakes winner.

Thirteen three-year-olds were scheduled to go to the post at 5:40 p.m. EDT for the 99th and richest running of the 1¼-mile Derby at Churchill Downs. The purse was $200,800, with $115,600 to the winner.

Television coverage was set to start at 5 p.m. on the CBC national network.

Others entered were Restless Jet, Angle Light, Warbucks, Navajo, Our Native, Royal and Regan, Forego, Shecky Greene, My Gallant and Gold Bug.

Angle Light, owned by Ed Whittaker of Toronto and the upset winner over Sham in Secretariat's Wood Memorial, was entered with Secretariat as part of a Loolen Lauro-trained entry. Shecky Greene and My Gallant were coupled as a Lou Goldstine-trained entry. Larry Adams was named to ride Shecky Greene.

Angle Light bled from the right nostril while he was grazing Friday morning after returning from a gallop. He was examined by a veterinarian, and Lauzin said later Friday the colt was perfectly all right and would run in the Derby.

Royal and Regal, the Florida Derby winner, had a problem with an old right front foot in jury. But trainer Jimmy Croll breezed the colt three-eighths of a mile and pronounced him ready to run.

Crowell Goes Big

CALGARY (CP) — The largest youth program ever undertaken by the Canadian Olympic Association (COA) was announced Friday by A. A. Crowell, the executive director.

The program, called Junior Olympics, is modelled after the Amateur Athletic Union Junior Olympics program in the United States.

The Canadian program is for athletes 19 years and under in all Olympic sports. Each sport will schedule its own competition and be responsible for conducting the program. The COA will provide competition by the end of 1974.

Kings Within Range

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Pembroke Lumber Kings are within shooting distance of their year-long goal, the Centennial Cup.

The Kings romped through their Central Junior Hockey League regular season schedule with little trouble, leading the standings for almost the entire season.

On their way, they racked up some remarkable statistics. They finished the season with 98 points, representing 49 wins and four ties. They lost only four of their 55 games.

Pembroke's players were also on top of the heap. Steve Crocher set a league scoring record, netting 134 points, while Pat Hahn's 69 goals set a goal-scoring record.

Goalie Brian Shields finished the season with the league's best goals-against average with a 2.16 goals-against average with three shutouts.

The CJHL season ended in a fracas that saw two of the four playoff teams suspended because of alleged irregularities in one of their games. The Kings have breezed past St. Paul Vulcans of the Canadian-American Junior Hockey League, downing the Minnesota team 4-1 in their best-of-seven final.

Pembroke ran into difficulty for the first time this season when they met Chatham Maroons of the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey Leagues. The lead see-sawed during that best-of-seven final, with the Kings eking out a victory on home ice in the seventh game after being down 3-2 at one point.

St. Jerome, Quebec, Alouettes were the next team to fall before the Pembroke powerhouse, going down 4-1 in a best - of - seven affair. That win gave the Kings the Eastern Canada title and a shot at Portage La Prairie Terriers in the Centennial Cup final.

It has been a long haul for the Kings since the season started, but coach Mac MacLean predicts his team can take the last step.

"We will more than likely have a healthy crew for the final."

The Kings likely will give the Terriers a hard-run. They are a team used to winning and at one point in the CJHL season had won 33 games in a row.

Their strength is based on forwards like Crocher and Hahn, on penalty-killer Randy Mohns and defencemen like Grant Rowe and Marty Vanson as well as Shields' goaltending.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, May 6

Aries (March 21-April 19): Once you've taken your share of the normal Sunday customs of your neighborhood try for an unreverently day.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): The romantic impulse rises and might get you further into personal commitments than expected.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Scatter your sunshine and welcome among all your friends. For the very young it's a red-letter Sunday to be remembered.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): After you get past the tall tales and exaggerations of early morning, it's a good Sunday. Indulge your conservative side.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Just when things are going almost too well for belief, you may overstate your case and provoke an awkward moment.

Virge (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Being quietly human and sociable is all that is needed at present. Other matters fall into place if you let them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): For once there's little call for your special talents. Put your thoughts on record this evening.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expecting no great miracles from this part of your annual cycle, you should be pleased with the calm dignity of this Sunday.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Gentle nudging from friends and loved ones should be about all you can straight on any confusion of times and places.

Capricorn (Dec. 22- Jan. 19): Temptation to set up jokes and games should be kept within bounds. Arranging an apparently accidental meeting is about the limit.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A glance should make it clear you're a little out of step with the social scene. Give your self a break, concentrate on solitary pursuits.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep commercial interests, business deals, any money matters out of your life this Sunday.

Tax Experts Say New Levy Illegal

TORONTO (CP) — Tax experts have agreed with opposition charges that the Ontario government has no legal authority to collect its seven-per-cent sales tax.

Merchants across the province began collecting the tax—an increase from five per cent—Tuesday. The legislation making the increase law is still before the legislature.

Robert Brown, senior taxation partner with Price Waterhouse and Co., said however, that although the tax may be illegal now governments do have power to make legislation retroactive.

"... Its an illegality that has been hallowed by long tradition," he said.

Frank Jacobucci, a law professor at the University of Toronto, said there "is some substance" to opposition arguments that the tax is illegal.

Professor Warren Grover of York University's Osgoode Hall Law school said retroactive legislation is not objectionable in the case of income tax where records are kept and taxpayers can be reimbursed if the tax doesn't become law.

However, he noted that there were no records kept of sales tax payments and said the legislation should have been made effective before the increase was enacted.

Manslaughter, Not Murder

OTTAWA (CP) A 60-year-old Toronto man, found guilty of manslaughter in 1945 for the killing of a prison guard, has had a charge of attempted murder against him withdrawn by the Crown.

The charge was withdrawn Wednesday against Al Baldwin, in connection with the stabbing of Robert Hawley of Ottawa Jan. 10.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported previously that Mr. Baldwin had been sentenced to death for killing a guard at Kingston penitentiary, but the sentence later was reduced to life imprisonment.

In fact, he was sentenced to 25 years in prison for manslaughter in the killing of a guard at the Don jail in Toronto.

A co-accused, Nicholas Minifie, 55, pleaded guilty Wednesday to the Jan. 19 stabbing here. He will be sentenced May 8.

Mr. Baldwin is the director of a Toronto farm which counsels men requiring workmens compensation. He is an advocate of repealing capital punishment. He was in Ottawa at the time of the Hawley stabbing to present a petition to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand calling for the abolition of capital punishment.

Sales Tax

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Anti-Poverty Coalition has sent a telegram, made public to Premier William Davis to protest the government's increase in the retail sales tax from five to seven per cent.

The coalition—a group which says it represents more than one million people—said the tax increase represents a heavy financial burden on the poor.

Mike Carson, provincial co-ordinator for the group, said the group was disappointed in the government's action and suggested the tax should be withdrawn.

Welfare Fraud Jails Couple

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The parents of four children were sentenced to 30 days in jail Thursday on charges of fraud.

John Baker, 33, and Elva Hardie, 32, both of Kitchener, were charged with defrauding the Waterloo region welfare department of $2,309 over a two-year period.

Judge Francis Costello recommended that the couple be allowed temporary release from jail so that they could go to work during the day.

Drug Warning

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's deputy chief coroner has issued a warning to all coroners and medical pathologists in the province to watch for signs of the drug 4-methoxyamphetamine.

Ross Bennett issued the warning Friday about the drug, described as similar to MDA, but 30 times as powerful.

The new highly toxic hallucinogenic drug has been blamed for the deaths of six young men in southern Ontario since March 1.

Shell Boosts Fuel Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Shell Canada Ltd. announced Friday that a number of its fuels will increase in price by one cent a gallon, effective today.

The price hike on motor gasolines, diesel fuel oils, light heating oils and aviation fuels will effect Ontario west of the National Energy Board line, the Prairie provinces, British Columbia, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

The company said the price increases are necessary to offset the 25-cents-a-barrel increase in the cost of Canadian crude oil, which came into effect May 1.

Synod Smoking Sparks Debate

REGINA (CP) — To smoke or not to smoke took up more than half an hour of unexpected time at Friday night's plenary session of the 26th Anglican general synod.

Someone from the floor moved that the 300 delegates refrain from smoking as "an exercise in self-discipline."

"There should be no vice at a church meeting," another delegate added.

"I'll drink to that," a backrow delegate shouted.

The motion was put to a vote. It was probably split in the middle.

A show of hands and a standing vote failed to establish a clear majority. The matter was settled by Most Rev. Howard Scott, primate of the church, who ruled that smoking will be banned inside the convention floor but delegates who wish to smoke may do so outside the edge of the hall entrance.

LIP Cutoff Protested

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 demonstrators gathered outside the downtown offices of the federal Local Initiatives Program (LIP) Friday to protest the cancellation May 31 of most of Toronto's LIP projects.

The delegation met with Eugene Harrigan, co-ordinator of Ontario LIP projects, who said he would inform Manpower Minister Robert Andras that a demonstration had been held.

The demonstrators, representing more than half of Metropolitan Toronto's 250 projects, have formed a group to fight the cancellations.

Group spokesman Brian Robinson said about 3,000 people will lose their jobs when the projects expire and more than 100,000 others will no longer be served by LIP social service groups.

Heart Surgeon Fined $50,000

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Dr. C. Walton Lillehei was fined $50,000 Friday and ordered to perform six months of work for charity because of an income tax evasion conviction.

The sentence was pronounced by Judge Philip Neville.

Lillehei said he could work in something like "project Hope" for the six months in order to continue his surgical career.

Lillehei was accused of evading about $130,000 in federal income taxes during the mid-1960s.

Lillehei pioneered several developments in open heart surgery. He was at the University of Minnesota Hospitals and Medical School in the 1950s and 1960s. He now is head of a clinic in New York.

Ottawa Liberals Live Day-to-day

OTTAWA (CP) — The 29th Parliament, like a plucky beast patient with an uncertain future, returns to work Monday after a 17-day Easter rest.

There is no guarantee that its health will hold but it has already survived longer than many expected and the minority Liberal government seems to have adopted the philosophical attitude of the Joan Baez folk song: "I live one day at a time."

MPs, relaxed after holidays in such places as Bermuda, Hawaii, Vancouver and Richmond, will begin work by debating a bill to prevent the invasion of privacy through wiretapping and bugging devices. Reintroduced from the last Parliament, the measure awaits second reading.

After that will come legislation to promote wildlife conservation and fisheries development, plus a bill to dissolve CNR and Air Canada operations.

None is expected to produce major obstacles but it could be the lull before the storm.

As government House leader, Allan MacEachen, put it before the Easter recess began: "These bills might ease the House gradually into the more controversial items that may be coming later.

He was referring to the plan to cut the corporate tax rate for manufacturing and processing industries to 40 per cent from 49 per cent, a proposal that has hung like an axe over the governments head since Parliament opened Jan. 4.

The New Democratic Party, which has supported the government on all major issues to date, has denounced the legislation outright as another corporate rip-off. The Conservatives have said they will support it only if a July 1, 1974, expiry date is included.

Finance Minister Turner is committed to move ahead with the proposal unchanged but the government has yet to decide when and how it will bring the bill before Parliament.

Before Easter, however, Mr. Turner indicated the legislation would be brought in relatively soon after the House reconvened.

There are 109 Liberals, 107 Conservatives, 31 New Democrats, 15 Social Credit members and two Independents in the 264-seat House.

Borowski Refuses To Pay His Taxes

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Thompson member of the legislature, Joe Borowski, Manitoba's best-known opponent of abortion, announced Friday he is refusing to pay his income taxes as long as the federal and provincial governments continue to provide funds for therapeutic abortions.

Mr. Borowski, a former cabinet minister in the NDP government and now an independent, told the legislature he will not pay a single penny of income tax "even if it means going to jail."

In a speech repeatedly interrupted by procedural points and interjections from both sides of the house, he said civil disobedience was the only way left to deal with the abortion issue.

He described the practice as "ruthless and politically anclosed child murder, enthusiastically and financially supported by the NDP government."

In an interview outside the house, Mr. Borowski said his refusal to pay income taxes was a "last resort."

He said he had refused to file his 1972 tax return and would continue to refuse to file.

"I've tried every way," he said. "I've been at it for a year and a half. I've used every method."

Asked about the prospects of going to jail, he replied, "If it's going to stop this slaughter that is going on, it's a penalty I'm prepared to pay."

Policy on Mercury Pollution Angrily Defended by Bernier

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, reacted angrily Friday to a Liberal back-bencher as the issue of Indians eating mercury-contaminated fish in northwestern Ontario arose again in the legislature.

A week ago, Mr. Bernier announced a long-range program of self-help projects for the Indians, as well as some short-term aid in terms of immediate jobs to replace income lost when the fishery closed because of contamination.

In the house Friday, Patrick Reid (L—Lake—Rainy River), whose riding includes the affected Indian settlements, charged that Mr. Bernier had ignored the major recommendations of his own researchers to supply Indians with an alternate food source.

He also said the minister was continuing to permit Indians and tourists to eat contaminated fish which his own researchers said were a threat to health "even over a short period."

"This is not correct and you damn well know it," Mr. Bernier shot back. "We've done exactly what they (Indians) wanted us to do."

In an earlier debate in the legislature, Health Minister Richard Potter said the Indians did not want handouts in the form of food supplies, but jobs so they could be self-sufficient.

Instructor

They're all talking about us . . .

A MAN, so the story goes, once tried to give away a thousand dollars in hundred dollar bills outside a large downtown store. At first people were suspicious; then they laughed at him. Finally, he was arrested.

–Anyone giving away hundred dollar bills, they reasoned, was either a fool or a criminal.

We haven't got any hundred dollar bills to experiment with, but we are giving something away and we think it's pretty valuable. A lot of other people do too —and there's nothing illegal in that!

The articles on this page are just samples of the sort of material you can get every month, FREE, at your nearest Shopper's Drug Mart store. They come from Lloyd Percival's Sports and Fitness Instructor, a publication unique in its field in Canada—or anywhere else in the world, for that matter.

Just listen to some of the comments from readers:

"It is one of the best sports papers I have ever read"—Karen Magnussen, world figure skating champ. "You should be congratulated on a very excellent publication"—Robert Ousley, executive director, American Swimming Coaches Assn. "Sports & Fitness Instructor is the best by far of anything in this line I have come across"—R. Campbell, national swimming coach, South Africa. "The best publication I have come across for the coach of juveniles and amateurs" —R. G. Spencer, North Vancouver.

The June issue contains such articles as: "What you should know about meat substitutes," of particular interest in view of current prices. "The swing," by Al Balding, one of Canada's top pro golfers. "New ways to develop speed," a must for athletes in all sports. "Flexibility is easy," with hints on keeping your body young and relaxed, plus a special on the training program that prepared winning pitcher Bob Domik for the world softball championships. There are features on fixing figure faults, soccer, tennis, lacrosse, swimming, coaching techniques and Lloyd Percival's pungent opinion column.

Make opponent 'give' you game

IF YOU are an average club tennis player, you have undoubtedly kicked yourself many times for losing games by making errors, rather than forcing your opponent to beat you with good, strong tennis.

by Alan Percival

As a matter of fact, no less than about 80 per cent of points "scored" in regular club tennis are direct results of the other player's errors.

Take advantage of this by (a) working on your own strongest point and (b) exploiting your opponent's weak point.

"Elementary, my dear Mr. Percival," you might say. Perhaps, but you'd be surprised if you knew how seldom game tactic and strategy is based on this knowledge at the club level.

Now, if your strongest shot is your forehand, work on this stroke until you are making a minimum of errors. Then—and this is important—position yourself on the court so it will be difficult for your opponent to serve to your weaker backhand.

Secondly, find out which areas in your opponent's game are his weakest; unless he is unusually good, he will have weak spots. Among the average club players, the backhand is seldom one of the stroog points.

You can find out early in the match by playing a few shots as deep as possible to the backhand side.

If you find that his backhand is fairly strong, play a few short shots so he will have to play the net. There are not too many players in the medium category of club players who have a good volley or can hit a steady overhead smash.

Most players would rather stay in the back court, rallying back and forth, depending on their steadiness to carry them through until you make an error.

If you continually force your opponent to make shots he doesn't like to make you will win on his errors. If you don't, he will win on your errors.

I'll have more hints for the club player in the regular June issue of Sports & Fitness Instructor. Pick up your free copy at the nearest Shoppers Drug Mart store. Supply limited.

the question box

IS IT TRUE that some people are born with more strength than others or can anyone become as strong as they want if they work at muscular development?

Strength, like aerobic power (the ability to utilize oxygen during effort) can be innate to a certain degree. Some people are apparently born with more muscle fiber or a different quality of muscle fiber than others and can therefore become stronger.

Everyone who works at it can therefore become stronger, but only a certain number can become strong enough to be competitive weightlifters.

I HEARD that the world record for doing chin-ups is 515. Is this correct?

The world record for doing this exercise from a dead hand position, using both arms, is 106 and was performed by Bill Reed at the University of Pennsylvania on June 23, 1969.

WILL WEAK back muscles cause you to develop a disc problem or back pain generally?

If you are having trouble with your back you should have it checked by an orthopedic specialist. It has been stated that weak back muscles can contribute to the development of a back problem.

In fact, Dr Hans Kraus, one of the world's leading authorities on back problems, has said that 85% of all back problems are due to a lack of muscle strength, tone or flexibility.

Dr Kraus points out, however, that a lack of strength in the abdominal area is the most common cause of back problems, due to a lack of muscle tone. If the abdominal muscles are weak and if the abdominal wall prolapses (drops) this tilts the pelvic area and there is strain on the low back.

'Operation Rescue' for failing diets

by Dorothy Macdonell

EVERYONE who has done any dieting probably knows (and hates) those dining room table heroes who simply breeze through their spartan regime with little apparent effort. Willpower, it seems, comes easy for them.

The rest of us are mortals. Diet is a time for suffering. Reducing is one of those heavensent evils like mosquitos, taxes and lumps in the mashed potatoes, guaranteed to make life difficult.

And being human, we sometimes weaken. Hunger overcomes us. We eat—our diet is destroyed (temporarily, anyway), and we lose self-respect.

So why fight it? Perhaps the answer is not total abstinence, but to know that there are certain foods which can be eaten in a real crisis of character without adding hundreds of calories to the daily intake.

We call these the "Dieter's Rescue Squad." It contains fairly low calorie foods and beverages when taken in moderation, of course) which can be eaten when your determination grows weak or you have cause to celebrate. These are things you can call on when you need bulk to fill your stomach before you start banging your head against the wall.

These life savers will not solve your weight problems, but do give you one way to live with your troubles without becoming suicidal every time you pass a bakery shop or see a food commercial on color television.

Hint: A dill pickle (15 calories) will sharpen up any snack. Always eat everything slowly and take small bites—your food will last longer, and will seem more filling.

ICCS Copter, Car Face Shots, Mine

SAIGON (CP) — The hazardous task facing ceasefire observers in South Vietnam was illustrated twice during the weekend as another helicopter was fired on and a vehicle carrying observers struck a land mine. No one was injured in either incident.

A helicopter flying for the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) was fired on Sunday while over a "contested area" in the Mekong Delta, but was not hit.

An ICCS source said "couple of bursts" of small-arms fire were fired at the helicopter as it flew over Tri Ton, near the Cambodian border. Aboard were four Poles, a Canadian, a U.S. contract employee and the U.S. crew. The Canadian was Capt. Patrick Dillon of Victoria.

It was the third time in a month that an ICCS helicopter has been fired on. The first time, on April 7, one aircraft was shot down, killing nine persons, but the other two times the helicopters were not hit. Capt. C. E. Lavidette, 31, of Quebec City was killed in the April 7 incident.

As a result of this the ICCS has limited its flights to essential missions, restricting its movements and observation of ceasefire violations.

In Ottawa, an external affairs spokesman termed the latest attack deplorable. He said the incident reveals "the difficulty under which the ICCS is functioning."

It is "very disturbing" that such incidents are continuing.

Canada has threatened to pull out of the ICCS and the incidents have added weight to arguments for withdrawal.

In the other weekend incident, a vehicle carrying members of the ICCS hit a mine late Saturday near Ben Het, in the central highlands. None of the occupants of the vehicle was hurt. An Indonesian spokesman said the incident occurred in Viet Cong territory.

Meanwhile, the first Mekong River convoy to reach Phnom Penh in two weeks arrived in the Cambodian capital today after losing a tanker to Communist fire.

Reports reached Phnom Penh that Cambodian insurgents overran a post 34 miles northwest of the capital last Friday, captured about 100 troops and slaughtered them.

Port authorities said the convoy of three tankers, three freighters and three munitions barges from South Vietnam came under heavy attack from shore fire 26 miles from Phnom Penh. One of the tankers carrying petroleum was sunk and two of the freighters were set ablaze by rocket fire. But the freighter crews put out the fires.

The crew of the tanker Vera No. 1 is reported to have jumped overboard before she sank and government gunboats escorting the convoy picked all of them up.

The convoy travelled the 60 miles from the South Vietnamese border to the outskirts of the capital under an umbrella of U.S. and Cambodian jet fighters dropping 500-pound bombs along both banks of the river.

The convoy was the first to brave the Mekong since April 22 and brought fuel and other supplies.

Fighting for Time

Peterborough paddlers dominated the Ontario White Water Championships held on the Moira River in Belleville Sunday. Water levels lower than usual for early May made the course more treacherous than usual, though no injuries marred the events in which more than 50 paddlers took part. For story see first page, sec ond section.

Watergate Prosecutor Will Be Independent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Attorney-General Elliot L. Richardson said today he will head suggestions that he name a special, independent prosecutor to head the investigation of the Watergate bugging scandal.

Richardson said, however, that he has not yet found the right man to head the investigation of the case involving the bugging of Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate Building here during last year's presidential election campaign.

Acknowledging worries over how the Watergate investigation would be pursued, Richardson said:

"After much careful thought about how best to respond to these concerns, I have decided that I will, if confirmed (as attorney-general by the Senate), appoint a special prosecutor and give all the independence, authority, and staff support needed to carry out tasks entrusted to him.

With special emphasis, Richardson said the special prosecutor would report only to him as attorney-general. This seemed to imply that President Nixon would have no direct hand in the investigation.

Richardson, currently the secretary of defence, was nominated by Nixon last Monday to become the new attorney-general and take personal responsibility for the Watergate investigation.

"I would welcome, in addition, an expression by the Senate as a matter of its confidence in him," Richardson said.

There have been numerous calls in the Senate for someone of the calibre of a United States Supreme Court justice, with no ties to the Nixon administration, to investigate the Watergate scandal.

"I have taken into account the fact that, because I have held office in this administration from its beginning, my objectivity may be questioned," Richardson told a news conference.

Richardson will appear before the Senate Judiciary committee Wednesday on his nomination as attorney-general. Because he has yet to be confirmed by the Senate for that job, Richardson declined to answer questions after reading a statement.

Of the search for a special prosecutor, Richardson said: "It may take some time to find the right person." He made no estimate of how long that might be.

Cover-up Knowledge Is Denied

KEY BISCAYNE Fla. (AP) — The Florida White House, on President Nixon's behalf, issued today a sweeping denial of any presidential involvement in the Watergate scandal or a subsequent cover-up.

Although the White House recently has declined to comment on individual news reports relating to Watergate, deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said he felt comment was merited on a Newsweek magazine report.

It said that John W. Dean, ousted White House counsel, "it may take some time to find the right person." He made no estimate of how long that might be.

Time magazine also carried a slightly different account saying basically the same.

Warren's denial also encompassed a report that Nixon had agreed to grant executive clemency to convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Mayors of Cities Hold One-day Conference

TORONTO (CP) — Three months of organizing culminated today in a meeting of mayors of cities across Canada to discuss their relationship with the federal government.

Behind the one-day conference was an idea by Mayor David Crombie of Toronto and Mayor Art Phillips of Vancouver. It was announced in mid-February when Mayor Phillips said one of its purposes would be to get more money from the federal government.

But as late as this weekend, the premiers of the country's two largest provinces poured cold water, in advance, on any suggestion of a municipal income tax.

Premier William Davis of Ontario and Premier Robert Bourassa, after a weekend meeting in Toronto, said they would not welcome any proposal for such a tax should it arise from the mayors' meeting.

Many of the 17 mayors discussed taxes and money in private conference interviews during the weekend. But Albert Campbell, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto, indicated a wish for something else.

New ways of financing cities are "the usual topic of discussion" at such meetings, he said, but he added: "I hope somebody's got something new this time."

Education At Bottom

TORONTO (CP) — The man who heads a commission on post-secondary education in Ontario says the province's educational system has hit "bottom" and must be rebuilt constructively.

"Unstructured programs, elimination of exams, student selection of a wide variety of unrelated subjects, lack of objectives and goals—all are part of our present lax attitude," said D. O. Davis.

Speaking at an Ontario Educational Association conference at York University, Mr. Davis said Saturday institutions should provide career programs paralleling job needs.

"Education and training are one and the same."

The commission on post-secondary education headed by Mr. Davis was set up in 1971 to study higher education in the province. It is made up of businessmen, educationists and professional people.

Jack Nellie, rubmister of colleges and universities, said in an interview after Mr. Davis' speech there must be a fine line between improvisation and career-oriented education.

If we don't want to become totally career oriented," said Mr. Nellie, "That's only one of the ends of higher education."

Scuba Diver Missing

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A Toronto girl is believed to have drowned Saturday night when a life line connecting her and an other scuba diver apparently failed to hold in more than 100 feet of water in Lake Simcoe. Missing is Gillian Macnab, 18, who was diving with three other Toronto persons shortly after midnight in Kempenfelt Bay. Police said the four became mired in mud at a depth of 105 feet. Ian Grant signalled Miss Macnab to drop her belt, then began surfacing. However, the buddy rope connecting their wrists came free.

Four Soldiers Killed

DUBLIN (AP) — A search for guerrillas who blew up three British soldiers just across the border in Northern Ireland netted four men Sunday. They were scheduled to appear in court today in the Irish republic capital. The identities of the four were not announced prior to their court appearance, and it was not known if they have been linked to the killing of the soldiers.

Ernest MacMillan Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Ernest Campbell MacMillan, 79, the first person to be knighted out side the United Kingdom for contributions to music, died Sunday in a Toronto hospital. Knighted by George V in 1935, Sir Ernest was known as the statesman of Canadian music. He was conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra from 1931 to 1956 and under his direction, the Orchestra took its place among the major symphonic organizations of North America.

Plane Runs Away

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A light plane got away from its pilot Sunday when the engine sprung to life and the plane roared forward after he turned the propeller by hand at Hancock Airport. The plane, with Lois Brichard of Montrose, Pa., aboard, crashed into two parked aircraft and did an estimated $20,000 to $40,000 damage. No caused no injuries, Deputy City Aviation Commissioner Robert Welsh said.

Roman's Suit Is Dismissed

OTTAWA (CP) — A damage suit of $194 million brought against Prime Minister Trudeau and former energy minister J. J. Greene was dismissed today by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Stephen Roman and the Roman Corp. Ltd. brought the action against Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene as a result of the federal government blocking the sale of Denison Mines Ltd., owned by Roman, to the U.S.-controlled Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd. in 1970.

Lebanese Tension Is Easing

BEIRUT (AP) — Tension between the Lebanese government and the Palestinian guerrillas was reported easing today despite a guerrilla attack on a border post in the northern part of the country.

Mediators from other Arab governments met Sunday with Lebanese and Palestinian officials in efforts to maintain the ceasefire agreed to last week, after two days of hard fighting.

The secretary general of the Arab League, Mahmoud Riad, met with President Suleiman Frangieh and later said the situation was "improving."

Envoys from Egypt, Syria, Algeria and other Arab countries had contacts with Yasir Arafat, the leader of the Al Fatah guerrillas, and he withdrew a threat to break off talks and leave the country.

The mediators were said to have suggested amending the 1969 Cairo agreement which ended heavy fighting then between the Lebanese army and the guerrillas and laid down ground rules for guerrilla activity in Lebanon.

The army forced the guerrillas out of southern border areas last September after Israeli raids. Most of the guerrillas moved into the 15 Palestinian refugee camps scattered about the country and control them as autonomous territories.

The government wants a new agreement to remove this "state within a state," as President Frangieh calls it. But the guerrillas maintain they should not be any tampering with the accord.

Israelis Mark State Birthday

JERUSALEM (AP) — More than 400 planes roared across the land of the Bible today as Israel celebrated its 25th anniversary with prayers and a three-hour display of the mightiest array of military hardware ever seen at one time in the Middle East.

About 300,000 cheering spectators jammed the decorated streets of Arab and Jewish Jerusalem for the parade. But the birthday was more festive than warlike despite the biggest armed display in the Middle East since the 1967 war.

Troops and police guarded the parade route against guerrilla sabotage and reserve troops were mustered for security, but there were no disruptions.

Prayers for peace were held in synagogues before 2,000 troops and more than 160 tanks and artillery guns moved past Premier Golda Meir, government and military leaders and David Ben-Gurion, the 86-year-old founding father of Israel.

Led by five jets and helicopters towing flags, the Israeli air force provided a roaring umbrella for the festivities.

Thirty Prisoners Are Released by Mexico But Guerrilla Group Still Holds Consul

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — The kidnappers of U.S. Consul-General Terrance Leonhardy were reported making more demands today following the transfer to Cuba of 30 prisoners whose freedom they had demanded.

"The situation has become extremely complicated; they're are new demands," said Gov. Alberto Oronzo Romero of Jalisco state Sunday.

"We just have to wait now. It could be hours or days. . . ."

He did not say what the demands were.

Shortly before, the governor received a note from Leonhardy saying he was being treated well and his kidnappers promised to release him "at the proper moment."

Leonhardy's wife, at home with the couple's two young daughters, received a telephone call from the kidnappers Sunday afternoon saying new instructions would be phoned later.

Officials of the state and federal governments and of the U.S. embassy in Mexico City waited with Mrs. Leonhardy. A special telephone line was installed at the house, apparently to keep the government in Mexico City in close touch.

Outside the house, nearly 100 reporters, photographers, neighbors and onlookers waited throughout night.

Thirty persons were released from jails in six Mexican states Sunday afternoon and flown to Havana in a Mexican air force plane, meeting the ransom demand of the guerrilla group that seized the 58-year-old consul-general Friday evening as he drove home alone.

Most of those released were young people accused of bombings, bank robberies, shootings and subversion. Some had been held since 1971 without trial.

The kidnappers, a revolutionary guerrilla group called the Armed Revolutionary Forces of the People, also demanded nationwide publicity for all communiques they issued. In a statement Saturday night, the kidnappers complained because not all the newspapers in Mexico City published the communiques on the front page.

Leonhardy has spent 30 years in government service and is scheduled to retire next year. He is the first foreign diplomat to be kidnapped in Mexico. There have been two kidnappings of Mexican officials, a university rector and the federal director of aviation. Both were released unharmed after the demands of the kidnappers were met.

Four in Quinte Die on Weekend

Maxwell Barton, 28, died instantly Saturday afternoon when his car was struck by a train in Rawdon Township.

His death was one of four to occur in the Quinte area Saturday. Two McMaster University students drowned in Maxinaw Lake and a Havelock area man was killed while hitch-hiking early in the morning.

Mr. Barton, travelling alone, was eastbound on County Road Nine when he collided with an empty CN ore train on its way to Bancroft. His Pinto was carried 1,800 feet down the track before the train came to a halt.

A former Campbellford resident, Mr. Barton leaves his wife Karen and a young daughter. Mrs. Barton is expecting another child.

A boater coming across Maxinaw Lake shortly after 3 p.m. spotted the body of one of the students floating in the water about a half-mile from shore. He alerted police who discovered the second body when they went out to investigate.

Dead are John Elvikis of Hamilton and Saulius Stelgvilas of the Tillsonburg area, both 21. They were staying at a cottage on the lake with a group of friends for the week-end.

Both were still wearing life preservers but police said they died of exposure. The canoe was found upright nearby, full of water.

Robert Frederick Egan, 26, of RR 2, Havelock, was hitchhiking on take Cordova Road at about 2 a.m. when a car driven by Peter struck him, causing death instantly.

Driver Pauline Ellis of Havelock said police he intended to pick Mr. Egan up but his car slipped on the wet pavement.

On Strike After Four Months of Negotiation

Members of United Auto Workers Local 1839, who walked off the job at 6 a.m., picket Belleville's Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plant on Sidney St. The local represents about 850 production workers. Local 1530 representing some 150 office workers at the Belleville plant has also been on strike since 8 a.m. Negotiations toward a new contract began January 8.

Northern Workers Strike Early

Just six hours before the noon strike deadline today, 850 production workers and 150 office workers walked off the job and set up picket lines at Belleville's Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plant.

United Auto Workers Locals 1839, representing the production staff, and 1530, representing the office employees, went on strike at 6 a.m. today. Contract negotiations began nearly four months ago on January 9 and the strike deadline was set after strike votes held in early April.

Friday saw workers at Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plants in London and Kingston walk off the job. About 1,700 workers were involved at London and 300 in Kingston. The strike deadline affected plants at Belleville, London, Kingston and Brantford.

Chairman of Belleville's Local 1839, Lorna Moses, this morning answered questions with the statement, "There will be a press release later today." Striking members of the local have set up four-hour-a-week shifts on the picket line. Up to 150 pickets paced with placards in front of the plant this morning.

Unofficial contacts said little information had been handed down by the union to employees but that the walkout had been ordered by negotiators in Toronto.

The unions have been in a legal strike position since midnight Thursday, 14 days after receipt of the conciliation officer's report.

Management personnel were unavailable for comment but a spokesman from a statement by a top superintendent, Phillip Gibbs, that the Belleville plant was completely shut down.

Issues under negotiation include salary, vacations, job security, job evaluation and pensions. A new pension plan announced to employees Wednesday is not believed to have played any role in the ongoing contract negotiations.

Trenton Barbershop Quartet is Launched

TRENTON (Staff) — The 41 members of the Trenton Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America received official recognition in unique ceremony here on Saturday night.

Children's Aid Workers Sort Out Priorities

A curious mixture of optimism and pessimism set the tone of Saturday's third annual Federation of Children's Aid Societies delegates convention at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Bargaining agent and alliance for seven of Ontario's 50 children's aid workers associations, FOCAS last week won its first success in the face of dwindling membership within its own ranks.

The Childrens Aid Society Board for Bruce County signed a contract with its staff last week. Another board's workers have application before the Labor Board and two others, including Belleville's CAS, are in the bargaining process now.

FOCAS began in 1969 with 19 member associations. Today it has seven member associations, at least one of them teetering on the brink of withdrawal, and individual members from seven other agencies. There were nine voting delegates Saturday and total attendance was something over 30.

Full-time FOCAS co-ordinator Wendy Estrin put it: "The less membership we have, the less money we have, the less effectively we can operate and the less you can afford to pay me." She draws $85 a week as full-time FOCAS co-ordinator.

Assurance from Bill Lee, who with the University of Toronto researched the structure and dynamics of FOCAS, that a small membership of committed people was at the time better than a large membership for its own sake was greeted with a mixed reaction. Some delegates agreed, others felt a broad base was essential to raise much - needed funds and give weight to the organization. Some questioned the degree of commitment of the small membership.

Recognition of an adversary role for FOCAS and a clear statement of direction, called for both by Wendy Estrin and Bill Lee, was realized by the unanimous support of a proposed policy statement drafted by an ad hoc committee on FOCAS priorities and policy.

The statement was presented by Belleville's Paul Zakos. "Initially, in our naivete, we believed that if we joined together and collectively presented our concerns and needs to the upper levels of board and management, that somehow we would be heard," he said.

"In the process we hoped to gain greater and more democratic input into planning and decision - making at all levels," said Mr. Zakos. "Our experiences to date, strongly and disappointingly indicate that this has been a myth.

"As workers we are time and again put in the awkward position of having to implement services which we know are often irrelevant and ineffectual as they relate not only to the needs of our clients but to our own needs as well," said Mr. Zakos.

"It is the overwhelming opinion of the ad hoc committee that the collective bargaining process is a natural consequence of the persistence of administrators in dealing with staff as ineffectual subordinates rather than capable colleagues," he said. "The stark reality is that the collective bargaining process is the only tool available to those of us who are willing to shoulder our true professional responsibility."

He said tokenism, attempts to make the worker feel guilty or disloyal, threats and intimidations were likely to greet the desire of workers for collective bargaining which he called "the best means of attaining our legitimate goals."

Aims should include the introduction of a system of checks and balances "in order to prevent what we believe to be rather obvious abuses of power and control by the upper levels of CAS administration," he said, and protection of the rights of CAS workers so they could increase their input into the planning and delivery of services.

The policy statement drew the only applause during the day's hard business sessions and is to be posted to all FOCAS members.

Rather more contentious was the proposed budget calling for increased dues. Prepared by FOCAS treasurer Dorothy Rivers, the budget report recommended a monthly fee increase from two dollars to $2.50 for non-bargaining members and $3.50 for bargaining members. It was thought by some the increase would lose FOCAS more members.

Faced with the alternative, an across the board increase to $3.50 with a 25-cent kickback to member associations for local expenses, delegates voted unanimously in favor of the original proposal.

In an attempt to broaden the membership base, a motion was passed allowing membership outside children's aid societies to any social worker with a primary interest in child welfare.

A proposal called on the FOCAS secretariat to establish a public relations committee. This came in response to a suggestion from Bill Lee that FOCAS give greater attention to stands on relevant public issues and draw attention to the organization's concern for the quality of CAS services.

Other motions and proposals aimed at maintaining and invigorating FOCAS were accepted. The official representation at next year's convention, for example, will be broader for member associations.

Hospital Bikeathon Could Raise $8,000

TRENTON The physical part of Saturday's bikeathon to raise funds for refurbishing the children's wing of the Trenton Memorial Hospital went without a casualty among the 300 starters.

The exact financial results, however will not be known for at least two weeks until all pledges have been collected.

Today, one of the organizers, Mrs. W. R. Ellis, reported the potential expected to be turned in could run more than $8,000 if all promises are honored.

Pledges to the project, she confirmed, amounted to $374.65 a mile.

All but 10 of those who started the endurance test completed the 24-mile course.

The organizers set Saturday, May 26, as the date to announce the total money received from the bikeathon and to award prizes to the winners of competitions among those participating.

Leslie M. Frost

To be deserving of the self-conferred title "Old Man Ontario" is, for one thing, to be long associated with a political office and with the region itself.

Leslie Miscampbell Frost, former Progressive Conservative premier of the province, richly deserved the accolade. He held the premiership longer than any other.

But Mr. Frost, whose death has occurred at the age of 77, will be remembered not only for his long service to the province but for his sterling character and forthright ways in both public and private life.

If Mr. Frost's life service was mainly to his native province — he was born in Orillia — his larger patriotism was expressed in the words of this country's first Prime Minister, Sir John A. Macdonald: "A Canadian I was born and a Canadian I will die."

As a young officer in the First World War he served in the front lines. Later in life he wrote a book, Fighting Men, memoirs of the effect of the war on his home town. Few men of his time could claim as close identification with the evolution of Ontario as Mr. Frost. As Premier he symbolized the province's orderly progress, its strength and growth into the stable element it is in the national confederation he leaves no greater legacy than that.

A 'Donnybrook'

The witch-hunt has begun in the United States in the wake of the escalating Watergate scandal. As we have suggested already it will blow over in time, having undergone greater or lesser consequences.

Gallup poll findings indicate there is considerable suspicion that President Nixon was less than frank when he denied prior knowledge of what had been happening. Whether the current inquiries will shed further light on this or not remains to be seen. It is hoped they will, for suspicion alone, in the absence of evidence to confirm or deny it, can be very damaging. And this the President cannot afford to have hanging over him for long.

Globe and Mail columnist Bruce West took a sensible look at the affair the other day and, lamenting what he saw as the "donnybrook" atmosphere of the Watergate affair and the vulture-like lying-in-wait of the public, said in part: "... there is a peculiar lack of ferocity about the attack on the President that I find strangely disturbing. There is this steady erosion in respect for our leaders who, being mere mortals, have flaws the same as the rest of us. I think the intense concentration upon their flaws and the unholy glee with which they are revealed is leading us down a dangerous path. ..."

Meanwhile an organization of Washington editors which analyzes events such as this believes that while Nixon's image as republican party leader will suffer to some degree in the long run little will change. It sees Nixon's reversal of his earlier stand on Watergate and his move to house-clean as working to his advantage and that "the whole mess will bubble up and burst in a fairly short time."

To the question, was Nixon in on the Watergate conspiracies, the editors see no evidence of it. They acknowledge whispers that "he must have known," but add that probably these cannot be proved.

This substantially is our own view and as we noted recently, these things have a way of resolving themselves in a much less dramatic manner than may be supposed in the initial flurry of headlines and allegations of scandal.

Some words of Sir Winston Churchill seem appropriate in this matter. "Any fool," he said. can see what is wrong . . . but can you see what is right?"

Elegant Occasion

University students of a culinary arts course in Wisconsin recently put on a splendid affair that took participants back to the elegant days of dining in spots like Delmonico's.

The name is a famous one in restaurant circles from out of the past and the pictures of this grand affair re-enacted by the students had a lot to do with "the nostalgia bit," as it is father less elegantly expressed in the parlance of our day.

In any event, guests attired in the formal style of a century ago sat down to a magnificent meal prepared by the students. The latter stood to improve their grades for it was all part of the training schedule.

Powerful Naval Build-Up

Soviet and Chinese to Be Reckoned with on High Seas

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Judgments about the world's greatest naval wars are made only when had the largest after Britain's Royal Navy. Next to it in size and completeness for decades were Germany's fleets in two world wars, the United States Navy and up to 1945 Japan, with the French and Italian navies always following on behind.

The Soviet Navy up to 1945 was mentioned only in passing and such truly lesser powers as the Chinese—well, how funny can you get?

However, history and the wildly changing fortunes of nations have stopped that kind of assessment. Th. Royal Navy today is small, smaller in fact than the French Navy, miniscule compared to the United States Navy and the Soviet fleets.

In fact, the Soviet Union, a maligned seapower in 1945 and with just cause, is now the world's second largest naval power, her global navy about to be enlarged with a new attack carrier to be equipped with vertical take-off tactical jets.

And Communist China, whose determined, strong leaders are heirs of a corrupt Manchu Empress who long ago diverted the naval budget to build a still magnificent Peking summer palace, is a seapower to be taken seriously.

Who would believe among the old naval buffs, that the benighted Chinese of the years of gunboat diplomacy along the Yangtse, would become a seapower to her own right? But then China has held the same place in western naval tactical 'class' guns which the Soviet Union held until Russia looked towards the oceans to extend her vaunted land superpower.

A report in the current issue of "Seawolf" the official newsletter of the Naval Officers Association of Canada, tells us the navy of the People's Republic of China is now third in size after the USN and the Soviet Navy. A measure of growth and importance is the number of Chinese conventional submarines, says the news item, with 60 for the Communist Chinese compared to 35 for the Royal Navy, France 31 and Japan 15.

The Communist Chinese Navy has 130,000 officers and men compared to 80,000 for Britain, 70,000 for the French and 40,000 for Japan's Navy, still called "The Maritime Defense Force."

There was no mention of nuclear-powered submarines in the report of which the USN and the Soviet Navy have the lion's share, plus two each in the Royal Navy and the French Navy. China's first nuclear submarine is undoubtedly in the works, will cause the same stir about Peking's search for seapower which the first Soviet nuclear submarine aroused about a decade ago.

However, the Communists Chinese, again like the Russians at an earlier point in time, still have a navy committed to short range operations and the inward defenses of the major maritime areas around Shanghai and Canton.

And Peking's seapower grows in the substantial shadow of not having the Russian expertise with which it began in the late 1950s and early 1960s when the Sino-Soviet split first appeared.

Nevertheless, China has been able to build most of the new naval vessels she needs as well as a modern merchant fleet from the ever growing shipbuilding industry.

The chief difference between China's ocean search for power and her maritime requirements is that she can be self-sufficient in the former, but must rely entirely on her British and American purchases of large jet aircraft to become an international commercial aviation nation.

Provinces to Control Welfare Spending

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — The recent federal-provincial welfare ministers' conference could have made a very substantial advance in government social system. An advance far beyond the ministers' immediate concerns.

The conference reportedly reached agreement that in future the provinces would control the spending of money allocated them for welfare by Ottawa.

Details of the agreement were not announced. But the ministers leaving the conference, including Quebec's Claude Castonguay, were in a buoyant mood.

And if this step has been achieved they well might be, particularly Mr. Castonguay who has had the demand that the provincial governments should have control over spending.

At issue is the point that when Ottawa hands over money to the provinces, it now supplies a good portion of the revenue of all the provincial governments, it lays down rigid lines as to how and how the money is to be spent.

This has always irked the provinces more than a little.

Quebec, for example, has wanted to put more of its welfare money into family allowances. But because of the federal restrictions it has not been able to do so.

But more than irksome this policy, particularly as applied through other government programs, can be a definite handicap.

Thus, as was mentioned here some time ago, in health the big need of Ontario has been for convalescent beds rather than active treatment beds.

But the beds have not been built, at least in the number needed, because the federal health grants only applied to active treatment facilities.

It is logical to assume that if this new principle of freedom of choice is now to apply to welfare it will follow right down the line.

If it does it could remove one of the big obstacles to good federal-provincial relations.

A remaining question is whether the province will follow along in its relationship with the municipalities.

For restrictions on the grants it makes to the lower level of government have been just irksome.

Storm Days' Could Be Official Holidays!

Cornwall
Standard-Freeholder

A suggestion which at least has the merit of considerable originality was made by Alexandre Desautels a planner for the Montreal Traffic department.

Mr. Desautels recommended that days of severe storms in cities like Montreal should be declared holidays. There is much more to this idea than appears at first thought.

In the first place, it goes against tradition, in that employers have always demanded, and without reason that employees should be present every working day except in unusual circumstances.

But during really severe storms business comes to a standstill anyway, and one of the big hazards is the number of people trying to get to work. It is always frightfully expensive to clear streets on an emergency basis. If it was made a legal thing, so to speak, that employees would not lose by staying at home, then costs and hazards would be greatly reduced.

On the other hand, we can think of a problem that would be quite annoying if such a measure came into effect. It would not be easy to decide where the dividing line was between an enforced holiday and business as usual. Some office body would have to decide on the morning of a severe storm just what to do.

School boards are faced with this problem. We have a rule schools buses on the roads when we thought they shouldn't be and we have seen them cancelled when travelling seemed little or no problem. It would be all that easy to cancel out a city's business when nature acted up because the problem would seem to each individual affected as one of degree.

But some such provision would solve a lot of problems on certain days when nature goes wild in a Canadian winter. Moreover, it would cost much, if any, more small amount of business done in an inefficient manner when storms are raging would be more than made up for in savings on street repairs, motor vehicles, and especially wear and tear on the people involved. We don't quite see how the practical details would work out but Mr. Desautel's suggestion is worthy of some consideration.

Public Apathy Greets Road Toll

Hamilton Spectator

Sixty-eight Canadians died in highway accidents on the Easter weekend. This is the highest Easter weekend traffic loss on record, but, as far as general public reaction is concerned, the slaughter was hardly worth noticing.

Perhaps it is the indifference to traffic death that is the worst feature of the slender, relentless, continuing disaster that grinds down over 5,000 lives a year.

As the quickly-forgotten inquests inevitably prove, most accidents could have been avoided. The lives lost are lost needlessly, uselessly, often foolishly.

But that fact, like the loss of life itself, is taken for granted as a normal, everyday happening. Avoidable traffic death has become firmly accepted.

If the 68 Easter traffic victims perished in an airplane crash or in an outbreak of disease, the collective tragedy would have been the talk of the nation. Inquiries would be set up and politicians would utter deep concern, every effort would be made to ensure that it didn't happen again.

In the case of an air crash, flight rules and crew training might be drastically changed, by act of Parliament if necessary, if an epidemic struck down 68 people in one weekend, public health preventive measures would be in evidence from coast to coast.

But when 68 die in traffic? The newspaper yawns.

To suggest that the problem is insurmountable is nonsense. Police, government transport, agencies, the many specialists who devote their lives to the study of safety and accidents know the causes of traffic deaths and their knowledge, if transformed into action by the politicians, could reduce the slaughter.

There is no substantial pressure to reduce accidents. Unless that pressure develops or unless an outstanding politician with rare foresight and courage tackles the problem, the accident rate will continue to worsen. (Ontario's last annual statistical accident report showed the quality of driving deteriorating and the accidents-per-mile rising).

Apparently it will take more than 68 deaths in one weekend to shock the nation out of its indifference. If that is possible.

Exercise and Fitness

Peterborough Examiner

Did you read the story of the seven Toronto heart attack victims who entered the Boston Marathon race and ran 26 miles.

The news of this unusual feat astonished many people. The common belief is that a heart attack victim is just about finished with life and all he can do is sit around and wait for his next attack.

That isn't true.

As these extraordinary long-distance runners have proved, a person can live a very useful and active life even after more than one heart attack.

It has been proven that physical exercise can help a person avoid a second heart attack, or, better than that, a first heart attack.

The heart patients who entered the Boston Marathon started running under the supervision of their doctor and achieved something that many "healthy" people would be unable to do.

Can you run 26 miles?

Medical evidence shows that some heart attacks are directly attributable to the almost total lack of physical exercise in our lives.

In the old days, every aspect of everyday life involved physical work. People had an exercise problem. If they wanted their meat, they had to go out and get wood; if they wanted water they had to go and dig a well; and if they wanted shelter, they had to build a house - usually by hand. They achieved heart strength. Then, as civilization progressed, people began to look for ways to avoid having to do all that hard physical work. They designed machines which could cut wood, dig wells and build houses.

After a while, when people began to get heart attacks amid all the comforts of modern life, the best brains in the world invented wondrous drugs and medical and surgical treatment to keep them alive.

Watergate Aftermath

The Globe and Mail

President Richard Nixon in a remarkable speech to the American people put the Watergate Affair in a context which many of his friends at home and abroad had refused to accept.

He admitted — and took full responsibility for — the fact that the implication of close friends and confidants in the Watergate bugging and subsequent efforts to cover-up had resulted in his high office and faith in American politics.

The President summoned up all of his personal qualities over the immediate and long-term future of his country and by doing so acknowledged that they could be jeopardized if the steps needed be taken to pursue those responsible should fail. America's role in the Year of Europe, disarmament, Mid-East development, inflation — these and no matter concerns would demand and receive his abiding attention. But only because he is confident that Attorney-General will fearlessly and relentlessly pursue the facts wherever they lead.

Pundits in the past have not hesitated to criticize Mr. Nixon for his folksy appeals to sentiment and patriotism. They may not be so quick to do so today. The sincerity of his voice has no surgery in the American conscience that even strong criticism of his Administration has not shaken. The great array of colors is decidedly beautiful.

Interest in War Museum Changes with Generations

Interest in the Canadian War Museum of the National Museum of Man in Ottawa comes mainly now from picture editors, publishers and historians.

"It's a fair length of time since I've had a 15-year-old girl come in and say 'please could I see daddy's picture'," said war museum curator Major Robert F. Wodehouse.

In Belleville to speak at Saturday's Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment officers' mess dinner it was Maj. Wodehouse who selected the display of wax-colors from World War II for the regiment's A company open day, Sunday.

"The war was 25 years ago — before today's youth were born. Ten years ago they remembered their parents talking about it, and now, it's a long time ago," he said. "Interest won't disappear though — these things go in cycles."

"I am very much struck by the number of graduate students in art history who are writing very learned tomes on the artists of 1915-1920. I'm in continual correspondence with people about those," said Maj. Wodehouse. "Two generations — and there's a revival of interest."

"I'm talking about the works as works of art," he said. "As far as the general public is concerned there is a group which finds the whole thing repugnant since Vietnam." He said he had come across this amongst summer students who had worked for him.

With 3 years behind him in the army, the war years spent in photo interpretation duties and with the Intelligence Corps until his retirement in 1962, Maj. Wodehouse, 60, more resembles a good - humored grandfather than a warrior. "I was engaged in it," he said of World War II. "I took part in it. I thought at the time it was the right thing to do — I still think it was."

"I regard the paintings as historical documents done by the best men available at the time and an added value is that color photography was very restricted in World War II," he said.

"They record the very terrible destruction, the simple man doing his job and risking his life under great hardship and danger. Or they record the very young airmen who had less chance of coming out alive if he was in Bomber Command than as an infantryman in World War I," said Maj. Wodehouse. "They are part of our history, good or bad."

He felt that since battlefields had come to include cities and civilians as targets, again one now talks about the heroism of the ordinary man.

"People who get medals do so because, perhaps, they are the survivors, perhaps they did something extraordinarily out of the way that saved a lot of lives or brought about a successful operation," he said. "I think the air force way of giving the Distinguished Flying Cross for having survived 13 tours in a bomber aircraft deserves a lot of merit."

Certain types of war art glorify war he said — particularly the Italian called the Royal Academy type of commissioned painting".

"It's a matter of taste," said Maj. Wodehouse. "Elizabeth Butler, for instance, painted the most horrible scenes, really, if you know what she was doing. But she was shocked when she went on manoeuvres with her husband at Aldershot to see how sweaty and dishevelled the soldiers were in battle."

"There are acres of studio canvass done in the mid-19th. century which were bought by Queen Victoria and others, it was the taste at the time," he said. "Today it's distinctly unfashionable because it's the sort of thing Hitler did in his official art."

"That's why, deliberately, in this last fracas the artists were part of the historical section.

One very senior artist told me they were told to paint objectively what they saw and to forego any extremes of style that would interfere with the objectiveness and reliability of their painting. And they did it," said Maj. Wodehouse.

"A cavalry charge in World War I which Sir Alfred Munnings painted at the request of the survivors was a real heroic," he said. "And it's quite a favorite amongst the men who took part in those things. You can't exclude that for people who saw something that was very spectacular. They like to remember it — you can't ignore it."

The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring...

Already

enjoying the fruits of last fall's labours, Belleville Garden Club members displayed their flowery efforts Saturday at the Quinte Mall. Mrs. Kitty Cox and club president Cecil Becker help Jim McCulloch hang wild plum branches to decorate their booth. About 30 members displayed plants and cut flowers including African Violets, daffodils, forsythia, tulips, geraniums, marsh marigolds and flowering currant.

Pedalling their way to Belleville Airport are Colombe Both, on the tricycle, Marion McFaul and Dolly Reed, officers of the Business and Professional Women's Club on a charity bikeathon. The funds they raised go for bursaries.

Tips for Non-gardeners

While really bright gardeners are already enjoying daffodils and tulips and crocus, ungreen thumbers (they see no connection between fall planting and spring gardens) are just now getting around to their seed catalogues.

And while some people are licking their lips over sweet corn and tomatoes to come, really avid vegetable gardeners have already planted beets and carrots as well as the peas and onions.

Either you're a gardener or you're not.

If you're not, but would like a few flowers and a couple of cucumbers anyway, there's lots of advice available from Canada's seed houses.

If you want a perennially blooming border for your home - you know; plant once and forget about it - plant these: alyssium, delphinium, sweet Williams, daylily, phlox, shasta daisies, minilowers, anemones, asters and chrysanthemum. Absolutely guaranteed to bloom from April 1 to October.

If your soil is poor, you can plant cosmos, alyssum, marigolds, morning glory, nasturtium, zinnia, petunia, sunflower. If your garden is shady, try anemone, delphinium, larkspur, pansy, poppy or viola. If it's wet, larkspur, marigold and hibiscus.

More.

An amazing number of vegetables can be sown directly into the garden already. A list: beets, cabbage, carrots, chicory, cress, dill, endive, lettuce, mustard, okra, onions, parsley, parsnip, peas, radish, salsify, spinach, swiss chard and turnips.

If you fear a frost, you can make on the spot greenhouses right in the rows: simply bend wire - coathangers for example - into hoshapes and poke into the ground along your rows about every foot. Cover with strips of 10mm clear plastic. Hold down the edges with a little soil. Cut a few air vents, and you're in business.

If you're not far behind in your gardening you haven't even got your seed catalogues yet, write Dominion Seed House, Georgetown, Ontario or Stokes Seeds Ltd. Box 10, St. Catharines, Ont.

DEALERS' I.D.

Consumers' Association of Canada reminds shoppers that as of December 1, 1972, the Textile Labelling Act calls for the dealer, the individual or firm responsible for labelling the article, to be identified by name and address or a special identification number. This number is granted upon application to the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. If a shopper cannot get satisfaction for a complaint from the retailer and only a number appears to identify the dealer, he or she should write Box 99, Ottawa, to obtain the name and address of the firm he wishes to contact. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Treat Patients As People

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Nurses should be trained to treat patients as people entitled to, some say in their care, Myra Levine, associate professor of nursing at Loyola University in Chicago, said Friday.

"We shepherd the patient into bed . . . we edit film in the delivering, playing dishonest games and leaving him to his lonely struggle."

Mrs. Levine was addressing about 1,000 nurses attending the second day of the three-day annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

She said she believes there is enormous public dissatisfaction with the quality and quantity of health care at a time when care technology and resources are greater than they have ever been before.

She said some people can get no care at all and others care that is only adequate.

"We hear constantly how dehumanized and lacking in personal attention nursing care has become.

"We have become our own enemies, richer in resources than ever before, but poverty-stricken for the lack of ways to bring that largess to the public."

Mrs. Levine said nurses need to establish their own criteria of nursing education, continuing education and certification.

She said it was made difficult for hospital diploma nurses to get into degree courses, and when they do, they are often taught by people who have their highest degrees in other areas because nursing has no doctorates of its own.

She said in the U.S. there is a move to make some continuing education mandatory for relicensing.

"Some means of ensuring competency is a social necessity and another way the consumer is given full partnership and not a token role."

Pedallers Raise Funds

More than 60 members of Belleville's Business and Professional Women's Club pedalled their way to the airport early Sunday to raise about $1,000 for charity.

The women, who assembled at City Hall at 7:30 a.m., were started on their route by Mayor Robin Jeffery.

City police escorted the women part of the way.

"It was a good turn-out," Shirley Woodcox reports. The funds will assist in bursaries for nurses, she said.

After the bike ride, several members were treated to flights over the city, courtesy of the Belleville Flying Club.

National Council of Women Concerned with Women's Status

SASKATOON (CP) — Apart from such radical topics as abortion on demand, the concerns of the women's liberation movement are the same that have occupied the National Council of Women for years, says Helen Hnatyshyn, council president.

The difference is that the former is doing its work with publicity while the latter is doing it without, Mrs. Hnatyshyn added.

"Maybe I shouldn't say this, but I think perhaps there is a little resentment towards women's lib. . . . All the concerns which women's lib has are things we have been working on for years.

"Women's lib has received a great deal of publicity. We haven't.

"We don't seek publicity. We don't do anything to attract attention to ourselves. But we're in there pitching."

Mrs. Hnatyshyn, widow of Senator John Hnatyshyn of Saskatoon, said the council is not against the movement.

"We applaud them because they have brought to public attention many important matters.

"If we're opposed to anything, it's their publicity-hungry attack on things."

The council uses a more subdued approach to bring its concerns to the fore.

"The status of women is our big thing now," said Mrs. Hnatyshyn, noting that it formed the substance of much of the council's latest presentation to the government Feb. 26. It advocated such things as establishing more day care centres and the right of women to higher education.

"We also represent a lot of housewives—you know, women in the home. We're concerned that they're not in the Canada Pension Plan. We're very concerned about this."

Mrs. Hnatyshyn said it is difficult to estimate the council's over-all membership.

There are local and provincial councils, federated with the national council; plus 20 national organizations and societies such as Girl Guides, Anglican Church Women and the Jewish Council of Women, which are also federated with the National Council of Women.

"Our membership depends on how their memberships fluctuate. We claim that we have at least 750,000 women represented by the council."

The average age of council members isn't necessarily higher than it was a decade ago.

"I think it's a misconstrued opinion that the council is full of older women. I first came into the council when I was in my 30s.

"Since the appearance of the status of women (commission) report, many (younger women) have taken women's organizations very seriously.

"Of course, when you get to the level of the national council, members are older."

Mrs. Hnatyshyn said the aim of the council originally was to ensure "the welfare of the family and society in general," and this hasn't really changed.

"The problems we deal with may have changed, but I do not think the aims have.

"The council tries to attract young members, she said. "We're forever urging them at the local level to bring in knowledgeable young women to head committees."

At present, the council was reviewing its structure and goals with a view to establishing a more efficient operative organization.

The council, as it is, had an awkward structure.

"We will go down the line, trying to find means of shortening the lines of communication (among the numerous organizations and sub-councils) so we can speak more quickly on any topic.

"Communication is very important today."

Despite some financial strains—"our income is fairly static but costs have gone up" —there was no sign that the council would disband.

"I think there will always be room for the National Council of Women."

Helen Hnatyshyn of Saskatoon, president of the National Council of Women, says the concerns of the women's liberation movement are the same that have occupied the council for years. The difference is that women's lib is doing its work with publicity and the council is doing it without, Mrs. Hnatyshyn says. (CP Photo)

Ann Landers

Scratched Ankles Stabbed in Night

Ann Says Sleep With Socks On

Dear Ann Landers: So you think you have had every problem under the sun? I'll bet you will be surprised to find a brand new one today.

My husband has long toenails. They are very sharp and I have awakened with scratched ankles more often than I care to remember.

Last night he really stabbed me. I actually yelled. It was 2:00 a.m. The dog began to bark. I told him I had had it with his toenails and that I am buying twin beds. He promised to trim his toenails but he has done this before and they grow like crazy.

Please, Ann, give me some advice.—Love Hits But He's Dangerous

Dear Love: Tell King Kong to sleep with his socks on. Simple, wasn't it?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I read something in the paper that disgusted and shocked me. I am appalled by the selfishness of people, their lack of consideration for elderly friends, neighbors and relatives. This week I read where two very old women (one in Ohio, the other in Illinois) were found dead in their homes, frozen. They had died of starvation and exposure. No one ever thought to look in on these people. When their bodies were discovered by neighbors, they had been dead two months.

Is it asking too much to phone an elderly aunt or great-grandmother or cousin, or even a friend once or twice a week to see if they are sick and need something? Or what a treat it would be for these lonely folks if someone came by and took them for a ride, or out for a meal. I do hope that every person who reads this will think of someone who has been forgotten for a long while. Give him or her a call. It would be a wonderful surprise.—I Loved My Parents

Dear L.L.: Yes, it would—and I can promise you that the letter will send many people to the telephone today. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a small office and my boss smokes constantly. I've seen him go from a pipe to a cigar to a cigarette within one day. I have a heart condition and sometimes I actually gasp for breath.

My doctor gave me an article from the Journal of the American Medical Association and suggested I hand it to my boss. I don't have the nerve, but I know my boss reads your column every day. Will you give me a hand? Here's what the article said:

cation was asked if there is evidence to support recent claims that a non-smoker with all-day exposure to a smoke-filled room inhales as much smoke as though he himself had smoked a pack of cigarets. Dr. Dukelow said, 'Positively.' He went on to cite several studies and reported that cigaret smoking in a closed room soon makes the concentration of nicotine and dust particles so high that the non-smoker inhales as much harmful tobacco by-products as the man who has smoked several cigarets."

Another study showed that smokers' children are ill more frequently than non-smokers' children—usually with respiratory ailments. This last point alone might get to smokers who don't care about themselves but do care a lot about their kids. Thanks, Ann.—Cumberland, Maryland.

Dear Cum: Not a day goes by that I don't get a half dozen letters from children who asked me how to get Mom or Dad (or both) to quit smoking. I hope these children will send this column to their parents and say, "If you won't quit for yourself will you please quit for me?"

Seat Belts Safe But Not For Kids

Doris Clark

Dear Doris: I agree with you in applauding "Faithful Reader's" good principle and practice of using safety belts as a habit from her children's earliest years; but please point out to her - urgently - that adult seat belts are not safety belts to small children.

By letting them use adult seat belts she is risking terrible injury to her little ones, whose pelvic bones are not sufficiently developed to withstand the pressure of concentrated restraint in a bump. Until they are five years old, or till they are five years old, or weigh 50 pounds, children should use either a safety shield type of seat or a webbing harness which will distribute the pressure safely; and of course either should meet approved standards. — Mrs. E. T.

Dear Doris: Consumer Reports gives results of tests done on car seats:

"Adult seat belts are not a satisfactory alternative to a good restraint for small children. According to medical experts, children under the age of four or weighing less than 40 pounds should not wear a conventional lap belt: their insufficiently developed pelvic bones could let the belt slip up over the abdomen, where it could cause internal injuries in an accident. And children shorter than 55 inches should not wear a shoulder belt; the webbing would ride too high and could injure the childs neck.

I suggest that all parents with small children investigate the purchase of the proper, safe car restraint for their child. It is indeed a small price to pay for the safety of their children. — Mrs. W. S.

Dear Mrs. E. T. and Mrs. S. S.: Thank you. Our readers will be grateful for this caution about safety belts and children.

Dear Doris: I am soon to be maid of honor at a wedding. Do I take the bride's bouquet after handing the grooms wedding band to the minister? When do I give it back?

Do I sit next to the bride at the reception? Do I help the bride with her going away outfit? — Excited.

Dear Excited: You really need a good etiquette book, or my leaflet "Happy The Bride The Sun Shines On (25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope). Yes, take the bouquet but let the best man do his thing himself - let him hand the wedding band to the minister.

Give the flowers back after the vows have been exchanged. Sit on the groom's left at the reception. Help the bride with anything she needs help with. When the couple leaves help her mother with the rest of the party.

Dear Doris: About the couple that were inquiring about foster children. I have three. They all have chores to do, and they love doing them. You never have to remind them.

As for religion, when I attend church, I take them with me. I have learned never to push or force anything on them. Let them take their time and adjust to you. They need to feel they are important, which they are. — A Foster Parent.

Dear Parent: How fortunate that there are foster mothers like you!

Get pollution off your chest.

Ontario is a fast-growing province—more people, more vehicles, more factories, more machines every day.

With that growth comes the threat of damage to our environment. Pollution of all kinds.

The Ministry of the Environment is Ontario's guardian of our air and land and water. Here's who we are and what we do:

Air Pollution.

1. We monitor the air for pollution and order corrections if unacceptable levels occur.

2. We track down strange odours in the air and many things you can't smell and eliminate them if they are dangerous.

3. We investigate suspected air pollution injury to people or property.

4. We are responsible for noise pollution and are creating enforceable noise control measures.

Land Pollution.

1. We deal with all the leftovers of our affluent society—the industrial waste, processed organic wastes, and ordinary garbage. And regulate its transportation and disposal.

2. We study recycling as an aid to reducing quantities of waste and to avoid depletion of our natural resources.

3. We control the use and application of pesticides which are unacceptable for pollution reasons.

Water Pollution.

1. We protect all of Ontario's water sources from pollution.

2. We develop and control surface and ground water resources.

Meagher Plays Year For Cats

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(First of Series)

The 1972-73 season for Rick Meagher's first and last year with the Belleville Bobcats. But what a year!

Without question, the centre was one of the major factors in the Cats' success during the first year of play in the 10-team Metro Junior B loop.

After finishing third in the league standings with 33 goals and 30 assists, Meagher went on to score eight goals and assist on 23 others to cool the Bobcats in points through the Peterborough, Oshawa and Toronto Nats playoff series.

The Metro league didn't finesse at his performance either as he received the Rookie of the Year honors as well as a slot on the East all-star team.

The ever modest centre admitted that it "was one of my better years," but said "I was playing with a lot of good hockey players."

Despite the credit Meagher seems to wish to give the other players, his ability on the ice has earned him recognition from interests south of the border.

Four universities and one semi-pro league have expressed their desire to sign him, but Meagher will go to Clarkson University in Potsdam, New York on a full athletic scholarship should Boston University fail to accept his application.

"I won't accept Clarkson's offer until I hear from Boston," said Meagher. "One good thing about Boston is that my brother, Terry, is there. He'd be able to show me around. But Clarkson is a lot smaller and on top of that was rated third in the NCAA last year. Boston was rated seventh.

"I prefer going to the States rather than stay in Canada. Universwity hockey there is better. It's faster and they pick players from a wider area than do our universities."

Summing up his own year with the Bobcats, Meagher said, "there was a little too much favoritism on the team. I don't know whether it was that or whether it was bad moves on the part of the management."

One example Meagher cited was that of defenceman Darrell Cole.

"I didn't see him being cut. He could have helped us in the playoffs. He was big, he knew how to hit and knew what to do with the puck. But Moe (Bobcats' coach Moe Harney) wasn't playing him, so he packed his bags and left.

After 50 odd regular season and playoff games, Rick Meagher is also leaving the Bobcats and Belleville for a business administration course and a different style of hockey.

Peterborough Kayak Paddlers Dominate Moira White Water

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Peterborough paddlers dominated the winners' circle over the weekend taking eight of 21 trophies offered in the Ontario Championships in white water racing, held on the Moira River.

More than 30 paddlers travelling from all points in the province and from Quebec took part in the race against the clock.

Starting from below the dam at Riverside Park, paddlers threaded their way down the river which now is at June depth creating a thrilling, turbulent course. Without incident all 50 boats arrived safely at the harbor concluding one of the safest races the Moira River has seen.

With co-operation of the parks board, the race sponsored by the Ontario Canoe Cruisers was hailed as one of the safest in the province. Athand were the Emergency Measures Organization, St. John Ambulance and several volunteers ready to assist a distressed boat.

On hand to watch the race were members of the Canadian Olympic team, scouting for paddlers to enter in the world championships next year and in the '76 summer games.

Heinz Poenn, the Olympic team coach and Eric Mahshaw, Canada's top paddler watched the race from the bank. Following the main event, Mr. Penn took the first four boats in each of the categories and asked them to do the race again, this time starting from above the dam. No names were released following the trial with Mr. Poenn choosing to take the day's highlights home with him to consider.

In the one-man kayak event using downriver boats, Harry Hewitt of Millgrove won with the best time of the day for any class at 12 minutes and nine seconds.

Don Irvine and Paul Nickle both of Peterborough placed second and third.

Syed Thiel of Southwold placed third.

In the junior downriver category, first and second place went to Peterborough paddlers Tim Wilson and Allan Westman. Third was Deiter Poenn of Newmarket.

In the one-man junior slalom category Harold Van Wissen of Peterborough placed first, second was Richard Bayly of Toronto and third was Peterborough paddler David Lewis.

In the women's kayak class Ann Hohmann of Guelph placed first, second was Ann Bridley of Mississauga and third was Ann Timmermans.

In the two-man mixed canoe class, Jan Theakston and Tom Jack of Toronto were first, second was Jim and Jean McColl and third was Barry and Anne Robertson of Kingston.

The Kingston paddlers were the only entrants from the area. Not one Belleville paddler was fielded for the event.

In the one-man canoe class Art Hohmann from Guelph placed first, second was Dennis Hendry of Etobicoke and third was Wally Dashenko of Willowdale.

White Water Threat

Looking like he's tempting the devil, this paddler and others like him baffled crowds along the bank of the Moira River, manoeuvring with ease in the turbulent waters. Peterborough paddlers dominated the Ontario White Water Championships taking eight of 21 trophies.

Lacrosse Gains Convert to Game

The game of lacrosse has made a convert of one of the caretakers at Quinte Secondary School. According to Roy Payne, Belleville Minor Lacrosse president, the man had never seen the game before it played here, but after he saw some of the practices held at the school he asked "can I come out to your games."

The BMLA executive and membership are considering to further stimulate this type of interest in the native game of Canada by running a tournament later this year.

Since peewee tourneys have been slotted for various parts of the province under the Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association's sanction, the BMLA members considered either a novice or bantam or a combination of both divisions in an under B rated two-day competition.

It is hoped the tournament would serve to stimulate interest in lacrosse in Belleville. It would also allow boys who do not play to come out and see what kind of a game it is according to Payne.

The BMLA will hold another meeting before the start of the regular season to further discuss the possible establishment of the tourney.

Male Scores Five

The mud may have been ankle deep and the air on the sharp side of cool, but Gordon Male was hot.

Despite his five goals however, the Quinte Secondary School student could not spark his teens enough to beat Moira Trojans Friday. The Saints lost their fifth game of the Bay of Quinte OFSAA cross season 10-5 to maintain their winless record. Ivor Chapman scored the other goal.

Jack Green with three and Kent Manning with two goals led the Trojans to their second victory in their four games to date. Last week's game against the Saints was called off due to lack of offitials.

Moira finished out the regulation 40 minutes of play with only two players eligible as substitutes according to coach Hugh Cook. With nine players missing for various reasons and three disqualified from further play on the YMCA field by the referees, Moira ended the game with 12 men suite to play.

Though Quinte was not staffed with a full complement of 24 players, only two players were kicked out of the game by referees. Not only was Quinte player shy, but coach Wally Uhrynuk was absent, his place taken by OFSAA's winning basketball coach Jim Murray.

Peewee Game Forfeited After Protest

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Bob Gray, Belleville Minor Hockey Association peewee convener, put it simply. "When you come down to it, he threw the game."

It wasn't just another peewee house league game, but the B division championship match-up between Motorland Chrysler and Belleville Plaza 33.

After Motorland's 4-3 overtime victory against Plaza, assistant coach Tom Weaver lodged a protest alleging improper player rotation on the part of Motorland.

"We had the responsibility as the executive to hold up our end of the rules," said Blake Moynes, BMHA president, "we felt that there was justification for a new game to be played."

But the rematch scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday was not attended by the members of Motorland coach Ron Redner's team. As a result, convener Bob Gray awarded the game and the grand championship of the division in the Belleville Plaza club.

"Just for a few minutes, they're going to take that away from us," said Ron Redner, "I phoned all the players on my team and 12 of the 13 said they didn't want to play the game again."

Redner said that his team considered the grand championship game played Monday night a farce, one which earned them the peewee minor grand championship.

But the protest lodged by Plaza forced the executive to call for a rematch on the grounds that Motorland double dribbled its players in the second death overtime period. The winning goal was scored when a power line was on the ice according to Moynes.

Redner gave his players a lack of interest as one reason for his refusal to play the rematch. Since both himself and his assistant coach would have been out of town for Thursday's game, the team would have had no one guiding their bench.

"Some parents approached me indicating that it could turn into a scuffle," said Redner in reference to the referees were hot because they did not feel the complaint should have been lodged against the team.'

"I think their (Plaza's management) feelings are that we stacked a line, but I didn't do anything intentional. I was warned that I had one player out there that I wasn't playing enough.

"But I had two extra players and I left it to them to sort out the shifts themselves. I got keyed up in the game and couldn't keep my eye on everything."

Redner said that with 18 players it is difficult to juggle them so they all get equal time on the ice as the BMHA house league rules state.

Redner said he need 15 players to fill out three shifts, other coaches have told me that they don't call players that aren't as good.'

Les Wolfe, coach of the Belleville Plaza team, said that not showing for the rematch "simply indicates to me that he (Redner) doesn't follow the rules. It's a poor show on someone's part on that team.

"I don't know whether you can put it in a nutshell, but I know that a coach is there to make sure mistakes aren't made.

"There is some fault on the convener's part in not catching it soon enough, but I think they should rely on the coaches not to do anything wrong."

Registrations Up in Thurlow

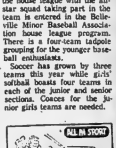
Minor sports registrations are up in all divisions for 1973 reports the Thurlow Recreation Committee.

Baseball, softball and soccer programs are very nearly ready to get under way and as is the case almost everywhere these days, all that is necessary is some co-operation from the weatherman.

At the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association level, Thurlow will be represented in the peewee section. A bantam tyke, peewee and bantam divisions. Last year's Tyke championship had two teams advance to the finals and another to the semi-finals.

Three tyke teams make up the house league with the all-star squad taking part in the team is entered in the Belleville Minor Baseball Association house league program. There is a four-team midget grouping for the younger baseball enthusiasts.

Soccer has grown by three teams this year with girls' softball boasts four teams in each of the junior and senior sections. Centres for the minor girls teams are needed.



"Will you lend me back part of the boom I gave you, kid? The mortgage is due on the ball park!"

Smith Reports Tyke Registration Higher

The Belleville Minor Softball Association with registrations all but completed for the 1973 season, has a coaches and umpires meeting scheduled for May 9 at the Recreation - Arena Centre at 7:30 p.m.

Association president Don Smith reports early registrations up over 1972 and this has made it necessary to add at least one and possibly two teams to this division. Last year, the tyke section was a six team grouping.

Smith is enthusiastic over the calibre of coaches the association has in the fold this season but adds more help is required in this part of the operation.

Habs Reaching For 16th Stanley Cup

CHICAGO (CP) — Montreal Canadiens could be shouldering the Stanley Cup for the 16th time since 1927 Tuesday night, a National Hockey League record, and the man who carries it could be playing his last game.

Thirty-seven-year-old Henri Richard has provided an inspiration to the younger players this season, and it was never more in evidence than Sunday's 4-0 victory over Chicago Black Hawks that gave the Canadiens a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven NHL final.

"The way he's skating now he's good for five more years," said Marc Tardif, who scored the first goal and set up the insurance score by Yvan Cournoyer in a game that was dominated by Montreal skaters.

"There are a lot of guys 25 years old in this league who should be retired before Henri. He just keeps skating all the time while they seem to be standing around."

Richard, the greying Montreal captain and brother of Rocket Richard, didn't pick up a point against the Hawks, but it was obvious from his efforts the youngsters on the team were following his lead.

"He's really got to impress you with his size and guts," Tardif said in a post-game interview.

Richard has said on occasion he will be retiring after this, his 18th season in the league. He has, however, hedged on making a total commitment to his retirement, saying he will make his decision known after the playoffs are over.

"I can tell you," added Tardif, "he will be sorely missed if he does quit."

The goal by Cournoyer was his 13th of the playoffs and left him one away from the post-season record held by teammate Frank Mahovlich.

"I'm not thinking about the record," the swift little right winger said. "The Stanley Cup is more important."

Chuck Lefley and Claude Larose completed the Montreal scoring. Lefley making it 3-1 Tardif, M 5 6 11

"They (Canadiens) weren't just moving the puck around casually, they were going for the net all the time."

The Hawks have lost 13 straight playoff games on Montreal ice and Hawks centre Pit Martin said the odds are against their breaking that string Tuesday in the fifth game.

Ex-Canadien Ralph Backstrom, however, was hopeful.

"I can't see them playing much better," said Backstrom. "But their defence played exceptionally well.

"If we looked bad," said Backstrom, "it was because they made us. They controlled the game."

How well the Montreal defence, led by Lapointe, Serge Savard, Pierre Bouchard, Larry Robinson and Bob Murdoch, controlled play was apparent from the number of saves Dryden had to make in chalking up his first shutout in 41 playoff games.

The Montreal goalie had to make just 20 saves and he counted the tough ones on one hand later in the Canadiens locker room.

"I can recall a couple of hard ones in the second period," Dryden said. "And there was one by Dennis Hull late in the game."

It marked the first time Chicago had been blanked in 69 playoff games.

Jacques Lemaire, who along with Tardif dominated play for the Canadiens their biggest scoring threat Sunday, credited Montreal's skating with keeping the Black Hawks bottled up in their end most of the game.

"We were getting on top of them and they couldn't skate," said the slick centre. "Skating made the big difference, but then Esposito made some real good saves."

Tardif didn't think the Hawks played any different. "They've had in earlier games in the series.

"I think they played their usual game. It was just that we skated harder for the whole game."

Tie at Top

Yvan Cournoyer scored one goal and earned an assist on another Sunday in Montreal Canadiens' 4-0 win over Chicago Black Hawks to move into a tie for the individual scoring lead in the Stanley Cup playoffs. The goal, his 13th, and the assist, on Marc Tardif's goal of the game, gave him 21 points and tied him with Chicago's Dennis Hull.

Marlies Tired for Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — The annual round-robin tournament for the Memorial Cup, the top prize for major Junior A hockey league teams, begins tonight at the Forum.

And when the well-rested Quebec Remparts take to the ice tonight, they will be meeting what should be a tired representative from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Toronto Marlboros won the OHA title Saturday night by battling to a 5-5 tie with Peterborough Petes, taking the eight-point final 8-6. It took the Marlies seven games to dispose of the rugged Petes, finalists in last year's Memorial Cup in Ottawa.

The last three games of the Pete-Marlies series were played within the space of four days and most of the series featured a great deal of body contact. In one game, close to 200 minutes in penalties were assessed as a result of two bench-clearing brawls.

The Marlies won't get much chance to rest in the Memorial Cup finals either because they are scheduled to play Medicine Hat Tigers Wednesday night in the second game of the final. The Tigers, Western Canada Hockey League champions, are also well rested after knocking off Saskatoon Blades in the WCHL final which ended last Sunday.

Medicine Hat will play Quebec, who defeated Cornwall Royals in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League final playoff, Friday night. The top two teams will play in the final game Saturday.

Reds Trap Win in 6th

MONTREAL (CP) — Cincinnati Reds broke open a tight game with a three-run outburst in the sixth inning and went on to down Montreal Expos 5-1 Sunday in National League baseball play.

Tsanks to alert base running by Dave Concepcion, the Reds took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first. Concepcion cracked a one-out single and then stole second and third before scoring on John Bench's sacrifice fly.

Concepcion stole his third base of the afternoon after a single to lead off the sixth and scored on a base hit by Tony Perez. Perez moved to third when Bobby Tolan sliced a double to left and both runners scored on Richie Scheinblum's single to centre.

Mohawks Chopped in First

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — St. Boniface Mohawks received a poor impression of this Ontario city at first, but felt right at home by the end of the week-end.

Saturday, the Manitoba team mislaid some of its equipment and then was trounced 10-3 by Orillia Terriers in the opening game of the best-of-seven Alan Cup senior hockey final.

But Sunday, the Mohawks edged Orillia 6-4 to even the series. The third game is scheduled Wednesday for Orillia, site of the entire series.

The Mohawks' troubles began Saturday afternoon when they unpacked and found their sweaters and socks along with their first aid equipment had been left at Toronto International Airport, about 50 miles to the south.

After a couple of hectic telephone calls, the equipment was rushed here, arriving about an hour before gametime.

Perhaps, it would have been better if the Mohawks had played without their sweaters. Then, nobody would have known who they were and the one-sided loss surely would have been as embarrassing.

Orillia goaltender Jean-Louis Levasseur was the only Terrier not picking up a scoring point in the rout. Claire Alexander scored four goals while Gerry Marsh, Jim O'Brien and Gary Milroy got two each. Jim Keon and Mike Draper had one apiece.

Mike MacKenzie and Dave Richardson scored for St. Boniface, which trailed 5-1 at the end of the first period and 9-1 at the end of the second.

Orillia narrowed the margin to 3-2 by the end of the second period, but the Terriers were outscored 3-2 in the final period.

Secretariat Wins Derby Over Sham

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Secretariat, his image shining brighter than ever, now takes on the task of trying to win the Triple Crown and his opposition might not be too great, at least in numbers.

"He ran pretty good for a crippled horse," jockey Ron Turcotte said Sunday after Secretariat wiped out rumors that he had a knee problem with an overwhelming victory in the Kentucky Derby.

"You know something—he might have run that in 1:56 if he was all right."

With his stature damaged by an upset loss in the Wood Memorial April 21 and rumors sweeping Churchill Downs Saturday that he had hurt himself and might even be scratched, Secretariat responded by beating Sham by 2½ lengths in a record time of 1:59 2-5 for the 1¼-mile Derby.

"There won't be many trying him in the Preakness," said trainer Lou Goldfine, adding that he was taking Sheeky Greene, who finished sixth, and My Gallant, who finished ninth, back to Chicago.

"I'm going to weigh things over," said trainer Bill Resseguet, whose Our Native finished third, 10½ lengths back of the winner.

One of those expected to test Secretariat in the Preakness, the second Triple Crown race at Pimlico May 19, was Sham.

Two of Sham's teeth were loosened when he banged his head in the starting gate and they were removed after the race. However, trainer Frank Martin said Sham ran a fine race and there were no excuses.

Martin also will send two other colts to Pimlico—Knightly Dawn, who won an allowance race Saturday and the lightly raced Beautiful Music.

Others being mentioned for the 1 3-16-mile Preakness were Aljamin; Stop the Music; Impecunious, who missed the Derby because of a bout with the flu; Step Nicely, a stakes winner as a 3-year-old. None raced in the Derby.

Secretariat was scheduled to go to Baltimore today while Angle Light, his stablemate, was to be sent back to New York. Angle Light, owned by Ed Whittaker of Toronto, finished 10th in the Derby.

Only eight 3-year-olds have won the Triple Crown of the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes, the last to do it was Citation 25 years ago.

Crampton Wins Open

HOUSTON (AP) — "I told you earlier this year," Bruce Crampton said. "The best is yet to come."

Crampton had just scored a one-stroke victory in the Houston Open golf tournament Sunday, his third professional triumph of the year.

"Nothing has changed from what I said at Orlando, Fla. The best is yet to come for Bruce Crampton," he said.

With three victories and a season's leading $153,581.59 in earnings to his credit, the statement could only stand as a warning that the curly-haired Australian is ready to assume a dominant position in pro golf.

Crampton's victory Sunday was worth $41,000 from the total purse of $205,000.

He won it with a par 72 in the final round on the 6,905-yard Quail Valley Golf Club course for a 277 total, 11 under par. Former PGA champion Dave Stockton took second with a charging finish. He birdied three of the last four holes for a 69 and 278.

Lanny Wadkins, winner of the Byron Nelson the week before, had a 72 for third place at 281. Former Masters champion Charles Coody followed at 282.

It got close only at the end. Crampton had built a four-stroke lead with rounds of 66 and 67 Friday and Saturday and never really was threatened.

New England Whalers Victors In First WHA Title Battle

BOSTON (CP) — Veteran defenceman Ted Green helped bring Boston its third major league hockey championship in four years Sunday, bringing with him the maturity and experience that molded New England Whalers into the first World Hockey Association champions.

Green hoisted the World Hockey Trophy as hundreds of the 11,186 fans awarmed onto the Boston Garden ice and engulfed both teams after New England defeated Winnipeg Jets 5-4 to win the best-of-seven series of five games.

"It's a great feeling to be on three championships in four years." An elated Green said after the victory. "And in an even greater feeling to win both at home."

Green was a member of the National Hockey League Boston Bruins when they won two Stanley Cups.

The New England victory came on the strength of three goals by centre Larry Pleau and outstanding work by goaltender Al Smith.

Pleau shot off a Winnipeg rally with a pair of last-period goals after the Jets, trailing 6-2 early in the second period, had battled to within one goal early in the third.

"That's the way it's been all season long," Green said. "When they got close we just pushed it again."

That feeling was echoed by all the Whalers, including Pleau and coach Jack Kelley who said his club was tired but "came together in the third period.

"It was a great team effort," Pleau said. "It seems every time they came close to us we're able to pull away."

New England grabbed a 5-2 first-period lead with Pleau, Tom Webster, Rick Ley, Guy Smith and Tim Sheehy scoring. Danny Johnson and Norm Beaudin replied for Winnipeg.

Webster made it 6-2 just 15 seconds into the second period but by the time the period ended Beaudin and Milt Black had reduced the margin.

Smith played brilliantly as he faced 4 shots, and his acrobatics kept the Whalers out front. He made key stops off the stick of playing-coach Bobby Hull, Chris Bordeleau, Black and Wally Boyer before defencemen Bob Woytowich made it 6-5 in the third period.

But that was as close as the Jets could come as Pleau finished off two good plays by wingers Sheehy and John French to complete his first three-goal playoff performance.

"It seemed like we would be in their end for such a long time and all of a sudden they would break out and score. We'd make one mistake and they'd capitalize," Hull explained on the flight back to Winnipeg immediately after the game.

"Against that club we gave everything. We threw absolutely everything at them. But we had only so much . . . and they just kept on coming."

Winnipeg goalie Joe Daley, who had beaten the Whalers only once this year in gaining the Jets' only victory in the series, faced only 26 shots, but the Whaler forwards were experts at finishing things off as they continually beat the Winnipeg defencemen.

"They were supposed to have great goaltending," Pleau said, "but they just didn't get it."

The lanky centreman added, however, that the Whalers were forcing the Winnipeg defencemen and forwards into mistakes and managed to do what they had to do—beat the Hull-Chris Bordeleau-Beaudin line.

Whalers Challenge

BOSTON (CP) — New England Whalers won the World Hockey Association playoff with a 9-6 victory over Winnipeg Jets Sunday and club president Howard Baldwin issued a challenge for the Stanley Cup.

Baldwin said the Stanley Cup, now emblematic of the national Hockey League Championship, remains a challenge trophy and is called on this year's winner to engage in a one-game, neutral-ice playoff.

Montreal Canadiens lead Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in the best-of-seven final for the Stanley Cup.

Baldwin said the challenge is "meant in no disrespect to either of those two fine teams or the National Hockey League."

"This is a challenge intended only to restore to the people their right to see a true championship decided in this, the world's fastest sport."

The Stanley Cup was donated in 1885 by Frederick Arthur, Lord of Stanley, a challenge trophy for amateur hockey teams. It eventually became the sole possession of the professionals however, and since 1910 has been regarded as the NHL's most prized possession.

Lolich Gives Up 9

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's wrong with—Mickey Lolich?

Nothing, says Billy Martin, Detroit Tigers manager.

The left-handed Detroit ace, who pitched 7⅔ innings and won 47 games during the last two seasons, is having his troubles in 1973.

Following Sunday's 7-2 loss to Texas Rangers, in which he gave up nine hits, six walks and seven runs in 3 2-3 innings, Lolich shows a 1-4 record and a 4.15 earned-run average.

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Chicago White Sox mauled New York Yankees 11-2, Oakland Athletics beat Cleveland Indians twice 12-0 and 7-3, Baltimore Orioles blanked California Angels 5-0, Milwaukee Brewers edged Kansas City Royals 3-2 and Minnesota Twins defeated Boston Red Sox 10-3.

The Rangers hopped on Lolich for three runs in the opening inning on the first of Dave Nelson's four hits, a passed ball, Toby Harrah's single and Alex Johnson's home run. In the sixth, a single by Elliott Maddox and a pair of walks produced Harrah's three-run triple. Harrah then scored on a single by Johnson.

This was the first game he hasn't been sharp even when he was losing," said Martin. "The other times he pitched pretty well. I guess he's entitled to a bad one."

Reiser Hit In NL Brawl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pete Reiser used to crash into walls as a player and now he's crashing into people as a coach.

Reiser, famous for getting knocked unconscious while chasing fly balls for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, was one of the casualties Sunday in a fight-filled National League baseball game between San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs.

When it was over, the Giants had an 11-9 victory on Bobby Bonds' two-run homer in the wild, 22-inning first game of a doubleheader, and Reiser had a bad headache.

The Giants won the second game 4-3 after Reiser was carried from the field on a stretcher. He was hit in the head during a fourth-inning brawl in the opener.

He wasn't the only one the Cubs lost, however. Third baseman Ron Santo was earlier struck by a pitch and had to make a fast departure for hospital x-rays.

In addition, Chicago played the first game after the fourth inning without manager Whitey Lockman, coach Hank Aguirre and pitcher Milt Pappas. They were ejected along with Giant pitcher Jim Barr, who also had to be taken to the hospital for precautionary x-rays.

All x-rays eventually proved negative.

Two flareups punctuated the 30-minute fourth inning of the Giant-Cub first-game slugfest. Both arguments occurred with Barr at the plate.

In apparent retaliation of Barr hitting Santo with a pitch in the third inning, Chicago starter Pappas fired a ball behind Barr's head in the fourth. Both Benches emptied and flooded the infield and while the players refereed, everyone forgot about Dave Roder on first base. Since no timeout was called, he came home with a Giant run, untouched.

Pappas' third pitch hit Barr and touched off the brawl where Reiser was hurt, not to mention several feelings.

"Pete was kicked in the back of the neck after he fell down," said National League president Charles Feeney, who was watching the game.

NY Knicks Take Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed scored 22 points and Earl Monroe contributed 21 as New York Knicks held off Los Angeles Lakers for an 87-83 victory Sunday and gained a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association championship playoff series.

The fourth game in the best-of-seven set will be played Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden.

The Knicks, ice-cold in their shooting in their first half, rallied in the second half to overcome the Lakers, who were hampered by the loss of high-scoring Jerry West.

West got only one point in the third quarter after leading both teams in scoring in the first half with 15.

The Lakers' total of 83 points was their lowest in their playoff history. Their previous low was 88 against the Boston Celtics in an 89-88 setback on April 29, 1969.

Sunderland Upsets Leeds United 1-0

LONDON (Reuter) — Second Division Sunderland, written off before the match as hopeless outsiders, today were hailed as the soccer heroes of the century after toppling mighty Leeds United in Saturday's English Football Association Cup final.

Commentators who had unanimously declared that Sunderland had no chance of beating the hoklers were forced to forget their red-faced embarrassment and join in the nation-wide acclamation of Sunderland's shocking 1-0 victory.

Irishman Danny Irishman, captain of the Tottenham Hotspur team which won the Cup in 1961 and 1962, wrote in the Sunday Express:

"Raise your glasses to the greatest tonic English football has had for years. The toast is Sunderland—the finest team of heroes to carry off the F. A. Cup in my experience of Wembley.

But while Sunderland's young terriers were chasing Leeds to death at rain-soaked Wembley 132,000 Scotsmen remained totally disinterested as they crammed together at Glasgow's Hampden Park for the battle between Rangers and Celtic in the Scottish Cup final.

Rangers, emerging from the shadow of their all-conquering rivals and neighbors, won 3-1 to carry off the trophy for the first time since 1966, and spike Celtic's hopes of achieving their third successive league and Cup double.

When Leeds and Sunderland entered the competition back in January, Sunderland, then 19th in the Second Division, were quoted at 250-to-1 in bookmakers' lists. Before Saturday's match, Leeds were rated overwhelming 13-to-8 favorites with Sunderland at 9-4 against. A Leeds victory appeared a formality.

Since the Cup began in 1871, there have been only a handful of upsets in the final of the world's oldest soccer competition and in the post-war era, the favorites have almost invariably carried off the prize.

West Bromwich Albion, 3-1 winners over Birmingham in 1931, were the last Second Division team to win the cup and there have been only six winners from outside the First Division ranks.

While everyone heaped praise on Sunderland's players, the man singled out for acclaim was Bob Stokoe, who took over as manager only four months ago and steered his team away from the threat of relegation to the Third Division.

Two Boys Rescued From Frig

TORONTO (CP) — Two small boys missing for more than an hour Sunday were found unconscious in an unused refrigerator in the garage of their home in the borough of North York.

Jacob Wershberger, 5, and his brother Solomon, 3, were given oxygen by firemen before the children were taken to hospital. They were released two hours late.

Firemen said they would have died in another 15 minutes.

The boys' mother noticed they had disappeared from the backyard where they were playing and called police.

Fred Haroun, a neighbor, noticed the garage door was ajar, went inside and opened the refrigerator.

"They seemed unconscious," he said. "They were covered with sweat."

The boys' father Louis Wershberger, said the family moved into the house only a week ago and the refrigerator was placed in the garage because it was old and another was moved from downstairs.

"I've taken the door off and it's going out in the garbage," he said. "I hope this is a lesson for everybody."

Hitch-hiking May Be Banned

TORONTO (CP) — An amendment to the Highway Traffic Act, prohibiting all hitch-hiking in the province, is being given serious consideration, Provincial Justice Secretary George Kerr said Sunday.

"Murders connected with hitch-hiking are becoming too frequent and they are occurring in our city areas," Mr. Kerr said in an interview.

Metropolitan Toronto police believe the murders 10 days ago, of North York teen-agers Donna Skarpe and Wendy Telford, were probably linked with hitch-hiking.

The Highway Traffic Act prohibits hitch-hiking only if the hiker is standing on the roadway.

Ready to Pay

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A North Bay worker caught Prime Minister Trudeau by surprise Saturday night when he asked why he couldn't pay 80 cents a week more for unemployment insurance.

"This is indeed a friendly audience," Mr. Trudeau said, scratching his head, when the question was asked at a public meeting.

The man, who did not identify himself, said the federal government has taken a realistic and far-sighted approach to unemployment insurance by raising benefits to a more acceptable level.

If it would now raise salary deductions to offset deficits, he said, it could cut out all the criticism it has taken in Parliament about high expenditures.

Mr. Trudeau said it was "really nice to hear such an enlightened approach."

There have been abuses since benefit levels were raised, he said, but the government is taking action to eliminate them.

Risk Shunned

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The patent for a device that could speed up clearance of sewage and other particles from municipal waters has been licensed to a United States company because Canadian firms "weren't willing to take risks on anything," says the inventor, a Canadian professor.

The vortex clarifier is a compact, high-speed separator that swirls liquids and quickly settles out particles, said Prof. J. D. Boadway of Queen's University civil engineering department in a weekend interview.

He believes it could also have wide application in the food, mining, and pulp and paper industries.

Shots Fly

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Police at a roadblock on the Niagara Parkway exchanged shots with a fleeing man Saturday after a Buffalo, N.Y., man was forced from a house at gunpoint.

No one was injured in the exchange which lasted about five minutes.

Herbert Blazer, 56, of Buffalo, was forced into a car and driven away. Police chased the car at high speeds through Fort Erie before it was halted at a roadblock.

Robert W. Smith, 27, of Fort Erie, was charged with forcible confinement, possession of a weapon, two counts of dangerous use of a firearms and dangerous driving.

EDWARD HEATH

Scots May Get Own Assembly

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government is considering plans to give Scotland its own elected assembly, a first step towards a federal system for the whole of the United Kingdom, political sources said Sunday.

Such an organization would be Prime Minister Heath's answer to strong nationalist calls for some decentralization of power from the British Parliament in London and a response to a recent upsurge in poll support for the Scottish Nationalist Party (SNP).

Son Stabbed

BRAMPTON (CP) — Evangeliste Gagne, 51, of Brampton has been charged with attempted murder in the stabbing Saturday of his five-year-old son. Police were called to a house and found the boy with a deep stab wound in his chest. He was later reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Budget Cut

TORONTO (CP) — A group of artists and athletes was told Saturday that the Montreal Olympic committee has budgeted $100,000 for cultural events compared with $10 million spent at last summer's Olympics in Munich.

The meeting was called by the Artists-Athletes Coalition for the Cultural Celebration of the 1976 Olympics. The group was formed by former Olympic runners Abigail Hoffman and Bruce Kidd.

It is supported by the Ontario chapter of the Canadian Artists Representation, a five-year-old collective bargaining organization of artists.

75 Arrested

KINGSTON (CP) — Police raided a beer tent here Saturday and said 75 people taken into custody would be charged with infractions under the Liquor Control Act.

A police spokesman said 27 members of the force took part in the raid.

Heads March

TORONTO (CP) — A 17-year-old construction worker who runs 20 miles a night to train for the 1976 Olympics was the first one over the finish line in the Miles for Millions march here Saturday.

"I enjoyed the race," said Anton Topilnycky, who ran the 21.6-mile course in two hours and 30 minutes, starting at 6 a.m.

Honor Seamen

—The annual church parade honors Canadian seamen who took part in the Battle of the Atlantic during the Second World War.

Opens Depot

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield officially opened a recycling depot here Saturday, and admitted he gets a "real thrill" out of breaking bottles.

Mr. Stanfield dropped a bottle into a glass crusher at the Mississauga Recycling Depot, and said:

"This time it's an effort to protect the environment rather than leaving broken glass around and polluting as I am sure I did as a little boy."

Wants Action

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — David Lewis, national New Democratic Party leader, has challenged Prime Minister Trudeau to place the question of aboriginal rights for native people on the agenda of the Western Premiers' Conference to be held July 25-26 in Calgary.

Mr. Lewis said the premiers of the three NDP western provinces would be sensitive to the problems of Indians and would attempt to meet their needs.

School Options Called Madness

TORONTO (CP) — The replacement of high school compulsory subjects by a wide range of options is "sheer madness," says a fourth-year University of Toronto student.

David Onley, a fourth-year student, said many students are graduating from Ontario high schools without having taken a course in Canadian history, biology, chemistry, mathematics or English.

Mr. Onley was speaking Friday at the annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association on a panel discussing youth.

He cited the case of one Ontario student who graduated with an average of at least 80 per cent from high school and was admitted to Scarborough College last fall.

He said the student wrote a 1,200-word essay that contained only one grammatically correct sentence. And that sentence was a repetition of the question posed by the teacher as the subject of the essay.

Mr. Onley, past president of Scarborough College's student council, said the option system "was created by people who could not achieve and decided others should not achieve."

Assail Tax

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Delegates to the national conference of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union called Sunday for "immediate repeal of the highly unjust and retrogressive seven-per-cent retail sales tax."

WM. DAVIS

Talks Held

TORONTO (CP) — Premiers Robert Bourassa of Quebec and William Davis of Ontario Sunday expressed satisfaction with the results of a weekend series of meetings among business leaders of the two provinces who discussed joint social and economic problems.

The premiers participated in a closing forum at which they voiced agreement on a number of points including the expansion of French teaching in Ontario and English in Quebec and the view that any federal support for education should leave decisions in the hands of the provinces.

Dies at 93

Registration Difficult

Ontario Loses Nurses

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario may lose many graduate nurses to Manitoba because of the difficulty such nurses have getting registered in Ontario, the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario was told Saturday.

Sandra Somers of Fort Frances issued the warning at the association's annual meeting, adding that she already knows of some graduate nurses—those who graduated in another province or country and have not been registered in Ontario—who "are opting for Manitoba registration."

Miss Somers, a registered nurse, made her comments during discussion of a resolution asking the province to set up upgrading programs for non-registered nurses in community colleges in at least four major areas.

She said that in Fort Frances and similar northern areas where graduate nurses work, there are no facilities for upgrading and thus gaining registration.

Earlier, the nurses approved a resolution urging that the word nurse and nursing assistant be restricted to those who are listed as such under nursing laws.

If the province were to agree to the proposal, practical nurses would not be allowed to use the word nurse as part of their title. Graduate nurses could do so if they were identified as either being eligible to write a registration examination or for upgrading programs leading to writing the exam.

The nurses were told Saturday to get involved in fighting social ills, both as citizens and because of their expertise.

Huguette Labelle, recently appointed principal nursing officer in the health and welfare department, said public health nurses and pediatricians ensure children starting school are physically clean.

But attempts must be made, she said, to ensure they are emotionally healthy.

THIS ONE'S REALLY DIFFERENT

A three bedroom two storey with an exterior that has character, written all over it. Imagine a mansard roof with a skirted overhang. Enjoy the view from a large cantilevered bay window. Master bedroom has shower room, separate wash basin and vanity, and walk in closet. Kitchen has large dining area, separated by wrought iron railing from sunken family room with fireplace. There is a separate dining room. Garage is attached.

This house is now far enough along that you can see its many features, and still not so far along that you can't pick your colors.

WANT TO SAVE NEARLY $2,000.00 ?

then take advantage of the chance to buy one of the few houses we have left that were built before the price freeze and sales tax was raised. We have bungalows, split levels and two storeys available. Some in the East end, some in the West. There is no way to save $2,000.00 any faster.

THEY ALL LAUGH

When we tell them a condominium can be bought for $25,000 down — "You've got to be kidding" — they claim. — They all cry, however, when we tell them they are available only to those with earnings under $8,500.00 a year. If you are in that category, call tonight and have the laugh on them. Very few left, so act fast.

Release Urged

BONN (AP) — About 1,000 demonstrators paraded through the streets of Bonn on Sunday to demand the release of Rudolph Hess, the former Hitler deputy who has been in prison since the 1945 surrender.
Hundreds of West German citizens turned out to watch the orderly protest march, led by Hitler's biggest fan, son of the man who is the last of Hitler's close associates still in jail.
"Thirty years is enough—freedom for Rudolf Hess," read a placard held aloft by the demonstrators, alluding to Hess's 25 years of imprisonment. No incidents were reported.

Firenza Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)
The rally of dissatisfied shareholders aware of the controversial Firenza automobile, manufactured by General Motors, went ahead without Henry Peeters Saturday her Firenza caught on fire.
And to add insult to injury, she had to use private banners stacked on the back seat of her car to beat the flames.

Bombing Victim

Cambodian refugee carries elderly man wounded in bombing of Cambodian rebel positions across the Mekong River from the Cambodian capital. Thousands of refugees fled American bombing and advancing government forces. The air cover is being used to protect two government battalions sent to reat advancing rebel forces.

Emergency Treatments At Hospital Are Costly

TORONTO (CP) — A man with a sprained ankle can go to his doctor and get patched up at a cost of $5.40 to Ontario's health insurance fund.
Or he can drop into the emergency department of a hospital and be attended to at a cost of between $30 and $60.
Because both are free to the customer and he's likely to get better action at the hospital, more and more persons under the universal Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) pick the hospital's kitchen table junior in row for his playtime cuts.
"People are treating the emergency department as a drop-in centre for convenience rather than urgency," a Toronto physician, Dr. R. M. Cooper, said in a recent letter to the editor.
One administrator says that "it's only one of the leaks" of hospital money under OHIP which has led the provincial government to curtail hospital spending for the current year to ease the pressure on the treasury while it figures out a long-range program for getting health costs within bounds.
In the last few years Ontario's hospital care covered by insurance have been leaping by almost 14 per cent a year. They now are paid $1 billion, the 1972-73 jump of $140 million put it just about that milestone for the first time.
For the coming year, the government has ordered an arbitrary cheap in hospital budget increases to not more than five per cent—$58 million— which will just about keep them abreast of inflation. The hospitals have been told to take 1,500 beds out of the active-care category and find other savings to hold down their claims on the government, which finances them.
Ontario also has put into effect a freeze on capital spending for new hospital construction except for a few projects considered essential.
During this breathing spell, the health ministry and the hospitals are seeking ways to get the most out of the hospital dollar.
One conclusion, reinforced by a recent study made for the ministry by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, is that there are too many unnecessary patients in the expensive active treatment hospitals. The college found that one in every 20 was admitted unnecessarily, and one in every 10 was kept in too long.
Over-use of active care beds, which runs into big money at $80 a day per bed, is attributed by various authorities to a combination of factors.
Some contend there is an in[illegible] many do not to plant a cluster of patients in a hospital, either for treatment or diagnosis, so that they are handy for a daily tour billed for as a series of visits.
From the hospital's viewpoint, as one authority puts it diplomatically, government grants on the basis of how many beds are a "disincentive" to have empty beds lying around.
One well-placed official says some hospitals have been found to have fully 30 per cent of their beds occupied unnecessarily.
Another drain on government funds is empire building in individual hospitals and, instead of co-operation by neighboring institutions, duplication of services and competition for the government dollar.
Since the clamps were applied by the health ministry, provincial officials see the gleaming of a trend among hospitals in the same or neighboring communities to pool resources and steer patients from one to another's facilities as a matter of course.
We got a lot of flak when we first talked about cutting down hospital beds," said one glimmering of a trend among hospitals. "Now the idea of integration from hospitals has been fantastic." Dr. Potter says.
Hospital executives have said, "We can cut back more plans than suggested."
One idea getting much attention from both the government and independent experts is that of community health centres as a means of both reducing hospital use and at the same time producing a continuing high level of health care.
These, consist generally of a group of doctors and other personnel working as a unit with facilities for health promotion, preventive medicine, diagnosis and treatment — though not in hospital facilities.
The pioneer centre in Ontario was set up at Sault Ste. Marie 10 years ago with the backing of the United Steelworkers of America. Originally made at its own clinic, it now is backed by reports that users of the centre have the average circuit use of third less time in hospitals than do other Sault residents.
Besides the 13 general practitioners and specialists work on a combination of salary and productivity that averages $40,000 a year. OHIP doctors generally will net about $47,000 this year after meeting office expenses.
In St. Catharines a somewhat similar centre is set up in a 1967 Centennial Year project of the United Automobile Workers. Its backers reports that there also has facilities normally only available in hospitals. It reduces the necessity for many hospital admissions.
Last year a committee headed by Dr. John Hastings of the University of Toronto made a study of the community health centre concept for the conference of Canadian health ministers. The committee found that such centres can have "an

Perils of Growing Own Beef

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Two years ago Pat and Bob Flathau got angry about soaring meat prices and decided to grow their own beef in the backyard of their suburban Birch Run home.

Their two steers are gone now, and things are quiet at the Flathau's place. But bittersweet memories remain of the family's two-year escapade with the late Linus and Blackie, now residing in the Flathau freezer.

"I don't care if meat goes to $4 a pound, I wouldn't go through this again," Pat said last week.

In the spring of 1971, chuck steak was being sold for the "outrageous" price of 68 cents a pound; rib roasts, for 88 cents.

At the time, the Flathau family—Pat, Bob and three children—had a neat suburban backyard with swimming pool and picnic table. And they had a "picture-book" barn for the boys' pony.

Exit the pony; enter Linus and Blackie, a pair of Holstein calves.

"Linus took a special dislike to our youngest son, Jeff, for some reason we've never been able to figure out," Pat said. "He couldn't walk past the corral without having to defend himself."

Linus kicked holes in the enlarged barn, knocked down fence posts and escaped often.

He made the sweet corn patch his personal pantry, Pat said.

Bob remembered that trouble increased as the prize steers grew.

"The older they got, the worse they got," he said.

Attempts to keep lucrative expense records on the pair soon fail to disorder.

"The recommended daily diet for fattening a two-year-old steer is 16 pounds of corn or sorghum silage, four pounds of red clover hay, 14 pounds of ground grain concentrate and 1½ pounds of linseed or cottonseed meal," Pat said.

For that, the Flathau family got 400 pounds of beef from Linus and 400 from Blackie.

A nagging fear hangs over Pat and Bob: What if the children refuse to eat the meat? After two years, Linus and Blackie had become pets.

Chinese Trade View Confusing

CANTON, China (CP) — The slogans in big red Chinese and English characters everywhere in the massive headquarters of the Canton trade fair sometimes jar against one another in a way that an old Taoist epigram might confuse a plain Western mind with its paradox. There are two emblazoned above the commodity exhibits and negotiating alcoves say: "The Chinese people wish to resume and expand international trade in order to develop production and promote economic prosperity."

And then, on a floor above: "We must work hard in production in order to become self-sufficient in all necessities and first of all in grain and cloth."

So do the Chinese really want to trade or do they want to be completely self-reliant? Like answers to so many other Chinese puzzles, the reply is both yes and no, depending on where you look and whom you talk to.

Evidently it is yes for grain even at current high prices after a severe drought in the north last year. Apparently it is no for products of an expanding light industry and steel mills.

The answer is clearly yes for new airliners just ordered in the West, for fleets of Toyota taxis augmenting Shanghai-built cars in Jordan, for communications equipment being installed north of Peking by Montrealers, and for oilfield and refinery equipment ordered from Japan and expected soon to be ordered from Canadian industrialists who have just left Canton after two weeks of tough and negotiations.

But whether these are indications of long-term trade promises or short-term measures designed to give Chinese industry a temporary push re-

British Radio Going Commercial

LONDON (Reuter) — At the moment it's just a wire strung between two power station chimneys and irreverently dubbed "Radio Clothes Line."

Signals mustering along it pass unnoticed by the public except for an occasional small boy, whose radio-controlled boat mutinies on a nearby pond.

By autumn, this equipment should be transmitting the first officially sanctioned commercial radio programs ever heard in Britain. Since the advent of broadcasting 50 years ago, radio inside this country has been exclusively operated by the publicly-owned British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC).

To start with there will be two commercial stations, both in London. One of them, the London Broadcasting Company (LBC), says in its prospectus:

"We believe that nothing like the full potential of radio has yet been reached in Britain. We consider the future of the medium to be as bright and as unbounded as it looked to the pioneers of 1922."

LBC plans to put out a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week service of news and commentary.

The other station will be Capital Radio, which expects to provide a pop-hour diet of sweet music interspersed with tween broadcasters and housewives.

The commercial companies are drawing heavily on radio experience in the United States and Canada. Both the new stations expect to place heavy emphasis on participation by the public.

As LBC said: "Good community radio is no longer a one-way communication. The practitioners who have brought about the remarkable revival of interest in the medium in North America have demonstrated forcibly that stations only flourish when they listen to the public as often as they talk to it."

The controllers of the BBC are paying keen attention to the birth of this new rival. Already one of its radio channels has been heavily reorganized to provide fare roughly corresponding to the class of material LBC might be expected to transmit.

For nearly 20 years the BBC also had a monopoly of television. But this was changed in 1955 with the establishment of commercial stations which captured a heavy share of the viewing market.

The government-appointed body that supervises commercial television, the Independent Broadcasting Authority (IBA)—has been assigned to look after the commercial radio companies as well.

The IBA is responsible for providing transmission facilities but so far it has had trouble getting municipal building permission for a proper mast structure. Because of this, LBC and Capital may have to rely at first on the wires stop in power station in west London.

Advertising agencies are reported eager to test the new medium. Competition for the broadcasting franchise was strong. LBC edged out a rival consortium which included some big names in British publishing.

The companies taking part in LBC include a finance house, a recording company, a business wire service and a firm of musical instrument makers whose interest is investment rather than direct participation since little or no music is likely to be heard on LBC.

The other company in the group is Selkirk Holdings Ltd. of Toronto, which operates more than 70 commercial and television stations in Canada.

Individual shareholders in LBC include journalists, businessmen and broadcasters. The company expects to recruit a staff of about 150, two-thirds of whom will be operating personnel.

Under present plans, no single shareholder can hold more than 20 per cent of the stock.

Under the conditions of the franchise, some shares must be reserved for any local newspaper that considers its interests may be affected by the advent of commercial radio, which will compete for advertisers.

Both LBC and Capital radio are hoping to be on the air by October at the latest in order not to miss the Christmas advertising rush.

Advertising time is being limited to nine minutes per hour and—as on British commercial television—advertisers will purchase time spots instead of sponsoring individual programs.

Nursery School Open Tomorrow

TRENTON — The importance of pre-school education offering small children the chance to exercise their mental facilities with educational toys and devices will be put before parents at an open house Tuesday night at the Tom Thumb Nursery School at CFB Trenton.

According to teachers Mrs. Ruth Purves and Mrs. Josie Leyenaar, the nursery school provides the small child with an invaluable learning experience to develop independence, language skills, and association with older people.

No structured teaching is carried out at the nursery school, but through stories, songs, special themes and games, the child is made more aware of his world and his community. Field trips throughout the year provide additional education.

Opened in October, 1971, the Tom Thumb Nursery School is available to the dependents of military families in the Trenton area, operating under regulations of the Ontario Day Nursery Act. No only are there two full-time teachers, but volunteer mothers and Loyalist College trainees offer additional assistance.

The nursery school is throwing open its doors at 7 p.m., May 8, at building 175 in the Air Maintenance Defence Unit (AMDU) off 6 RD Road.

Girls in Braces Tell Experiences

By THEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Some time ago I printed a letter from "Miss C.L." 12 years old, with scoliosis (curvature of the spine). She was told that she should wear a brace 23 hours a day and do exercises.

She didn't want to do—she also had diabetes and was about to enter a new school, and her father thought it might be too much for her. . Couldn't the brace be postponed?

I said don't postpone it. I don't know what she finally did but I think she, and others with the same problem, ought to see some of the write-in answers from other girls:

"I'm 13, almost 14. I've worn a Milwaukee brace for one and a half years.

"It's a breeze. It never bothers me. I have loads of friends, boob scars, and am on the student council.

"No one even notices my brace. The trick is to get used to it and to keep on first everyone asks, "Did you break your back?" or "Scoliosis?" Pfft. They're just curious, not making fun."—A.S.

"Two years ago I too found that I had a curvature. I had to wear a brace 23 hours a day and also had exercises to do. I did the exercises for a while but then stopped because I didn't want to do them.

"Right now I would do almost anything to be back in the brace again. I'm flat on my back in a body cast from my neck to my knees recovering from a spinal fusion."—I.W.

"I started wearing a Milwaukee brace 21 hours a day. That was 11 months ago. Now I only have to sleep in it. Wear your brace faithfully or you'll end up with more problems than you have now."—S.S.

"I had the same thing happen when I was 12 and just starting junior high. I wore a cast a year and had an operation. My cast was from just below my neck to the middle of my gluteus maximus.

"I felt really embarrassed and would not go to school so I had a tutor. I got so lonely that I finally went back to school, and I was greeted by everyone with open arms. I feel really good. I'm so glad I had it on junior high rather than high school."—S.S.

"I was 15 when I found I had the same thing. I was in a body cast for six months, then in a Milwaukee brace, and for almost two years I wore it all the time, not just 23 hours a day. Then I was able to start taking it off, 15 minutes a day, then 5 more minutes each three days. Finally the day came after I had graduated from high school that I could have it off completely."—M.H.

"Eight years ago my folks found I had the same problem, but much worse. I was 12, too. I wore a cast for six months. It doesn't matter to people if you have one hand, no eyes, or a lot of silver around your body. I had to change schools twice. I have the diplomas to prove it.

"Somebody should wake her up to the fact that her problems are curable and controllable. That's a lot more than some kids ever have."—K.M.L.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would like to know how you feel about acupuncture.—M.H.

I don't feel any way about it. There are some serious efforts in progress to find out the facts about it, and when the facts are available, that will be time enough to form some opinions.

Note to "Anita": Lupus and "excess serum lipid" are not the same. They are completely different conditions.

|---|---|---|---|

| Pass | 2 ♦ | Pass | 4 ♠ |
| Pass | 6 NT | | |

Opening lead—eight of clubs.

Some contracts fall rarely because the wrong hand becomes declarer, but at least some of them can be saved by anticipating this possibility and dealing effectively with it.

Consider this deal from the Great Britain - U. S. match in 1962. When the Americans were North-South, the bidding went as shown.

It does seem that North should have been more aggressive after South first jump-shifted it, spades and then leaped again in spades. Presumably South was announcing an independent suit as well as interest in a slam, and on that basis North surely had the values for at least one more bid. His was not a minimum opening bid.

However, had North carried on to six spades, South would have gone down one due to the unfortunate lie of the clubs.

The odds against East's having the Ace were about 3 to 1, and if South had wound up in six spades down one, he would have had just cause for complaint. Actually, the American South made five spades and scored 650 points.

When Priday and Reese were North - South for Britain, the bidding went:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1 ♦ | Pass | 1 ♠ |
| Pass | 4 ♦ | Pass | 4 ♠ |
| Pass | 4 NT | Pass | 5 ♦ |
| Pass | 6 NT | | |

This contract could not be stopped when Priday, after inquiring for aces with Blackwood, contracted for six notrumps. Played from the North seat, the slam was unbeatable, and East-West could take only an Ace at his opening lead. Priday made all 13 tricks for a score of 1,470 points.

The British team thus gained 420 points on the deal.

Tomorrow: Dilemma.

Regional Government Unsuited to Hastings

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Some "final announcements" on the structure of regional government proposals for areas to the east and west of Metropolitan Toronto will be made this week, an Ontario government official said Saturday.

Ed Cornies, senior adviser in the local government organization branch of the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs, made the statement at an Ontario Municipal Recreation Association conference.

He said proposals for regional government in Peel, Halton, Hamilton-Wentworth and Oshawa-Port Hope-Cobourg have been before the Ontario cabinet for the last two years.

Changes in the proposals will "take into account local objections," he said.

Mr. Cornies told some opposition from the 30 delegates at the workshop session on the third day of the conference when he referred to "majority support" being necessary before the province goes ahead with the regional plan.

He said the Ontario government will not move to implement regional government until area municipalities have asked for help.

"The local municipalities could no longer cope" with problems which crossed township boundaries, he said.

A spokesman from Huron County said that if regional government has the same effect as amalgamation of local school boards it will mean double the cost with no improvement in services.

"Leave us the way we are—we're quite happy," the spokesman said.

Mr. Cornies replied that the government would not be altering the structure of local government unless the municipalities were enthusiastic about it.

He said the government realizes there are areas of the province where the regional government structure put into effect up to this time is inappropriate.

"It's only appropriate in rapidly urbanning and in the urban areas," Mr. Cornies said. The Prontenac, Hastings, Oxford, Grey, Bruce, Huron, Perth counties and parts of Northern Ontario as areas not suited to the present form of a regional government.

In the north, an amalgamation of some of the smaller municipalities would be more effective, he said.

Jim Wright of Grimsby, a director of recreation in the Niagara region, said "this sophisticated project (regional government) costs too damn much money" and "the average Joe citizen" can't afford the added tax burden of it.

Frank Hickey of Hamilton said that city doesn't want regional government and recommended a vote be taken to indicate the preference of the people.

However, D. M. Coolican, chairman of the regional municipality of Ottawa-Carleton, said that although rural and suburban people "came into it kicking" in 1969 in his area, most of them are now in favor of the regional system.

"I think it's beginning to work," he said.

No Election Planned -- PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau geared up for the re-opening of Parliament today with a weekend tour of Ontario in which he denied planning for an election and said much work waits ahead for his minority Liberal government.

In a two-day trip that took him to Toronto, Hamilton, Richmond Hill and North Bay, he said neither the public nor the government wants an election and every effort will be made to make Parliament work.

He said New Democratic support, which has kept the liberals alive since Parliament opened Jan. 4, will probably continue if the government goes part way toward meeting NDP demands.

But the government will not compromise Liberal party principles or pay any price to avoid an election, he warned.

Eventually, he said, some breakdown in the Commons voting pattern is probably inevitable and he might even be forced to call an election without being defeated if Parliament bogs down and becomes unpromotable.

Although denying election plans, the tanned and fit prime minister, back from a two-week holiday in Vancouver and Hawaii, looked like a campaigner as he breezed through his tour signing autographs, shaking hands, and meeting workers, school children -and party supporters.

He started the trip with a speech to Liberal workers at a Toronto reception Friday night, then got up early Saturday to walk in a miles for millions march, ran at a steel mill in Hamilton, speak at a father-and-son hockey banquet in Richmond Hill, tape a television interview, back in Toronto, and fly to North Bay for an evening question-and-answer session at a public meeting.

He returned to Ottawa late Saturday night.

He refused, during the television session, to comment directly on the Watergate wiretapping and cover-up scandal to the Nixon administration but said he is certain the U.S. is spying on Canada.

He gave no indication that the prospect bothers the government or that questionable tactics might be involved.

In fact, he said, Canada might be spying on the United States if it had the wherewithal to do so.

He said spying is a dirty word but it need not imply sinister overtones if it means gathering information in a legal fashion.

Nixon Reportedly Praised Cover-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two largest weekly news magazines in the United States say ousted White House Counsel John Dean is prepared to testify that President Nixon personally congratulated him last September for covering up administration involvement in the Watergate incident.

Time and Newsweek gave slightly different accounts, but both said Nixon's purported remarks came in a meeting among the president, Dean and another top White House aide.

Newsweek quoted Dean as saying Nixon was in the Oval Office with Dean and White House chief of staff H. R. (Bob) Haldeman when the president said: "Good job, John. Bob told me what a great job you've been doing."

Time's version said Nixon, Dean and the president's domestic-affairs adviser, John Ehrlichman, were present and that Nixon said: "John here tells me you've been doing fine work."

Neither magazine, in recounting that the stories will be forthcoming, identified its sources.

However, one legal source who has been close to the Watergate case said the "tidbit" Dean is reported to have given prosecutors concerning Nixon was used as bait in an effort to win the 34-year-old lawyer immunity from prosecution. Dean has told them he has other evidence, including White House documents, to substantiate his claims, the source said.

The documents presumably are the 43-page volume and eight supporting papers that Dean's lawyer described Friday in U.S. District Court here. Dean gave the keys to a safe deposit box to Chief Judge John Sirica, saying the box contains the classified documents taken from the White House to prevent their being destroyed.

The source said the government has refused to grant Dean immunity in exchange for his testimony.

Another observer said Dean, fired by Nixon a week ago, still may waive his right to the constitutional protection against self-incrimination even if he does not win immunity.

"If he does before the (Senate Watergate) committee and creates a tremendous sensation by implicating everybody in the White House on national television he'll be able to claim he could never get a fair trial because of all the pre-trial publicity," the lawyer said.

Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep., Conn.), disclosed Friday that he met secretly with Dean Thursday evening and later arranged with Watergate committee leaders to have Dean come before the committee at "the earliest possible date," Weicker is on record favoring immunity for the former White House counsel, but he said that issue didn't come up in nearly three hours of secret talks.

Affidavit Is to Be Revealed

LOS ANGELES' (AP) — Judge Matt Byrne is expected to disclose today the contents of an affidavit by former White House aide Egil Krogh in efforts to clarify reports linking the Pentagon papers trial to the Watergate affair.

Convicted Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt has said Krogh ordered a break-in at the office of psychiatrist of Daniel Ellsberg, a defendant in the Pentagon papers trial by U.S. District Court here. Krogh is on leave from his job as undersecretary of transportation.

Further complicating the case, lawyers for defendants Ellsberg and Anthony Russo say they are considering asking the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeal to throw out the Pentagon papers indictment on grounds the Judge was "compromised."

They have complained because a now-resigned presidential adviser, John D. Ehrlichman, recently discussed the possibility of Byrne's becoming FBI director.

And Judge Byrne, confronted by what he calls "crucial legal problems," still is considering declaring a mistrial or dismissal of charges.

But he has indicated that no amount of official wrongdoing would sway his considering the central legal issue: Was any illegal evidence used by the justice department in the prosecution of Ellsberg and Russo?

Wounded Knee Settlement Is Expected

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Negotiators for the United States government and Indian militants are optimistic the 69-day occupation of Wounded Knee will end this week now that a disarmament agreement has been signed.

But spokesmen for the two sides traded warnings about future takeovers and the way the government would react.

Negotiators announced Sunday the signing of a 24-point agreement that calls for weapons to be surrendered and non-residents to leave the village at 9 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

That is to be followed by implementation of an April 5 agreement that calls for an investigation of civil rights complaints and an audit of Oglala Sioux tribal funds on the Pine Ridge Reservation. The earlier pact was to have ended the occupation of Wounded Knee but never was put into effect because of a dispute over tribal down arms.

Nader Expects Nixon to Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Saturday he is convinced the Watergate bugging scandal will force President Nixon to resign and perhaps could lead to a new U.S. presidential election.

"I think he's going to have to resign," Nader said. "What is he waiting for. . . . The conspiratorial nature of this coverup is enough reason for him to have stepped down days ago. . . .

"No president can stand the complete shattering of confidence in his administration. If this kind of scandal doesn't result in the president's resignation, what kind of scandal should?"

Nader spoke at a convention sponsored by the journalism review.

Protest Bill

TORONTO (CP) — About 1,800 persons attended a meeting Sunday to protest a provincial government bill that will deny denturists the right to deal directly with the public.

The meeting was organized by the Citizens Committee for Repeal of Bill 246. The bill provides an opportunity for denturists to qualify as dental therapists, but denies them the right to deal with the public directly.

A violation might mean a $2,000 fine or six months imprisonment.

Samaritan Dies

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — An Orillia motorist was killed Sunday when he stopped to assist a Toronto man fatally injured on Highway 12 near here.

Martin Colin Butler, 22, stopped to assist Bruce Walker, 25, who had been struck by a car while he was riding his bicycle.

As Mr. Butler reached the scene after notifying police of the accident he was struck by another car. Mr. Butler was not involved in the earlier accident.

Increase 2.6 Pct.

Prices Up For Food

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices jumped 2.6 per cent from March to April, leading an overall 1.1 per cent increase in the consumer price index, Statistics Canada reported today.

If that rate of increase were maintained, food prices would rise almost 37 per cent by next March.

Only once in the last three years has there been a larger monthly increase in food prices—the 3.6 per cent jump between June and July of last year.

Food prices have risen 12.9 per cent over the last 12 months, almost twice as much as the complete index, which now stands 6.6 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The consumer price index stood at 147.3, up from 145.7 in March.

The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, measures the price of goods and services that make up a large part of a typice family's spending.

The 2.6-per-cent increase in food prices was in sharp contrast to the average March-to-April increase of eight-tenths of one per cent for the last two years.

Poultry prices jumped 6.6 per cent from March to April, while beef prices rose 2.3 per cent and pork 2.1 per cent.

In the 12 months since April, 1972, beef prices have risen an average of more than 16 per cent, pork prices are nearly 30 per cent higher and poultry is up more than 36 per cent.

Egg prices are down 8.3 per cent in the latest month, reaching levels 43 per cent above those of a year earlier.

The price of bakery and cereal products, however, dipped two-tenths of one per cent, largely because of lower bread prices in some western cities.

Altogether, prices for food consumed at home have risen 13.3 per cent over the last 12 months while the cost of restaurant meals has gone up 10.7 per cent.

A 2.3-per-cent increase in prices for women's clothing led the way as the clothing index rose 1.4 per cent in April.

Men's clothes went up in price by 1.2 per cent while the cost of children's clothes was generally unchanged, as price increases and reductions balanced each other.

The housing index edged up two-tenths of one per cent because of higher prices for new houses, homeowner repairs and furniture.

Reduced prices for vacuum cleaners and refrigerators, however, brought a one-tenth of one per cent decline in appliance prices.

A three-per-cent increase in dentists' fees helped push the health and personal care index up nine-tenths of one per cent for the month.

Native People Press for Halt To Oil Exploration in Arctic

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Spokesmen for native people of the Northwest Territories expressed their case Monday for a halt to gas and oil exploration in the Arctic, pending the resolution of aboriginal land claims and the formation of a national energy policy.

Speaking to a conference on development of the Churchill corridor to the Arctic islands, Joe Mercredi of the Metis Association of the Northwest Territories said development must recognize the disrupting effects of their projects on the native people.

Mr. Mercredi, of Fort Simpson, N.W.T., asked the 250-odd conference delegates: "What is the poor Indian or Metis going to get out of it? Pollution? Headaches? If you want the Northwest Territories, you've got to sit down with us."

Peter Cumming, a legal adviser to the Eskimo Brotherhood and a professor at York University in Toronto, said the Eskimo people have a closer relationship to environment than do any other North American people, and aboriginal rights must be recognized legally.

He said developments in Alaska gas and oil exploration were frozen from 1956 to 1971 until aboriginal land rights were clarified and urged that a similar freeze, lasting perhaps two to five years, be imposed in Canada's North.

James Arvaluk of the Eskimo Brotherhood said settlement of the land-claim issue is a top priority. Land and water were more important to the native people than the prospect of a menial pipeline job that might end after only a few years and considerable social disruption.

Dr. H. Airill of Toronto, chairman of the Great Plains Project organizers of the conference, objected: "We're not saying let's develop a corridor. We're saying let's study a corridor."

He said the project, a loose association of experts in the fields of transportation, mining and gas and oil established to offer the federal government some ideas on the North, isn't in league with the developer interests and is a volunteer group.

Mr. Mercredi later told reporters: "The native people of the North are at a restless point. There will be violence if the natives' views are not recognized or even acknowledged."

He termed the Churchill corridor concept "a corridor for the gas companies to move right in and bypass the people."

Mr. Cummings said: "The native people want land and water most of all. To the point that there is to be expropriation, they want compensation. They want to participate in every stage of decision-making in exploration and development."

Forged Cables Linked JFK to Diem Murder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt has testified that a special presidential counsel directed him to forge cablegrams linking President John Kennedy to the killing of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Hunt, in Watergate grand jury testimony released Monday by the Pentagon papers trial judge, said he found enough in state department files to hint at Kennedy involvement in the 1963 assassination, but he said special counsel Charles Colson said that wasn't "good enough" and ordered the forgeries.

In Washington, Colson denied the charge.

Judge Matt Byrne of U.S. district court released the testimony as part of the mounting evidence of government involvement in the Pentagon papers case and the prosecution of co-defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Hunt said he was working on a White House investigation of the Pentagon papers leak in 1971 when he spotted documents that might be used to embarrass the late President Kennedy's family. He said secret documents also appeared to be missing, and he figured those would be the most damaging.

Hunt said he relayed this information to Colson. And Hunt quoted Colson as saying: "Well, what kind of material have you dug up on the files that would indicate Kennedy complicity?"

". . . I showed him three or four cables that indicated that they had pretty close to pulled the rug out against Premier Diem's head, but it didn't say in so many words." Hunt said in testimony before the grand jury last Wednesday.

"Interestingly, one could say that it was a high degree of administration complicity in the actual assassination of Diem and his brother."

He recalled that Colson said: "Well, this isn't good enough. Do you think you could improve on them?"

"I said, 'Yes, I probably could, but not without technical assistance.'" Hunt testified, noting that as a former CIA agent he had been given training in "floating forged newspaper accounts, telegrams, that sort of thing. . . ."

"So he (Colson) said, 'Well, we won't be able to give you any technical help. This is too hot. See what you can do on your own.'"

Hunt then told how he used a Xerox machine, razor blades and a typewriter and "I set about creating two cables which bore on that particular period."

Senators Will Decide If Dean Gets Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate's Watergate committee was set today to debate whether limited immunity should be granted to former presidential council John Dean in return for his quick public testimony.

Federal prosecutors are reported to have refused to promise Dean that he will not be prosecuted for testimony to the federal grand jury investigating the breakin and bugging of Democratic national headquarters.

This development may lead to Dean's public testimony on the affair until after any trial—which could mean months—for fear of possible self-incrimination.

The question of immunity before the Senate committee—while it would not guarantee that Dean won't be prosecuted on the basis of evidence offered by others—would allow him to testify publicly in advance of a trial without being prosecuted for his own words.

The justice department and Chief Judge John Sirica of U.S. district court must approve any grant of immunity for Senate testimony.

The Dean debate comes after the White House issued a fresh denial in response to news reports that Dean is prepared to say he believes President Nixon knew of a White House coverup of the Watergate affair.

"Any suggestion that the president participated in any coverup activities is untrue," deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said at the Florida White House Monday.

Ottawa Offers Revised Tax Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today offered to turn over substantial areas of taxation to the provinces as part of a new system of financing federal provincial health programs.

Under the proposal, announced at the opening session of a meeting of health, finance and education ministers, the federal government would reduce its personal income tax rates by six percentage points in 1977. Federal taxes on tobacco, liquor, wine and beer would be eliminated effective Jan. 1, 1975.

The provinces could then increase their taxes in those areas.

The new proposal is a radical revision of a January proposal designed to reduce the rate of increase in federal contributions to hospital insurance and medical care programs. Under present arrangements, the federal government pays half the cost of such programs.

The January proposal would have tied increases in federal contributions to increases in the gross national product (GNP), thus in effect reducing increases in food from one cent a year from the recent annual increases of up to 15 per cent.

The proposals announced today would have kept during the pre-1977 transitional period and as a means of guaranteeing certain minimum levels of revenue to the provinces.

If provincial revenues from the new tax room were hot as much as the provinces would have received under the GNP formula, the federal government would make up the difference in cash.

Finance Minister John Turner, however, said in a statement prepared for the conference that the tax transfers would mean more revenue:

"In due course, provincial governments can reasonably anticipate that the tax transfer will more than cover the federal commitment.

Jets Raid Guerrillas At Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanese air force jets kept up a steady attack on Palestinian guerrilla positions near the Beirut airport today as government and Palestinian leaders struggled to halt fighting that broke out again Monday.

Informed sources said President Suleiman Frangieh and guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat have agreed to a one-hour ceasefire to give Arafat a chance to bring his forces under control. But heavy gunfire could still be heard, and there were strong indications that Arafat and his warriors have lost control of significant elements of the guerrillas.

U.S. Consul General Released Unhurt

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — "Thank God," said U.S. Consul-General Terrance Leonhardy when he returned home Monday night and embraced his wife 76 hours after a guerrilla band kidnapped him on a street here.

"I am very happy," the 36-year-old diplomat said. With bloodshot eyes and a heavy, grey stubble, on his cheeks and chin, he made a brief appearance for photographers supported by his wife on one side and Jack Higgins of the U.S. state department on the other, but his doctor would not allow him to answer reporters' questions.

Leonhardy was freed, tired but unharmed, 39 hours after the Mexican government released 30 persons from jail and flew them to Cuba as ransom.

"I can only express how happy I am to be free again and reunited with my family and with friends and colleagues," both Mexican and American," he said in a brief statement read to reporters for him by a spokesman.

There was no immediate word where Leonhardy was held after a group of armed men grabbed him Friday afternoon as he drove home alone.

The first word of Leonhardy's release came when he called his home at 10:35 p.m. from a bar.

Jack Dennis, an information officer at the consulate, said he did not know whether the kidnappers had dropped Leonhardy off in front of the bar or some distance away.

Leonhardy was the first foreign diplomat kidnapped in Mexico, although political terrorists have kidnapped two Mexican officials in the last two years. Both were released unharmed after ransom demands were met.

A previously unknown terrorist group called the Revolutionary Armed Forces of the People (FRAP) kidnapped Leonhardy. In addition to the release of the 30 prisoners it listed, the group demanded that its communiques be published and television of President Luis Echeverria ordered that the demands be met speedily to not endanger Leonhardy's life.

The 30 youths named by the terrorists were taken from their cells in Mexico City and six states, and the air force flew them to Havana Sunday morning. There were reports that the kidnappers then made new demands, but there was no confirmation of this.
